Martin in Coma, Hope Given Up

Today

Big Day Tomorrow.
First Facts, Then Action.
No Dole? What Else?
Socratic Dry-Wet Talk.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

OUR good neighbor, Cuba, is to be congratulated upon the opening of a first class school of civil aviation, President Machado attending.

Students volunteering already exceed the school's capacity, which will be increased.

TOMORROW is appointed for a "great radical unemployment demonstration," in various American cities. Secret service men, and labor union men say the Russian government is financing this demonstration.

It may be, however, that the number of men really out of work in the United States has something to do with it.

NEW YORK CITY warns Communists that it will stand "no nonsense" and to prove that it is in earnest sends police reserves with tear gas bombs.

They caught one youth carrying pamphlets in red ink, telling the unemployed to "Starve or fight." A little later they caught two ladies, Rose Berman and Sadie Doran, carrying the same accursed literature.

MAYOR WALKER tells the public that freedom of speech will be protected and guaranteed. That is wisdom. There is never much danger, even in bad times of unemployment, if you don't sit on the safety valve.

ONE year ago, yesterday, President Hoover was inaugurated. Friends say he has devoted the first year of his term to "getting the facts" and the next three years will see vigorous use of facts.

SENATOR FESS, of Ohio, said that the President had prevented a panic in the recent slump, and "saved prosperity." Also, the President has taken "the only sound view" on prohibition, which is growing stronger. In cities, education will overcome the opposition to it, says Senator Fess.

SECRETARY DAVIS, of the Labor Department, objects to talk about "dole" for the unemployed, and would have the government spend its fifty millions on public buildings.

That sounds wiser than it really is. Such an arrangement would suit members of building trades. The union would not allow anybody else to get any of the $50,000,000, and politicians wouldn't dare interfere with the union, even if it were right to do so.

MANY idle in the building trades might not be able to reach the spot where buildings were to be erected.

White collar men, the elevator men, the furnace men, chauffeurs out of jobs, could not suddenly become steamfitters, or steel erectors.

THE government ought to proceed with public building, as a matter of common sense, having the money and needing the buildings.

But as regards unemployment relief, it has no right to make any plan that would benefit a special class. The "dole" is a hateful word, but expresses the only plan to help all.

DR. STEWART PATON, no ordinary highbrow, but professor of psychiatrics at Johns Hopkins University, tells the Judiciary Committee on prohibition, that moderate drinkers of alcohol live longer than excessive drinkers, or total abstainers.

That should be broken to Mr. Volstead, cautiously and tactfully.

THUS starts another prohibition discussion. Prohibitionists ask:

"What about John D. Rockefeller, pure water drinker, in his ninety-first year, playing a good game of golf, mentally as keen as ever?"

The wets will answer:

"What about Pope Leo, who wrote a poem in praise of light wine, and, past ninety years of age, directed the greatest church organization in the world? What about the Danish-born Prussian General Von Moltke, straight as an arrow, commanding troops at ninety? What about a distinguished citizen of Canada, who, recently celebrating his ninety-fifth birthday, demanded a roast goose for dinner, ate plenty of it, and never specialized in ice water?"

IN Wall Street, money is "very easy." Loans to run 12 months, offered at five per cent, go begging. Call money, used for stock speculation, costs only four per cent.

Things are cheap when you don't need them.

AN encouraging statement comes from Mr. Edsel B. Ford, now in Florida. He is one who talks rarely, and thinks first. President of the Ford Company, knowing the sales from day to day, possessing sound information about business conditions, he predicts steady improvement in business, particularly in industrial lines.

MR. FORD expects to reach "our capacity" in May, producing nine thousand cars daily. If he only made fifty dollars on each car, that would be $450,000 profit per day, and on that, you can live.

JURIST SINKS AS OXYGEN AID FAILS

Fever Above 103, Pneumonia Victim Believed Near End After Two Weeks' Illness

Judge Richard W. Martin, suffering from pneumonia, has lapsed into unconsciousness, and hope for his recovery has been abandoned by attending physicians, it was said today at the jurist's residence, 5807 Stanton avenue,

Judge Martin, who had showed signs of improvement during the last few days, grew suddenly worse late yesterday. Dr. C. B. Schildecker and Dr. R. T. Hood spent all last night by his side, administering oxygen in an effort to rally the sinking patient.

FAILS TO RALLY

This morning they announced that Judge Martin had failed to respond to treatment. His temperature had mounted to 103.3 degrees and fever continued to make inroads upon his strength.

Judge Martin was stricken ill two weeks ago while on the bench of Common Pleas Court. His illness, diagnosed a influenze, developed into pneumonia.

WEAKENED IN CAMPAIGN

Since he was stricken physicians had believed that he would recover, and had held those hopes until yesterday when he suffered a relapse.

The arduous campaign which Judge Martin waged for the Republican nomination for Mayor at the September primaries and his duties on the bench are believed to have taken a toll upon his vitality and handicapped him in his fight against his illness.

Telegrams to House Hearing Admitted After Squabble; Prosperity of U. S. Cited

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—On the sidelines for several weeks while the anti-drys made a smashing attack on prohibition, the drys got their turn today and opened their case in rebuttal before the House Judiciary Committee with pleas by Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Samuel Crowther, who lately has been the auto magnate's Boswell, presented the committee with telegrams from Ford and Edison.

SURE OF RETENTION

Ford's telegram stated:

"The Eighteenth Amendment is recognized by the men and women of our country, the women especially, as the greatest force for the comfort and prosperity of the United States.

"I feel sure the sane people of this nation will never see its repeal or any dangerous modification."

EDISON'S VIEWS

The telegram from Edison said:

"I still feel that prohibition is the greatest experiment made for the benefit of man. My observation is that enforcement generally is at least 60 per cent effective and is gaining, notwithstanding the impression through false propaganda that it is a lower per cent. It is strange to me that some men of great ability and standing do not help to remove the curse of alcohol."

SENATE RACE GETS UNDER WAY HERE SATURDAY

Labor Secretary and County Chairman to Reach City Together to Open Drive

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, county Republican chairman, will support Secretary of Labor James J. Davis in his candidacy for the United States Senate, in opposition to Senator Joseph R. Grundy, it was learned today from an authentic source.

ARMSTRONG COMING NORTH

Davis will remain in Washington over Friday for a meeting of President Hoover's cabinet and expects to arrive in Pittsburgh Saturday to announce his candidacy and outline his platform.

Armstrong, who talked with Davis last week in Florida, left Jacksonville suddenly last night and was expected to arrive in Washington tonight, according to reports.

Armstrong was reported as remaining in Washington until Davis was ready to leave, when the pair would either travel here together or at least arrive simultaneously.

TAFT REPORTED STRONGER

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—After a "very good night" William Howard Taft was said by his attendants to be stronger and more alert this afternoon.

A bulletin issued by Dr. Thomas A. Claytor and Dr. Francis R. Hagner said:

"The former chief justice has spent a good night. His condition is slightly improved in the past 24 hours."

The physicians indicated their belief, however, that Mr. Taft was critically ill, and that while life might be prolonged for some time no change had occurred to give hope of recovery.

Here's Township For Debt—But Will It Pay?

LANSING, Mich., March 5.—(AP.)—The Beach Manufacturing Company, of Charlotte, Mich., may have the entire township of Sheridan, in Gladwin County, in payment of a machinery debt claim of $500.

Emerson R. Boyles, deputy attorney general, has so informed the company. Acceptance of the offer means assumption of a bonded indebtedness of $10,000 of the township.

Boyles' offer was made in answer to a request that the state pay the debt.

Only one family lives in the township and it may move out at any time; there is no money in the township treasury, and there isn't even a treasurer.

ACCUSE OFFICER IN SHOOTING

A bullet from the revolver of a sub-patrolman who was accused of being under the influence of liquor early today grazed the leg of William Jones, 28, of 335 Chalfont street, Mt. Washington, police reported.

The patrolman, Herbert Phillips, of Mt. Washington Police Station, was suspended and listed for hearing before the police trial board.

Jones said the bullet was discharged in a scuffle between the patrolman and two other men near Curtin and Climax streets.

The two men, brothers, Mathew Barone, 40, and James Barone, 29, of 522 Climax street, were arrested along with Jones on charges of disorderly conduct. Police reported the patrolman had been trying to settle an argument between them.

Couzens' Daughter Beats Speed Charge

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Margo Couzens Chewning, daughter of Senator Couzens, of Michigan, whose recent elopement with a Washington bank clerk was a social sensation here, beat a charge of speeding here today.

She was arrested yesterday, but she asserted that the arresting officer did not pace her and that she would "go to court and beat it." The speeding charge was dismissed, but she was fined $4 for failing to show registration card and permit.

3 FLIERS DIE ON ROGERS' RANCH

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—(AP.)—Three men were killed last night in the crash of an open-cockpit biplane on the ranch of Will Rogers, comedian, in Beverly Hills, Cal. One was identified as Morey Johnson, of Hollywood, Cal., owner of the plane.

Examination of the ship indicated Johnson had flown into the side of a hill during a heavy rain last night.

Police were unable to identify Johnson's companions. He was on a pleasure jaunt with two friends.

Half Million In Morphine Seized

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Morphine, valued at about $500,000, was seized on Pier 57, North River, foot of West Fifteenth street, leased by the French Line, late last night, it was learned today.

The drug was in two large trunks, apparently owned by a first-class passenger on the liner Ile de France, who had left the vessel a few minutes before.

No arrests have been made.

Discovery of the narcotics was made by Israel Finkelstein, a customs guard, who had noticed two ship stewards standing near the two trunks, which had not yet been examined. He opened the trunks and found the narcotics, packed in cans bearing the labels of foreign manufacturers.

15 PUPILS HURT BY FALL IN PIT

NEW YORK, March 5.—(INS.)—Fifteen school children were injured, eight of them seriously, when they plunged 20 feet through an iron door in the pavement beside the Holy Cross parochial school today in Brooklyn.

The injured children were between 10 and 12 years of age.

The pupils were in the yard during a recreation period. A score of them were standing on the iron door, which covers a pit through which ashes are removed from the cellar.

As the children played atop the glass-studded door it crumpled. They dropped to the pit below in the midst of the debris.

Monsignor Michael Fitzgerald, pastor of Holy Cross Church, with Brother Christian and nuns, plunged into the pit to rescue the children.

Irene, Dague Stake Fate On Alibi in Killing Case

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 5.—An alibi defense was indicated today by attorneys representing Irene Schroeder, blonde trigger woman suspect, and Walter Glenn Dague, when the case opens here Monday morning.

Attorney Kedgwin Powell, associated with former Judge W. T. Barnum; Attorney Thomas Jarrett, former State senator from Sharon, and Thomas W. Dickey, former district attorney of Lawrence County, as counsel for the defense, conferred late yesterday.

"Irene has told me her story and I am satisfied from the facts that she never was in New Castle," Powell declared. "We are prepared to defend both of our clients when the case opens next Monday, but we certainly would like to know who will be called first."

The prosecution has not indicated which of the two suspects in the Corp. Brady Paul slaying will be called Monday morning. Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti and District Attorney John S. Powers spent most of yesterday in conference, but no decision was reached as to which of the defendants would be tried first.

"We will decide that matter Saturday," Attorney Margiotti said before leaving yesterday afternoon for a few days' rest at his home in Punxsutawney.

3 Dry 'Prisoners' Arrested Strolling Streets

Three federal prisoners, who were supposed to be in the Armstrong County Jail, were arrested on the streets of Kittanning today, Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington reported.

The prisoners were sent to jail a month ago to serve sentences of two months for violations of the liquor laws. They are Joseph Reich and Paul Heffron, of Pittsburgh, and John Francinillo, of East Pittsburgh.

Pennington said that one of his agents discovered one of the prisoners in a Kittanning theater yesterday, reported to his superior and was instructed to return today and search for the men.

The prisoners were convicted in Pittsburgh, but, because of the overcrowded condition of the Allegheny County jail, were transferred to the Armstrong County jail. Kittanning is in Armstrong County.

"These men have been employed in the garage and courthouse and to do errands, and I guess they must have slipped downtown," said Sheriff George W. Shafer, in charge of prisoners in the jail, when informed of the arrests.

"They are not supposed to go downtown. I know nothing The prisoners weer convicted in We employ those prisoners outside the jail who can be trusted. It is left to my judgment which ones are permitted outside the jail walls."

ITALY'S CHIEF ENVOY PREDICTS NAVAL PARLEY COLLAPSE

FRENCH BACK TARDIEU IN DEMANDS

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service

LONDON, March 5.—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister and chief of his nation's delegation to the five-power naval parley, believes that the conference will fail completely soon after the return of the French delegates, it was learned today.

Grandi's pessimistic attitude was revealed when he sent a telegram to his wife, who is now in Rome advising her to remain there pending further developments. She had planned to join him immediately.

The Italian delegate's viewpoint is based on the apparent assurance that Andre Tardieu will be given a vote of confidence as Premier of France in the Chamber of Deputies enabling him to return to London to push his demands for a fleet approximating 725,000 tons.

M. Tardieu went before the Chamber of Deputies today with his declaration.

Because of frequent interruptions, it took Tardieu 40 minutes to read it. When he had concluded he asked for an immediate discussion of his policies.

This was the signal for a general uproar which reached such proportions that Chamber President Bouisson was obliged to suspend the session temporarily.

When the session resumed a short while later the Socialists set up an uproar yelling and shouting and refusing to allow the debate to continue. The speakers tried to struggle against this opposition ineffectually for eight minutes, when the meeting again was suspended.

In spite of the confidence of British and American delegates that the parley will achieve a successful limitation treaty, Grandi's pessimism was only one of a number of indications that the conference was having grave difficulties.

MANY OTHER INDICATIONS

The others were:

1—The Japanese government has instructed its delegates under no circumstances to recede from the 70 per cent auxiliary ratio demand.

2—The cruiser negotiations between Japan and the United States reached an apparent impasse.

3—Efforts to discuss maximum tonnage limitation of individual submarines were balked by Japan's protest she was unprepared for such a conversation.

Stimson's Hasty Meeting Order Causes Sensation

LONDON, March 5.—(AP.)—Ignoring his physician's orders to remain at Stanmore two more days, Secretary Stimson unexpectedly came to London this noon and summoned an immediate meeting of the American Naval Conference Delegation. The purpose of the call was not disclosed and it created something of a sensation.

It was disclosed at about the same time that the Americans were considerably agitated over the course of events of yesterday's meeting of the chiefs of the delegations.

Ohio Mine Guarded As 'Reds' Gather

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 5.—(AP.)—Deputy sheriffs were called to guard mines at Powhatan, O., today when picketing was resumed at mines where employes recently were on strike. Miners returned to work last week. Officials were told the picketing was started in an effort to resume the strike. Sheriff Bord Moore said his entire force and 30 special deputies would be on duty tomorrow because of reports that Communists were planning a meeting in observance of "international unemployment day."

Admiral Jones Will Enter Navy Hospital

NEW YORK, March 5.—(INS.)—Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, senior naval advisor for the American delegation at the London Arms Conference, who was stricken ill in London, will leave here for Washington today. He will enter the naval hospital in the capital. Admiral Jones arrived in New York yesterday on the Berengaria.

there his candidacy for the Senate.

Friends who have the secretary's confidence say the statement he plans to issue in Pittsburgh will be direct and vigorous; that it will treat the tariff problem from the employe's standpoint, and that it will contain a challenge to the Republican state committee in general and to Senator Grundy, who will be his opponent, specifically.

Several important conferences were scheduled to be held here before nightfall between Senator Grundy and leaders of his faction, and also between Vare leaders and Secretary Davis.

A. Boyd Hamilton, of Harrisburg, assistant to the Republican state chairman, was reported en route to Washington, and the unannounced departure from Philadelphia late last night of William R. Douglas, secretary to Vare, and his present campaign manager, has led Philadelphia representatives to believe he will be in Washington today.

Davis to Be Running Mate On Vare Ticket, Says Brown

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—(AP.)—The Public Ledger today quotes Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, as saying:

"I saw Secretary of Labor James J. Davis Monday night and he told me he would be a candidate for senator. I take it for granted that that means the withdrawal of William S. Vare."

Friends of Vare declared the Philadelphia leader had informed them that his physicians had advised him he would be unable to stand the rigors of a campaign.

GRUNDY URGES TARIFF RAISES

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—Reconsideration of imposts on window and plate glass, pig iron, cement and probably other products of Pennsylvania, as at present written into the new tariff bill, will be asked today by Senator Grundy.

This is the last day for filing notice of reservations of time to consider the schedules as formulated by the Senate sitting as the committee of the whole.

Upward revision of duties will be urged by Senator Grundy, working in harmony with senators from other states where these commodities are produced.

ARREST GANDHI, INDIA FORECAST

LONDON, March 5.—(AP.)—The arrest of Mahamtma Gandhi, and possibly of some of his followers, as a result of the delivery of his ultimatum in the civil disobedience campaign against the Indian government, is expected in some Indian circles.

The Daily Express correspondent at Ahmedabad says that this inference is drawn from orders reported to have been given by Gen. Sir William Heneker, commander-in-chief of troops in southern India, for dealing with any possible rising among the Indians.

The correspondent says that European authorities in India believe Gandhi wishes to be arrested, and is even eagerly awaiting the arrival of the police.

Ahmedabad, one of the centers of the cotton-spinning industry, is said to be seething with excitement. Thousands of Gandhi's supporters are pouring into the city from the surrounding country.

CHICAGO, March 5.—(INS.)—Following charges of 200 depositors that more than $2,000,000 of the bank's money is missing, an investigation was begun of the defunct City State Bank of Chicago large downtown bank which closed its doors November 2.

Depositors at first were promised full return on their investments. A recent check of liabilities and assets indicated yesterday, however, that depositors would get less than 50 cents on the dollar.

3,000,000 IDLE, DAVIS ASKS AID OF CONGRESS

Emergency Appropriation to Speed Building Program Urged; Hoover Backs Plan

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—With government figures indicating that 3,000,000 men are out of employment, the administration suggested to Congress today that some relief might be found in an emergency appropriation authorizing the President to go ahead with a public building program.

In a letter to Chairman Johnson of the Senate Commerce Committee, Secretary of Labor Davis described as cumbersome a pending proposal by Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, to provide $150,000,000 to be used by a Federal Employment Stabilization Board, and added:

"It would seem that it ought not to be necessary to create the machinery provided in this act in order to have somebody to which the $150,000,000 could be appropriated. In short, while it is absolutely necessary that Congress devise some way of having money immediately available when emergency arises, a less cumbersome method might be devised. It occurs to me that it might be appropriated to the Treasury Department to be called upon by the President in an emergency."

SEES NO PARLEY NEED

It was disclosed at the White House that President Hoover has not considered calling a general unemployment conference of labor and capital, feeling that everything possible in the way of executive aid already is in operation.

The administrtion feels it is doing what it can to relieve unemployment, and that Congress will be largely to blame if the 3,000,000 remain jobless.

The White House disclosed that President Hoover was in accord with a statement made last night by Secretary Davis, saying among other things that "the delays in tariff legislation are more responsible today for creating unemployment than any other factor."

BUILDING HELD BACK

The tariff bill has been under debate in the Senate for weeks, while action waits on public building authorizations which Mr. Hoover expects to provide employment for many now idle.

Secretary Davis' statement, covering broadly the question of unemployment, was in the form of a reply to Senator Wagner, who repeatedly has called on the administration to do something about unemployment.

Forecast Promises End of Cold Spell

Relief from the low temperature of the past two days was promised Pittsburgh today by the Weather Bureau, with a forecast of warmer weather and possibly rain. The lowest temperatures in the city last night averaged about 27 degrees.

Although most of Sunday's heavy snow had been removed from the downtown district, outlying sections still were covered, and icy sidewalks made walking hazardous.

DAM DEDICATED BY COOLIDGE

COOLIDGE DAM, Ariz., March 5.—(AP.)—Calvin Coolidge, former President of the United States, yesterday formally dedicated a great dam named in his honor, and in the same breath called upon the people of the Southwest to dedicate themselves to the task of completing another great project—Boulder Canyon Dam.

Speaking from the parapet of Coolidge Dam, Mr. Coolidge plunged into a plea for unity in the Southwest. He spoke for 20 minutes and climaxed the dedication ceremonies by breaking over the parapet a bottle filled with the waters of the Gila River.

"This dam and its waters do not need dedicating," the former President asserted. "It is the people gathered here who need to be dedicated."

Old men and women in the Pima Indian tribe were guests of honor at the ceremonies. Many of the aged Indians traveled all of last night to be on hand for the dedication of the dam, which is to reclaim the arid lands on which they live.

TAXICAB PEACE TALK DENIED

Although the committee of the striking taxi drivers was in executive session until early today, no statement was forthcoming when the meeting adjourned. No news came from the cab company headquarters in the William Penn Hotel yesterday.

It was explained by a spokesman for the committee that no official utterance has been issued by the committee on any contemplated action.

A statement made by Attorney Leonard Mazer that a peace offer was to be made to the company did not have the sanction of the committee, a spokesman for the drivers said. Mazer said that as soon as several members of the committee recover from illness, a conference would be held on a peace proposal.

BACK FROM INDIANAPOLIS

Chairman A. T. Siford, of the drivers' union committee, announced that N. E. Snyder and George W. Rodgers, two members of the committee, had returned from a visit to the headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Hhelpers of America at Indianapolis, Ind.

Siford declined to state the purpose of their visit, saying only:

"Their report has not been made officially to the committee."

E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, and other firm officials were in conference with their legal advisers during the day, but no hint was given as to future plans. Higgins arrived yesterday from Philadelphia.

ACTION DEMANDED

The taxicab situation popped up in City Council yesterday when a letter from Attorney Louis A. Little was read, insisting that Council take some action.

Little's letter, which was read to Council, insists that Council take action through the Public Service Commission.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt advised Council that it "has no power under which it can prohibit or inquire into the cab companies."

WALSH FIRM IN TABOO ON RED PARADE

Cities of Europe and U. S. Alert for Outbreaks; No Federal Action in Sight

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh remained firm today in his declaration that the Communists will not stage a parade of unemployed in Pittsburgh tomorrow as part of a world wide demonstration.

The Communists announced that they would meet for a demonstration outside the Pennsylvania Station tomorrow but have not yet applied for a parade permit—and if they do they'll be refused, Walsh assures.

Police took the view that so far Communists have been unable to recruit enough sympathizers for a parade and were unlikely to have more success tomorrow.

POLICE WARN REDS

Plans for the "international unemployment day" demonstrations led to warnings and police precautions in cities throughout the world.

In New York Mayor Walker said demonstrations could be held only "in the proper places," and Police Commissioner Whalen issued a warning to women and children to keep away from Union Square, where the Communists will gather. Police guards have been assigned to public buildings, cathedrals and the homes of wealthy and prominent persons.

Chicago police have been instructed to be on the lookout for anyone tampering with street public utilities manholes. Chief of Detectives Stege said he had word that the Communists might "seek to cripple the city's power as a means of throwing Chicago into disorder during their demonstration."

BOSTON POLICE DOUBLED

Double the usual number of policemen have been ordered on duty in Boston, although peaceful meetings in regularly appointed places will not be molested.

Detroit officials were still undecided whether or not to permit a demonstration.

In Baltimore, Jacob Levinson, section organizer of the Trade Unity League, said no request would be made for a permit for the parade planned as a feature of the demonstration arranged by the league and the Communist party. Police Commissioner Gaither replied that he was "prepared to enforce all ordinances."

The federal government has refused to become excited over the demonstrations, and will leave to local police authorities all clubswinging and head-breaking if such measures are found necessary. The Department of Justice plans no widespread raids and takes with a grain of salt the stories that Moscow has sent millions into America to put on the show.

EUROPE FEARS OUTBREAKS

The capitals of Europe are concerned over the prospects. Associated Press dispatches show these developments:

Premier Tardieu, acting as minister of the interior, has instructed the Paris prefect of police that all demonstrations must be strictly prohibited.

At the same time a Communist meeting scheduled for tomorrow in Prague, Czechoslovakia, has been forbidden and two Communist papers in the provinces there have been suspended.

German police will be kept on alarm duty in all the larger cities of Prussia to prevent any serious results growing out of expected demonstrations.

In Berlin all outdoor meetings have been forbidden and authorities there and elsewhere contemplate no difficulty in maintaining control of any situation which may arise.

Duesseldorf dispatches said that at a meeting of Communists there the call had gone out some time ago for a demonstration by the jobless in every country.

Communists March In Mexican Town

MEXICO CITY, March 5.—(AP.)—Press dispatches here said that the delegates to the Workers' and Peasants' Congress at Zamora, Michoacan, had paraded the streets shouting "Death to the Pope and the Clergy," "Down with capital" and "Long live Communism." The demonstrators finally stopped of their own accord. There was no violence.

Man Under Parole Here Jobless, Kills Himself

William Botzer, 25, of Johnsonburg, Elk County, under a two-year parole granted by the Federal District Court, visited Federal Probation Officer George G. O'Brien on February 25, and obtained permission to go to South Bend, Ind., to seek employment. He was a former student at Notre Dame University.

When he failed to report by mail on March 1, as instructed by the probation officer, the latter started an inquiry. Yesterday O'Brien received word that Botzer ended his life three days after leaving Pittsburgh by eating a chicken sandwich sprinkled with strychnine at the home of a friend in South Bend.

He was said to have left a note to his father in which he said "he had gambled with life and lost."

Under the provisions of the two-year parole granted Botzer on May 27, 1929, when he pleaded guilty of stealing two letters from the mail, he was not permitted to leave the jurisdiction of the court without permission of his probation officer.

When he visited Probation Officer O'Brien he told of futile efforts to find work in Pittsburgh and said he wanted to resume his studies. He thought he might find better opportunities at South Bend, so he was given permission to go there, but was directed to report by mail on his arrival.

Three Boys and Girl Hurt In Coasting Crashes

Three boys were in hospitals and a girl was under the care of a physician today as a result of two sled accidents yesterday. Two of the victims were shaken up when an automobile in which they were being taken to a hospital collided with another machine near the hospital.

John and Richard Bentley, of Edgewood, were cut about the head and body when their sled crashed into a parked automobile on West Swissvale avenue, Edgewood. Harry M. Shaffer, of 1119 Burns street, Wilkinsburg, placed them in his automobile and started for Columbia Hospital. At West street and South avenue the car collided with one owned by William A. Cuda, of 424 Highland avenue, Turtle Creek. Both cars were thrown upon the sidewalk but none of the occupants was injured.

Jesse Starrett, 13, of 201 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, was in a serious condition in Braddock General Hospital, while his companion, Ilene McElvoy, 13, of Albert street, Turtle Creek, was under a physician's care at her home. They were injured when their sled crashed into a fire plug. Starrett sustained five fractured ribs and internal injuries. The girl suffered a fracture of the knee cap.

NORMAND WILL OMITS CODY

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—(INS.)—Mabel Normand, film actress, who died February 23 after an illness of more than a year, bequeathed her entire estate to her mother, Mrs. Mary Normand, it was revealed here today.

The will is not to be probated for several days, and in the meantime members of her family, pending preparation of a schedule of her holdings, could not make an estimate of the estate.

A clause in the will said Lew Cody, Miss Normand's husband, had sufficient means to provide for himself and he was left nothing.

RENEW SEARCH FOR AIRPLANE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 5.—(INS.)—Search for the missing tri-motored Western Air Express passenger liner and its crew of three was to be resumed by airplane today after reports that the wrecked plane was found had been proven false.

A fleet of airplanes augmented by ground searching parties will concentrate on the Lake Arrowhead country where the air liner was last heard a week ago Sunday before it vanished in a severe rain storm. Pilots James Doles and Albert Bieber and Steward John Slaton were aboard.

Possemen returned to Lake Arrowhead last night after a vain search for the wreckage which J. P. Barber declared he saw through binoculars on a mountainside. The searchers believe Barber mistook some tanks at an abandoned silver mine for the smashed plane.

Be Broadminded, Tell Age, Census Plea to Women

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(INS.)—Thousands of enumerators all over the country will start counting American noses in a few weeks to compile information of value in the economic and political life of the United States.

Census taking has a practical value to the man in the street, the politician, the manufacturer and everybody else, Dr. Joseph A. Hill, assistant director of the Census Bureau, said today.

"In considering water supply, adequate school buildings, marketing manufactures and agricultural products, and in a hundred other cases, information as to population is essential.

"We need also to know the composition of the population with regard to age, sex, occupation, nativity and a dozen other characteristics. The age question is essential for computing life tables, birth and death rates. It is necessary to know in event of war the number of males of military age."

Census enumerators have had plenty of trouble in getting ages of women. This year the bureau is urging that the conscientious scruples of women against disclosing their real age be put aside and that a broadminded view be taken, so that accurate statistics may be prepared. Enumerators have been asked to consider information supplied as strictly confidential as relating to individuals.

COURT RULES AGAINST FOX FILM PLAN

Halsey, Stuart Project May Be Circulated at Meeting Voting on Banamerica Plan

NEW YORK, March 5.—Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy today decided against William Fox on the theater magnate's motion for a temporary injunction restraining John E. Otterson and Hary L. Stuart from voting stock held by the Bankers Trust Company at the stockholders meeting today.

Otterson and Stuart are members of the board of trustees for the Fox holdings in Fox Film Corporation, and Fox Theater Corporation, which was formed last fall at the time the stock was deposited with the Bankers Trust Company. Fox also is a trustee.

The stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation met to vote on a plan for the future of the company, advanced by the Bancamerica-Blair-Lehman group and recessed immediately for a half hour to allow the directors to meet.

TRUSTEES TO VOTE

Under a ruling by Federal Judge Coleman, the purpose of the meeting was solely to vote on this plan. However, the plan of Halsey, Stuart & Co. was allowed to be circulated.

With the decision of Justice Levy, the Halsey, Stuart trustees will vote 51 per cent of the Class B stock against the Bancamerica plan which Fox favors.

The Halsey-Stuart program follows in part:

"1—Film will rebate an issue of $40,000,000 principal amount of 10 years 6½ per cent sinking fund convertible gold debentures (hereinafter called the Film debentures) redeemable at the option of Film in whole at any time or in part on any interest payment date on 30 days' notice at their principal amount and accrued interest plus a premium of 5 per cent for five years from their date, and thereafter at a premium of 1 per cent less for each succeeding year until maturity. The Film debentures will be convertible at any time after six months from the date thereof and within five years after such date into Class A common stock of Film at the rate of 30 shares of such class A common stock for each $1,000 principal amount of Film debentures.

CAPITAL STOCK

"2—The capital stock of Film as now authorized by certificate and amended certificates of incorporation heretofore filed, shall be increased so that the authorized capitel stock shall consist of 5,000,000 shares divided into 4,900,000 shares of Class A common stock and 100,000 shares of Class B common stock."

"The number of directors shall be increased from eight to 12.

"An amendment to the certificate of incorporation of Film will be perfected so as to provide that, commencing with the annual meeting, scheduled to be held April 15, 1930, the Class A common stockholders will have the exclusive right to elect five of the directors and the Class B common stockholders will have the exclusive right to elect seven of the directors."

COMMON STOCK RESERVED

The authorized and unissued Class A common stock shall be issued or reserved for issuance as follows: "1,200,000 shares of the Class A common stock are to be reserved for issuance upon the conversion of Film debentures; 1,150,000 shares of the Class A common stock shall be offered to the stockholders at $30 per share; 1,729,340 shares, the balance of the authorized Class A common stock as increased, are to be available for issue for future corporate purposes.

"The Film debentures shall be offered for subscription at 98 per cent of their principal amount and accrued interest and 1,150,000 shares of the Class A common stock of Film shall be offered for subscription at $30 per share to holders of the Class A common stock and Class B common stock of Film, in proportion to their holdings thereof.

SHOTS FIRED IN TEXTILE CLASH

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., March 5.—(AP.)—Two shots were fired during a clash in the Stony Creek section early today between pickets and workers en route to the American Bemberg and American Glanzstoff Rayon Mills here, but no one was injured.

Landon Estep, a worker in the Glanzstoff plant, officers said, fired the shots after warning the pickets, who had stopped the bus in which he was a passenger, that he was armed.

Sheriff's deputies were attempting to enforce an injunction restraining officials and members of the United Textile Workers from interfering with employes.

An announcement by union officials said labor leaders regarded highways leading into nearby hill communities as "open territory" for picketing despite a clause in the court order forbidding congregating on any road "used for the purpose of transporting employes to their work in Carter or any other county."

NAVY AIR RACER SENT TO SEA

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—Lieut. Alford J. Williams the Navy flier upon whom many Americans rested the hope for recovery by this country of the world's speed records, has been transferred to sea duty.

Effective next Saturday, he will report on board the aircraft carrier Saratoga for three years of service with the fleet at sea.

Williams, widely-known for his work in high speed flight research, single-handed promoted the building last year of the Mercury racer which he intended to enter in the Schneider trophy race.

The plane with withdrawn as the United States entry because of lack of time to make design changes after preliminary tests.

There will be no Schneider competition again until 1931, but Williams' duty extends beyond the time when nations will contend to keep Great Britain, twice winner of the classic, from gaining permanent possession of the speed trophy.

Williams, after playing professional baseball with the New York Giants for two seasons, entered the naval service in 1917 and in 1919 made the first inverted flight tests in an N-9 seaplane.

In 1921 he started an exhaustive series of tests on the HS-2 seaplane, ascertaining for the first time that a tail spin in this type of craft need not result in a crash.

The state law permits cities and boroughs to make such appropriations.

WARDEN AIDS IN CAPTURE OF KILLER

Troops Are Rushed to Scene; Trial of Felon Adjourned After Slaying Is Revealed

AUBURN, N. Y., March 5.—(AP.)—Edward L. Beckwith, Auburn prison principal keeper, was stabbed to death today in the mess hall of the institution by Anthony Mortellito, an inmate, and became the third in succession in that office to lose his life at the hands of a convict.

Beckwith, although mortally wounded by the flashing knife held in Mortellito's hands, felled the Spaniard before collapsing. Warden John L. Hoffman was a witness to the killing. He stood directly behind the principal keeper and aided in the capture of the frenzied attacker.

TROOPS CALLED

Guards and state troopers rushed into the mess hall as word of the stabbing penetrated throughout the institution.

The entire prison soon resembled an armed camp, with every guard called to duty and the entire detail of 60 state troopers placed in positions of control.

Keeper Bechwith, in accordance with his usual procedure, was walking up and down between the tables during the dinner hour when he was attacked. He was rushed to a hospital, where he died.

The news of Beckwith's death came at the height of the trial of Max Becker, Brooklyn gunman, charged with the murder of James Durnin, Beckwith's predecessor. A hasty and dramatic adjournment of the trial followed.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure area that appeared over the upper Mississippi valley yesterday morning is now over Eastern Ontario and extends southward over the lower lakes. It is causing some cloudiness over the lakes, Western Pennsylvania and Ohio, but no precipitation. Another low pressure area of marked intensity appears over British Columbia and Southern Alberta this morning, lowest barometer reported 29.34 inches, at Kamloops. It is causing cloudy weather over the Rocky Mountain states, and light snowfalls at scattered places. It is also attended by mild temperatures. Relatively high barometer over the Plains states is responsible for slight change in temperatures over that section, and a fall in temperature over North Dakota and Manitoba. There is no severely cold weather indicated for this section for the next several days.

Ex-Wife Answers Beggar's Rap, Yells for Alimony

DETROIT, Mich., March 5.—(AP.)—Beggars cannot be choosers, but they certainly should not be ex-husbands.

Lawrence Potsczynski was out rapping on back doors and saying to the lady of the house, "Please, ma'am, can you spare a cup of coffee," etc. Fate led him to the back door of 17439 Dwyer street, and that was tough for Mr. Potsczynski.

"Please, ma'am," he began, "can you spare——"

"Why, it's Lawrence!" said the lady. "My former husband! the man I divorced eight years ago. The man who was order to pay me $15 a week and who skipped after making only one payment. Why, you — you — scallawag!"

By this time she had a strong grip on a broom and was aiming at the Potsczynski shead. Mr. Potsczynski, however, was already taking it "on the lam," as the bums say it. The one time wife, however, pursued fleetly; and Judge Boyne yesterday removed Mr. Potsczynski from circulation for 30 days.

tated about admitting them. He said that it was "a little irregular."

Graham asked if Crowther solicited them.

SPONSORS KEPT SECRET

"Yes," he replied.

"Did some people suggest that you seek them?" asked Graham.

"Yes, but I prefer not to name them."

"Well, if you are ashamed to say—"

"No, I am not ashamed, but I prefer to take the responsibility," replied Crowther.

The wires, both of which came from Fort Myers, Fla., went into the record.

PROSPERITY CITED

Crowther said a canvass of in his own behalf that investigation convinced him that prohibition has made the nation more prosperous.

The country's drink bill, he said, had been cut 80 per cent by prohibition.

"I found that the net diversion of spending brought about by prohibition—that is, money that now goes into goods and savings instead of over saloon bars—amounts to between two and six billion dollars a year, and that at the smallest estimate the country has diverted around $15,000,000,000 since the amendment went into effect.

"This diversion is of double importance, for it has occurred in the lower income group, where formally the percentage expenditure was the largest. Therefore, of the many factors which have contributed to the prosperity of this country during the past decade, prohibition by its diverting of spending money, has been perhaps the largest."

Crowther said a canvas sof industrial leaders supported his statement, although admitting that there was much divergence of opinion among the 87 who answered his question.

Among those he quoted as saying that prohibition has increased the spending power of working men were E. J. Buffington, president of the Illinois Steel Corporation, and Josias Keely, president of the Cabin Creek Consolidated Coal Company, of West Virginia.

LAYS DRINKING TO RICH

He said that 10 principal supervisors of labor of the General Electric Company were asked for an opinion by the company. All agreed that the workers were spending less for liquor, he said.

He said that prohibition's big part in prosperity is increasing the consuming power of the nation.

Crowther said the evidence showed it is the people with the higher income that are spending money for liquor.

"If only the people of larger income are drinking bootleg stuff, it is of course unfortunate in a way, but if someone must drink, it is best for the country that those who can afford it rather than those who cannot afford it should do the drinking.

"If the people of means cannot look after themselves and their children, why then they cannot look after them, and that is all there is to it."

Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, immediately began firing questions at Crowther, with a view to showing that America's gains over Europe as a result of the World War accounted for the country's increase in wealth.

Crowther showed some resentment at La Guardia's questions on statistics.

"I'm not a walking encyclopedia," he said.

"Was it not true that Congress appropriated money for the railroads, for farm relief and restricting immigration during this perod you say prohibition brought prosperity?" asked La Guardia.

"Yes."

QUESTION RULED OUT

Representative Hickey (Rep.), of Indiana, objected to La Guardia's extended question.

"We ought to conduct this hearing like we did the other side," said Hickey.

"I see no evidence of unfairness," replied Chairman Graham.

Crowther said he got bootleggers' prices from friends.

"I have such friends," he remarked.

"You continue to associate with them?" asked La Guardia.

A. F. OF L. ATTITUDE

Edward Keating, of Washington, editor of Labor and ex-member of Congress from Colorado, became involved in a controversy with Chairman Graham over the attitude of the American Federation of Labor. Keating is a militant dry.

Graham called attention of the resolutions of the Federation against prohibition.

"There are people who misrepresent the attitude of my colleagues just as some do concerning Congress," said Keating. "Would you say that Congress is not composed of law abiding men?"

"I'll answer," said Graham. "I say that there are some of those — my colleagues — who helped to make the prohibition law, who do not observe it."

Keating, admitting the federation favored light wines and beer, challenged the general statement that labor is anti-dry.

DRY LAW RAKED BY MRS. MILLER

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Declaring that 10 years of national prohibition has demonstrated the futility of further enforcement effort, Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, urged the outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at the conclusion of the anti-dry testimony before the House Judiciary Committee yesterday.

With a boldness that stirred the committee, Mrs. Miller declared that the time had come for Congress to admit the gross error of national prohibition and master courage enough to repeal it.

"One of the reasons I am against prohibition," she asserted, "is because it discriminated against the poor element. People of means are able to enjoy their liberties in much the same manner as they did before prohibition, with respect to the purchase of alcoholic beverages, but poor people have economic restrictions imposed upon them. They have to take what they can get at prices beyond their means."

BOOTLEGGERS PROSPER

Answering the contention of dry leaders that prohibition has resulted in greater benefits to the working classes, Mrs. Miller told the committee of an interview she had on the subject with the wife of a laborer.

"I asked her if conditions had improved since prohibition, if the working people, as reported by prohibitionists, were able to buy more things for themselves—washing machines, automobiles and general household necessities.

"'Some of us are,' she replied. But it's those who are in the bootleg business.'"

DRY SPOTS GONE

"Before prohibition there were plenty dry spots in Pennsylvania. I know of no dry spots now," she asserted.

"I was brought up in a district of Pittsburgh where there was a brewery in every block. But now prohibition has changed all of that—there is a still in every house."

SCAN NAPOLEON JEWEL SALE

NEW YORK, March 5.—(INS.)—A grand jury will investigate the sale of the $400,000 diamond necklace, which Napoleon gave to his Empress 119 years ago, to a New York jeweler, the district attorney's office announced today.

According to Harold W. Hastings, assistant district attorney, the necklace was sold to D. M. Michel by Col. Charles Townsend, a former member of the British Secret Service, for $60,000.

Announcement of the grand jury investigation followed a conference of the authorities with Archduke Leopold of Austria, who said he received a fee for assisting in arranging the sale.

Hastings said it was desired to probe statements that the owner of the necklace, Archduchess Maria Theresa of Austria, who gave the cirlet to Townsend to sell, valued it at not less than $175,000 and that Townsend gave her as her share of the sale only $7,200.

"They say I am a sausage salesman," said the Archduke to reporters after he was questioned. "Well, I will not reply to that for in America it doesn't matter what one does, if he is a good fellow."

$45,000 GEMS FOUND IN CAB

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—A purse containing jewelry valued at $45,000, left in a taxicab Monday by Mrs. John E. Parsons, was turned over to police by Clodomiro Ruiz, 30, cab driver.

Ruiz explained that he had found the jewelry in his cab Monday night.

"I didn't know what to do with the stuff until I saw a story in the papers about it being lost," Ruiz told police. "Then I figured I had better take it here."

A reward of $5,000 had been published by an insurance company for the return of the jewels.

Mrs. Parsons, the former Fanny Wickes, daughter of Forsyth Wickes, of Tuxedo, N. Y., left the purse in the taxicab as she and her husband were returning home from a visit in Washington, D. C.

The jewelry consisted of two necklaces, two rings, two diamond bracelets, a pearly ring and a pair of pearl and diamond earrings.

When detectives informed Ruiz that he would receive $5,000 reward, he said:

"I have a sick wife, a two-year-old son and a one-year-old daughter. My wife has been ailing ever since we came here. I am going to take the money, when I get it, and return to Porto Rico, where I will buy a little farm."

MIX'S $177,420 ENDS TAX CASE

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—(AP.)—Tom Mix, millionaire film cowboy, doffed his ten-gallon hat to Federal Judge William James' court yesterday and squared himself with the government for allowing shortages to creep into his income tax returns in 1925, 1926 and 1927 by handing over checks for $177,420.66.

Mix pleaded guilty to three misdemeanor counts of failing to pay his full tax quota, and was fined $1,000 on each count.

The discrepancies totaled $118,364.11. In addition Mix paid a 50 per cent penalty with accrued interest. His attorneys said two additional conspiracy indictments, in which Mix, with J. Marjorie Berger, tax counsellor; John D. Hill, his former business agent, and Eugene J. Forde, his brother-in-law, is charged with criminal income tax irregularities, will be dismissed by agreement.

Miss Berger has been convicted of tax frauds, and is serving a 30 months' term in Federal prison.

Bess Meredyth, scenario writer, and George E. Marshall, film director, also entered pleas of guilty to charges of short changing the government in income tax reports. Each was fined $250 after paying discrepancies and penalties.

Others indicted were Douglas C. Alexander and Ray S. Roesser, both partners in the brokerage firm; Charles H. Clay, Elmer J. Griffen and Claud [illegible], former employes of the firm; Joseph C. Bray, former manager of a branch of Italy Bank; R. G. Haddow, Bray's assistant, and Panel P. Burke, a clerk in the bank.

Bray and Haddow were arrested a year ago on a charge of embezzling $529,000 with the cooperation of Burke.

The indicted partners of the brokerage house and their employes knew they were dealing with bank employes and knew the bank employes were speculating with stolen money, the indictments allege.

It was also charged arrangements were made whereby the bank employes could operate marginal accounts under assumed names.

KILLING MARKS MARDI GRAS

NEW ORLEANS, March 5—(AP.)—J. Adair "Tiny" Lawrence, 28, Tulane University medical student and former football player, was shot and killed yesterday in a street fight between sailor-costumed revelers and Negroes in the French Quarter as the Mardi Gras celebration was at its height. He was a native of Tahlequah, Okla., where his parents reside.

Police said they learned from witnesses that Lawrence was parading with fellow students in a truck. Their journey through the French Quarter brought them to the scene of the fight and Lawrence joined the melee.

He was badly beaten about the head, and police arrested William Springer, 33, Negro, who witnesses said, struck Lawrence with a club. Officers were seeking another Negro, Son Robertson, who is said to have fired the fatal shot.

Examination of the body at the morgue revealed a deep laceration on the forehead and several cuts on top of the head. One eye was badly bruised.

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—Driving his twin motored Sikorsky amphibian to an altitude of 19,500 feet, Capt. Boris Sergievsky, late of the Imperial Russian Air Corps, brought back to his adopted country yesterday the altitude record for seaplanes carrying a useful load of 2,000 kilograms (4,409.24 pounds).

Dressed only in ordinary winter flying clothes but in an enclosed heated cabin, Capt. Sergievsky drove his ship up through a hole in the clouds shortly after 1:30 p. m. above North Beach, Queens, and an hour and a half later dropped back down over Oyster Bay with an apparent new record registered on his barograph.

Although it will be several days before the barograph can be calibrated at Washington, the National Aeronautic Association observer said he thought there was little doubt but what the record had been broken by several thousand feet. The old record, held in France, was 15,837 feet.

TOULOUSE, France, March 5—(AP)—One Hundred or more inhabitants of Moissac perished, it was feared, shortly after midnight when the Tarn River, swollen by floods, broke through a dike and submerged the town.

Two quarters of the city—St. Martin and Ste. Catherine—were almost obliterated in the surge of flood water from the broken dike. Residents were caught unawares. Many perished as their houses collapsed above them, others fleeing were trapped and drowned.

The city was in darkness, the rising waters having destroyed electric light facilities and broken gas mains. Sparse reports received here mentioned the intermingled roar of the flood, the dull cracking of collapsing houses, and the futile cries of drowning and trapped residents.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., March 5.—Charging that her husband shut off the gas and compelled her to cook Christmas dinner on a coal range; that he forced her to use a washboard insetad of an electric washer, Mrs. Georgia Eckhardt, Uhrichsville, has sued Orville Eckhardt for divorce.

DOGS POISONED, PLOT BLAMED

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP.)—Four valuable dogs were dead from poison and 20 others were reported dying in North Shore suburbs. A possible connection between the poisoning and the recent firing of Irene McLaughlin's stray dog shelter with the loss of 93 dogs, was seen by residents of the district, who have formed a vigilance committee to protect "man's best friend."

The dead dogs included a Boston terrier valued at $200, two $300 airdales and a $300 police dog.

FIGHT BREWING ON 'SHELVING' OF MAIL CHIEF

Leaders in Capital Oppose Removal of Palmer Here As Postal Superintendent

(Special Dispatch to Sun-Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, March 5.—War clouds are hovering today as a result of the proposed immediate "shelving" of L. E. Palmer, postoffice veteran, due to retire August 1, as Pittsburgh's superintendent of mails.

Western Pennsylvania leaders at the Capital are figuratively camping on the doorstep of Arch Coleman, first assistant postmaster-general, who is out of the city until tomorrow.

The proposed change, arranged in Pittsburgh and withheld from announcement after complicated opposition developed, would make Mr. Palmer, believed the oldest man in years and in point of service still active in the postoffice, an "advisory superintendent of mails," and T. G. Cruse, present assistant superintendent of mails in charge of carriers, a "temporary" or "acting superintendent." It is understood that one of Mr. Cruse's assistants, National President Folger, of the Postoffice Supervisors' Association, would be given Cruse's desk.

PLANNED IN CAPITAL

Mr. Cruse for a short time was superintendent of mails at Pittsburgh under the last Democratic administration, when Guffey was postmaster. First Assistant Coleman was in Pittsburgh last week for the Pittsburgh Postoffice Supervisors' banquet and it was reported that the announcement of the change, thought to be without precedent, inasmuch as Mr. Palmer must retire August 1, was to be made at that time.

Evidently Pittsburgh leaders prevailed upon Mr. Coleman to reconsider the change and no action was taken. Although the details of the case were patently worked out by a deputation of five postoffice inspectors who have been in Pittsburgh since last fall standardizing and economizing the service, it is believed that it was all planned in the Postoffice Department here.

The entire affair is closely dovetailed with the uncertainty over Pittsburgh's next postmaster, due to take office this summer. Postmaster Gosser, although beyond the retirement age, may become a candidate for re-appointment by virtue of a bill now in Congress. There is a movement under way for Michael Shortley, Pittsburgh war veteran's leader, while Assistant Postmaster J. B. Anderson and L. L. Hill, assistant superintendent of mails and former superintendent of Wilkinsburg branch, also have been mentioned.

OFFICIALS HERE SILENT

Pittsburgh postoffice officials today had nothing to say about the proposed change involving Mr. Palmer and Mr. Cruse.

Mr. Palmer, one of the outstanding postoffice men in the country and known to thousands of Pittsburgh business people, has several times been due for retirement because of age, but each time an extension was granted from Washington.

There was believed no possible chance for an extension after August 1.

Tailor-Type Dresses for Business Women

"Something to wear to the office," is the request of so many modern women. And since the office occupies at least one-third of her time, she wants something that is smart, fashionable and attractive . . . as well as conservative. Tailor-Type dresses are for such women, and these new models prove this contention.

For example, the dress illustrated, has the flaring, even-hemline skirt, the slightly fitted waist, and the lingerie touch at the neckline—all indications of its newness . . . and it is worn perfectly for business. Another jacket dress of pin-dotted silk reveals a short-sleeved frock with organdy collar and cuffs when the jacket is removed . . . a dress that considers a number of occasions. Prints, too, are highly favored among Tailor-Type dresses, and contribute several attractive models. Black, navy and brown are the predominating colors.

BRADDOCK FETE BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.—After a [illegible] House yesterday approved the bill by Representative Clyde Kelly of Braddock providing for the commemoration of the [illegible] seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battle of the Monongahela and authorizing the [illegible] official commission [illegible] the celebration. The [illegible] is schaduled next July at Braddock.

The commission will be composed of two members of the Senate, two members of the House and one person to be appointed by the President of the United States.

Representative F. H. LaGuardia, Republican, of New York, objected to the bill when it was brought up for consideration and wanted to know whether the proposed commission would involve any Federal appropriation. He charged that a similar commission appointed a few years ago in connection with the Sesqui-Centennial celebration at Philadelphia had entailed congressional appropriations which later were "squandered" by those in charge of the celebration.

The New York member withdrew his objections only after Representative Kelly, in charge of the measure, assured him that no appropriation would be asked for.

The Braddock member informed him expenditures incident to the celebration were to be raised largely by private subscription.

It will be the duty of the commission to cooperate with organizations and [illegible] now making plans for the anniversary of the famous battle which marked the beginning of [illegible] Washington's military experience. The battle was fought [illegible] and is popularly referred to in history as "Braddock's [illegible]."

15 PLANES BURN IN HANGAR FIRE

ATLANTA, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Damage estimated by firemen at slightly more than $140,000 was caused last night by a fire which destroyed a huge hangar at Candler Field, Atlanta's municipal airport, demolishing between 15 and 20 airplanes.

The hangar was owned by Beeland [illegible] pioneer aviation operator of the Southeast.

The fire was burning fiercely when it was first discovered. All telephone lines to the field were out of commission so that it was some hours before definite word of the blaze was brought to the city.

Fire fighters from the [illegible] [illegible] of Hapeville were hampered by poor water facilities at the field.

EX-GOVERNOR'S SON INDICTED

NELSON, Neb., March 5.—(AP)—George S. Aldrich, son of former Governor Aldrich of Nebraska, and Joseph Weir, former president of the State Bank of Superior, Neb., were named in two indictments returned by the Nuckolls County grand jury. The indictments charged the two men with making false entries on the bank's records and with accepting deposits after the bank became insolvent.

The bank was closed in 1927. Aldrich was cashier. Weir and Aldrich have not been apprehended. When last heard from Weir was in Colorado and Aldrich in California.

The two followed sled tracks and discovered the register at a farmer's home where it had been taken by two of the farmer's children, who discovered it abandoned on the coal bank.

TORIES BLAME LABOR REGIME

LONDON, March 5.—(AP.)—Conservative dissatisfaction, criticizing the "evasive and drifting policy" of the Labor Government in a strongly-worded motion of censure was laid on the table of the House of Commons.

The motion deplores the current trade depression and the increase in the figures of the unemployed, which it blames on the government's policy. It regrets the refusal of the government not only to extend the scope of imperial preference, but charges that this attitude has created widespread uncertainty and distress.

MRS. WOODBURY DIES IN FRANCE

BOSTON, March 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Josephine Curtis Woodbury died at Nice, France, it was learned here. She came into prominence here in 1880 as one of the early pioneers in the Christian Science movement. She wrote poems and articles for church publications.

She later came out in opposition to Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the movement of which she herself was an ardent exponent, and launched a campaign against her. As a result of her actions she was barred from the church. In 1896 she set up a magnificent home on Commonwealth avenue, where she was surrounded by pomp and a group of admirers.

The culmination of the difference between the two women brought Mrs. Woodbury international notoriety in 1899 when she sued Mrs. Eddy for $400,000 on grounds of criminal libel. She charged that Mrs. Eddy referred to her as the "Scarlet Woman of Bablyon." The court decided in favor of Mrs. Eddy.

Mrs. Woodbury in turn was sued on two occasions, once by her son, Curtis Palmer Woodbury, who claimed equity in the house his mother occupied, alleging he had surrendered his interest as the result of fraud and misrepresentation on his mother's part. The court decided against the son. The second suit was brought by the husband of one of Mrs. Woodbury's followers, who charged alienation of affections.

Cancer Patient Arriving by Air Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gertrude Edwins, brought here by airplane from Wenatchee, Wash., several weeks ago to receive the newly-discovered Coffey-Humber glandular extract experimental treatment for cancer, died yesterday at a hospital.

The dramatic flight and determined battle the women waged against the disease aroused the attention and sympathy of the Pacific Coast. Her husband, Irving Edwins, mortgaged his fruit ranch and staked all to bring his wife to San Francisco in the last desperate hope that the new treatment would save her life.

She received several injections of the extract and several blood transfusions and at first seemed to improve.

OFFICER KILLED IN WAR DRILL

LONDON, March 5.—(INS.)—Excess of zeal on the part of Esthonian military authorities in staging a drill in preparation for Communist disturbances expected tomorrow resulted today in the killing of an army officer and the wounding of several persons at Reval, capital of Esthonia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Riga.

A test alarm was sounded at 4 o'clock this morning, the dispatch said, summoning all soldiers to their posts and invoking a state of martial law. There apparently was a misunderstanding, and a sentry on duty at the Reval barracks shot and killed a major and wounded Gen. Juhan Torvand, chief of the general staff, when they failed to halt at his command.

As the public had not been informed of the test, reports spread that martial law had been declared in order to stamp out a plot against the government.

Weyler, Ex-U. S. Foe, In Critical Condition

MADRID, March 5.—(INS.)—The condition of General Valeriano Weyler, who is suffering from broncho-pneumonia, continued critical today. Premier Berenguer was among the visitors who came to the bedside of the 92-year-old veteran who led the Spanish forces in Cuba and the Philippines.

Dictator Through, Portrait Cast In Empty Jail

SARAGOSSA, Spain, March 4.—(AP.)—Former Premier Primo De Rivera is living quietly in Paris, but his enemies in Spain are still demonstrating against him.

The citizens of Ileuca, a village near here, marched in a body to the town hall, tore down a painting of the fallen dictator, and threw it into the village jail. Incidentally, the picture is the only occupant of the jail at present.

VET WINS WAR INSURANCE SUIT

BALTIMORE, March 5.—(AP.)—Wilbur R. Powers, a disabled World War veteran was awarded $10,000 here by a jury in the United States District Court in his suit against the government for war risk insurance. Judge William C. Colemen, before whom the case was tried, commended the verdict and thanked the jurors for their services.

Powers was a sergeant in the Three Hundred Eighty-eight Bakery Company of the Quartermaste Corps and claimed to be permanently and totally disabled as the result of tuberculosis contracted in the army.

The government through Amos W. W. Woodcock, United States District Attorney, contended the insurance had lapsed.

SENATORS CALL CHINA AID QUIZ

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(INS.)—John Barton Payne, head of the American Red Cross, and Dr. Chao Chu Wu, the Chinese minister, will appear before the Senate Agriculture Committee tomorrow to discuss the McMaster proposal for a gift of 25,000,000 bushels of whea to China, it was announced today. The McMaster plan is intended to remove the wheat surplus from the American market by relieving starvation in China.

Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, and Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde will be questioned by the committee Friday in connection with the Nye resolution, proposing an inquiry into the board's efforts to stabilize the grain markets. They will be asked whether the proposed inquiry would tend to embarrass farm relief activities.

Finds REM brings quick cough relief

FLORENCE DRUMMOND

The Drummond family of 1322 Watson Ave., St. Paul, Minn., enjoy good health at most times, but coughs do come their way occasionally. Mrs. Drummond, one time, was suffering from a bad cough when a kindly neighbor recommended REM. To Mrs. Drummond's delight, "REM relieved me almost at once and I've had a good word for it ever since." Later on when little Florence got a cough, what more natural than that her mother should remember her own happy experience with REM. And once again REM "made good" in the Drummond family. So it goes. When one member of a family once tries REM, it usually isn't long before it's the regular cough medicine for the whole household. Try it for yourself!

NBC ORCHESTRA TO GIVE THREE PROGRAMS FROM WCAE TONIGHT

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

SAM LANIN and his Ipana Troubadours will give three special programs from the WCAE studio tonight. The famous NBC unit, here for a few days' stopover, will entertain at 5, 6 and 10:45 o'clock.

Sue Baxter

[illegible] Baxter, blues singer [illegible] who established [illegible] Artists and Models and other plays will be KDKA's guest at 6:15. Sue is more than a stage artist. At the present time she is employed in Pittsburgh as an interior decorator. "Gone," one of her solos tonight, will be sung on the radio for the first time by special permission of the copyright owners.

Schubert's "Ave Maria" will be sung by Florence Macbeth, nightingale of the Chicago Civic Opera, during the Fast Freight program on WJAS at 8.

Robert H. Lucas, commissioner of Internal Revenue, will discuss "Taxation Without Vexation" WCAE at 10:30.

BERNIE ON NETWORK

Ben Bernie's Orchestra will give a network program from the studio of WCAE if present plans go through.

* * *

R. R. S. Mt. Lebanon—Virginia Farmer takes the feminine parts in "Real Folks."

Robert M. Thompson Jr., of WJAS, made a social call on the folks at WCAE yesterday. It's something rarely done.

Sally Goldstein, sister of Phil the boxer, has given up her diary because the announcers prowl about her desk too much.

OH BOYS!

After Jack and Tony entertained the Girls' Club recently the secretary reported 28 new members.

"Bud" Cooper is back at his old post of program director at KQV. Jack Buckheit has turned announcer. And Cal Mara's desk has been moved.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Fuse plugs for radio control panels are made up in red, purple and yellow to indicate amperage and when strung out in a row make quite a colorful impression. Operators call them "grasshoppers" because of a spring coil attached.

What?

That's the question that should interest every sufferer. The microscope tells a truthful story — the Laboratory tests are a matter of science—but what of THE TREATMENT? How soon can HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE be lowered to normal? Can the terrible pain of stomach troubles be relieved? Will the treatment stop the rheumatic pains racking the muscles and will the nerve-breaking insomnia yield? Will unsightly skin ailments disappear under treatment? Can the workingman and his family afford these treatments? All these questions find happy answers in the Health Service offered by this Institute.

WORK ALL DAY?
TIRED AT NIGHT?

MISS KAY CULHANE, one of Postal Telegraph's high-speed operators at their main cable offices in New York, says: "A good night's rest keeps me fresh and fit for my day's work. And I certainly do get it on that Deepsleep Mattress! From the minute I snuggle into it till I open my eyes in the morning, I am sound asleep as a baby!"

GO SEE IT, PLEASE! Feel it. Press it down with your hands. Sit down on it. Then have it in your own home and know the most comfortable night's rest you ever had.

The Deepsleep is dressed in beautifully patterned, long wearing materials, just as the Beautyrest is. In fact, there are just years upon years of springy, buoyant comfort in it because this new kind of mattress can't lump or form hollows.

Now . . . for less than a week's salary you can sleep luxuriously on a real Inner Coil Mattress

SPRINGY, BUOYANT COILS buried in soft upholstery! This luxurious new kind of mattress made by Simmons can never pack down like hair or cotton mattresses.

That's the reason why the Simmons Company have made a new mattress for people who work hard all day.

It's a real inner coil mattress . . . made with deep, soft, resilient springs . . . but priced so everybody in the United States can have one.

It's called the Deepsleep . . . and its name suggests how comfortable it is.

But to get the whole story, you really must see the mattress itself. Just ask for the Deepsleep. Press it down with your hands. Recline on it. You'll sink down as though you were resting on air.

And because the price is low don't think the Deepsleep is a "cheap" mattress! It costs only $23.00 . . . but Simmons are making them in tremendous quantities . . . and you share in these economies.

Go see it, please! Buy a Deepsleep . . . put it on a Simmons Deepsleep Box Spring or a Slumber King Spring. Stores that carry Simmons products have all on display. Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

SUMMON YOUNG IN BANK QUIZ

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—Governor Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, informed the House Banking Committee today that the rapid growth of group banking in the past two years had made it "extremely difficult" for the board to keep pace with the "recent developments and the present status of the whole matter."

Replying by letter to an invitation to give his views to the committee, Governor Young wrote that group, branch and chain banking "presents one of the most important and most difficult problems of our ever changing banking structure before the country at the present times."

Young probably will appear before the committee later.

John W. Pole, comptroller of the currency, was questioned today regarding the methods his office would employ in examining the various units of large branch banking systems.

The Modern way to stop a cold

Everywhere, today, Vapex is the first choice for colds. In England, on the Continent, in America. Because Vapex brings instant relief easily and pleasantly.

VAPEX
VAPEX

Put a drop of Vapex on your handkerchief and breathe the delightful vapor. Put a drop at each end of your pillow and sleep with a clear head. Waking or sleeping, you can breathe your cold away with Vapex. . . Vapex is economical too. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications . . . an average of only 2c apiece. And a single application keeps its strength all day or night. Ask your druggist for V-A-P-E-X in the trim, white box with the green triangle and do not accept a cheaper substitute. E. A GLORIFIED CLEAR SKIN

A CLEAR, smooth, lovely skin enhances personal attractiveness! Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. More happiness and friends may depend upon it.

Healthy skin is clear, smooth and lovely. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Rich, red, healthy blood nourishes the body and aids in protecting it against infection and disease.

Skin troubles and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

S.S.S.

©S.S.S. Co.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you will want to possess body power to clear up your skin.

S. S. S. will help Nature give you this power. Internal healthfulness will then reflect in your skin a natural loveliness—a skin glorified.

Millions of people have taken advantage of the wonderful medicinal properties in S. S. S. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, the body's power of resistance to infection and disease is raised. Your appetite should improve. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should sleep soundly. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

Take S. S. S. daily at mealtime. It promotes healthy body building. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the great blood tonic which is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

BOOSTS STATE WATERWAYS

HARRISBURG, March 5.—(AP)—Pennsylvania has facilities for becoming a waterway state of the first rank, but it has not taken advantage of all its possibilities and is "backward" in pressing its claims on the Federal government, J. Hampton Moore, former mayor of Philadelphia, said here last night at the annual dinner of the Pennsylvania Society. Moore is president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

"Due to inertia or lack of leadership," Moore said, "we are backward in other respects. We are falling off in the matter of employment due to consolidations and mergers of large enterprises, including banks, which have led us to talk in terms of stocks and bonds rather than in terms of employment and construction to keep our people happy and contented."

After discussing the value of Pennsylvania of waterways from Philadelphia across New Jersey to New York and from the Ohio river to Lake Erie, he said that the middle western states concentrated on contsruction of public works to increase their own prosperity. These states, he said, keep hammering away on these projects until they receive what they desire.

Girl to Invade Jungle Seeking Lost Tribe

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Ready to face poisoned arrows, deadly snakes and insects, Miss Elizabeth Steen, of San Jose, Cal., will sail from New York Saturday for the jungles of Brazil to find and study a "lost" tribe of Indians.

"I'm almost scared to death," she admitted. But she is determined to go on, she said, relying principally on the fact she is a woman, for protection from the savages. She will wear trousers, she said, but will drape an apron over them so there will be no mistake. An Indian guide and a Negro maid will accompany her.

POLAR WINTER ENDS MAWSON SURVEYS

Buffeted by Antarctic Gales, Party Reluctantly Leaves Base for Australia

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON

Commander of the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition

Radio via Sydney

S. S. DISCOVERY, Antarctica, March 5. Our plans have been cut short by the sudden descent of the Antarctic's true wintry conditions.

While safely anchored at Kerguelen Island, the gales raged for more than a week. Snow again clothed the hillsides which had been bare or green for several months past and the vegetation has assumed the autumnal tints of colorful reds and yellows mingling with green.

Day by day anxiously expecting a break in the weather we waited to continue our oceanographic work southward at least to the vicinity of Heard Island.

SUMMER PASSES

But we became reconciled to the fact that the brief respite which is summer in this region has gone and that the weather has relapsed into endless succession of winter storms.

The only prudent course in the circumstances was to return to lower latitudes. Accordingly last night we quitted Kerguelen Island and shaped our course direct for Australia.

The period of enforced detention was not altogether wasted for we were able to make contact with land from time to time and acquire new facts.

Capt. Davis and the ship's officers, Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Colbeck and Mr. Child have been able to prepare a useful plan of the harbor wherein the vessel found perfect protection from the hurricanes which swept down from the snowclad peaks which fronted upon us. This anchorage has not previously been surveyed in detail and it is probably one of the best and most useful in Kerguelen Island, hence the value of the present charting.

CHARTS FJORDS

At the same time Commander Moyes, our special survey officer, who has worked indefatigably throughout the cruise had been busy completing an addition to the charting of other portions of the intricate Fjord system of eastern parts of the island.

Our rambles ashore were rewarded with many interesting finds, among which was the discovery by Professor Fletcher of preglacial age marine fossil deposits, imbedded in the volcanic rock series. This find is of importance especially on account of its chronological value in determining the age of the world's period of volcanic activity.

Petrological interest arises from the location of Mount Wyville Thompson and several other spots or centers of volcanic activity wherein the rocks are of alkaline type. Everywhere we have observed this series postdates the calcic outpourings which are present at Kerguelen on a colossal scale.

LONDON, March 4.—(AP)—Speaking last night at a banquet of the Pilgrims Society in his honor, Sir Esme Howard, retiring British ambassador to Washington expressed his appreciation for his treatment during his term of service in the United States. He reiterated his belief on the durability of the friendship between England and America.

"Apart from the 'I'm Alone' case which was dealt with by my Canadian colleague, I think I can say that no really serious incident arose during my term of office which caused any bitterness or ill-feeling between the governments," he said.

14 KNOWN DEAD IN LANDSLIDE

FUNCHAL, Madeira, March 5.—(AP)—Sweeping down from a high rock hanging over the sea, a great landslide yesterday killed at least 14 persons, including several children. Directly underneath the cliff a carnival was in progress.

Scores of children were playing on the beach when the tons of rock slid down the cliff with a terrific roar and crashed upon the beach and in the sea. The violence and weight of the landslide caused such huge back waves along the beach that fishermen and washerwomen at Riberra, Vigario and Camara Lobos were carried into the water.

DENIES EX-KING PLANS DIVORCE

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Recent reports that Amanullah, former king of Afghanistan, intends to divorce Queen Sourya in an attempt to regain his throne, were characterized as "absolutely without foundation," by Sirdar Muhammad Yunus Khan, recently resigned charge d'affaires of the Afghan legation in London.

"It has not even entered the imagination of Amanyullah and Sourya to divorce each other," he told the Associated Press.

He declared that he based his statements on "reports just received from those close to Amanullah."

"The former king and queen are the best of friends, and I also want to deny rumors that Queen Sourya has embraced Catholicism," Yunus Khan said. "A letter which I have from Amanyulah's secretary denies her conversation to the Catholic faith and her intentions of conversion. Those rumors have arisen from the fact that Queen Sourya has Catholic friends. She is an intelligent person and has wide contacts—that is all."

Yunus Khan also belittled reports that Amanyullah has received offers of air equipment from the Soviets in an attempt to regain the throne which he lost early in 1929, following a revolution.

"The former king has no intention of seeking his throne at present and certainly not through foreign aid," he said.

"He knows that nobody can be forced upon Afghanistan as king with foreign assistance. The present king, Nadir Shah, has established his position. He had long been known to Afghanistan as its minister of war, and he is very popular."

Two Men Arrested In Postal Theft

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 5.—Ben Turpin, 26, and Wilbur King, 18, both of Uniontown, were committed to the county jail in default of $2,500 bond each on charges growing out of the robbery of the Fairbanks postoffice. They were arrested when they attempted to cash a check which police say was stolen from the office.

Child, 4, Burned As Clothes Ignite

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 5.—Betty Jean Miller, 4, daughter of George Miller, of Vestaburg, was burned seriously yesterday afternoon when her clothing ignited as she walked too near an open fire.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Semi-constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling her need of a tiny Calcium Wafer.

Calcium wafers work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are a septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny wafer of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium wafer.

TRY THIS THOROUGH TEST

A five day test should prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium Wafers, and the benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them for 10c. Or the family size 60c. Start this test today!

OLDER PEOPLE HAVE PROBLEMS

World's Tonic, Mr. B. F. Haag Says, Solved His Troubles.

"Older people who have worked hard all of their lives have problems younger folks never think about," said Mr. Haag, living at Butler, Pa., who is well along in the sixties. He says: "How to keep our strength and spirits up after we pass the middle of our manhood is quite a problem. I had always enjoyed good health and was as able to do a good day's work as a younger man until last summer. I felt the heat so much more than I ever had before that I knew something was wrong. Most old folks, you know, like warm weather. Then when winter rolled around I actually suffered. There were times when it did not seem that I would ever get warm again. I would go to bed and get colder and colder, until in the middle of the night I would wake up actually chilled, although I had on a big pile of bed clothing. I noticed at the same time that my appetite was failing. In fact, nothing I ate seemed to taste good. My stomach was off, for the first time in my life, and I belched gas and had a bad taste in my mouth. I noticed that I was becoming very constipated, too. I took medicine for this. It gave me relief for a day or two, and then I felt worse. Finally I lost all ambition to work, and was content to sit around my son's fire last winter because I could not get warm enough to feel comfortable.

"My boy had read so much about so many people having catarrh in this climate so he brought home a bottle of World's Tonic, thinking it might help me. We all thought my troubles were the result of age, and could not be helped, but the boy said if any medicine would make dad feel a little better it was worth the price. Well, sir, the World's Tonic did a great deal more than that. It cleared up my stomach, set my bowels to working right, relieved a kidney and bladder trouble that worried me, and made me feel so good that I went back to my old job and can handle it as well as any younger man. I eat what I want, sleep like a baby, am free from pains and aches, and do a good day's work with pleasure. All ailing people certainly need World's Tonic." This valuable medicine can be obtained at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or at any other first class drug store. (A-58)

SHIPPERS PLAN FIGHT ON RATE BOOST

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

A FEW days ago we wrote a piece for the paper in which we said that the Pitt Weekly was a good college newspaper. In giving the names of the editors of the paper we overlooked two—J. Leonard Solomon, the associate editor, and Sidney H. Eiges, the news editor. This was a particularly stupid oversight, inasmuch as Solomon and Eiges are two of the most important cogs in, if we must coin a metaphor, the wheel.

W. O. Breckon knows the youngest generation. He takes pictures of children and he reports that the most obstreperous youngsters are the six and seven-year-olds. This year's crop, Mr. Breckon is glad to announce, is a healthy, active lot, if hard to handle.

Nine out of ten mothers invariably inform Mr. Breckon that their offspring simply refuse to be photographed. But Mr. Breckon tries cajolery, sarcasm or praise and gets his young man.

Mr. Breckon tells of the five-year-old boy who was won over to the camera a few days ago after flatly refusing to look at the birdie.

"I suppose," Mr. Breckon tried to gain the young man's favor, "you'll be a ballplayer when you grow up."

"Naw."

"Maybe you want to be a football player."

"Naw."

"Well, I'll bet, then, that you're going to be another Lindy."

"I don't know, the five-year-old young man doubted, "I've only been up three times."

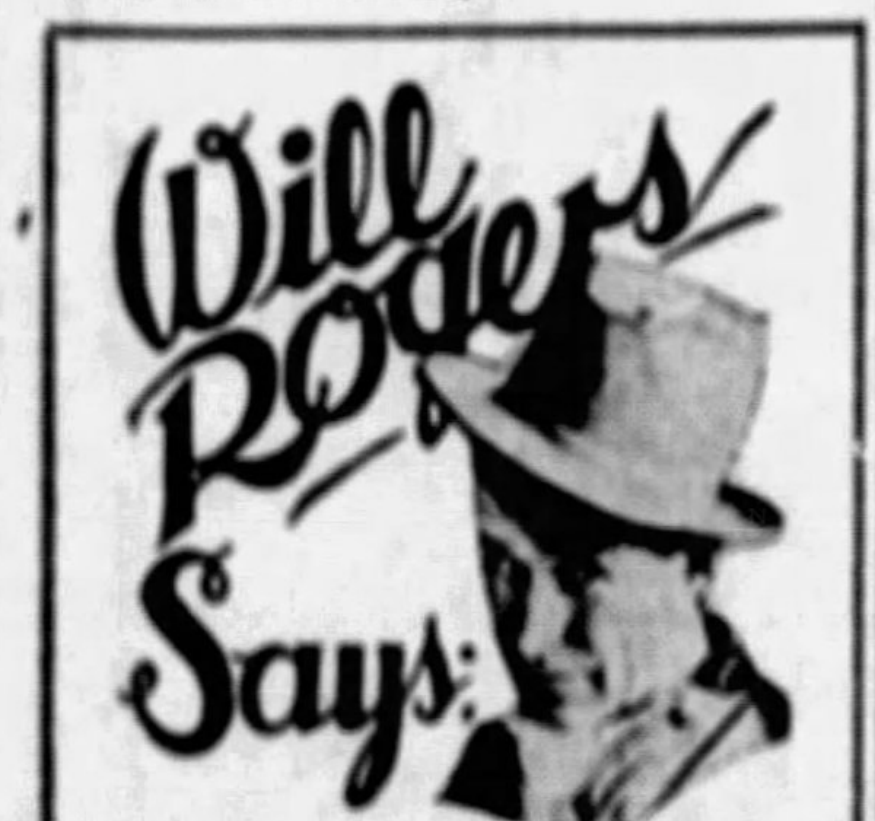
MOST auction sales today offer you barking auctioneers, cheap jewelry and what-nots, which is a decided contrast with the auctions of 1850. In rummaging through newspapers Mrs. L. P. Headlee, of the East End, found this notice of sale:

"To whom it may concern:

"Having sold my farm and intending to move to Missouri, I will sell at public sale, one mile west and four miles south of Harrisburg, Ky., on Saturday, September 26, 1850, the following property to wit:

"One buck Negro, 25 years old, weight 210 pounds; four Negro wenches from 18 to 24 years old; three Negro boys, 6 years old, 13 hoes, one pine sled, six yoke oxen well broken; 10 ox yokes with hickory bows, two ox carts with six tires, one saddle pony, 5 years old; one side saddle, eight doubleshovel plows, 10 and 12 inches; 25 one-gallon jugs of whisky, 100 gallons of apple cider, one barrel good sorgum, two barrels soap, one good Negro whip and two tons of 2-year-old tobacco. Terms, cash. I need the money."

Will Rogers Says:



GLOBE, Ariz., March 5.

WELL, Calvin did a mighty fine job of dedicating here yesterday. He made a dam good speech favoring dams. Said he didn't want to come at first, "but that finally President Hoover asked him to come." He naturally couldn't refuse Mr. Hoover, for in a few years they might be opening a Hoover dam and he might want to ask Mr. Hoover to go and dedicate it. He dedicated the bridge to religion. A very beautiful thought and appropriate at this very time. For here is Russia with twice our natural resources, three times our size bending every government energy to throttle all religion.

All you have to do is look at the two countries and see who's policy is the best. A peculiar thing about the dam that you may not read in your dispatches, is that the dam is built on the lower side of the Apache Indian Reservation, and the water is all to be used by the Pima tribe and the whites.

In fact, they moved the Apaches out of the very valley where the water is backed up in, and moved them ten miles up above. The only way the Apaches can ever get any good out of the dam is for somebody to invent a way for water to run uphill, and then they wonder why Apaches are wild. One ceremony reminded me of a blindfold tobacco ad test. Mr. Coolidge and an Apache chief and a Pima chief all took a whiff from the same pipe. The Indians didn't bat an eye, but Calvin coughed over a carload's worth.

The dam will open up one million acres of new land, and there is one million farmers starving to death all over our country on farm that's already open, so it all depends on where you live, as to how you look at it.

Yours,
WILL.

PUMP STATION PLAN DELAYED

The project for replacing the Brilliant Pumping Station has been postponed by Council until later in the year.

Meanwhile the members authorized the construction of one electric pumping unit to cost not more than $50,000 to care for any possible emergency that might arise.

Director of Public Safety Edward G. Lang has expressed alarm over the condition of the station, which feeds water to East Liberty, Squirrel Hill, Oakland, the Hill district, Downtown and other sections of the city.

EQUIPMENT FAULTY

One and one-half years is the estimated life of the present structure, according to James Kennon, chief engineer of the Bureau of Water, who told Council yesterday that the pumping units are in bad shape.

"If we replace the pumping units can we put them in the same building? Is it in good shape?" asked Councilman Robert J. Alderdice.

"No," said Kennon, "The superstructure is bad and the pumps are in bad condition. So are the stokers and boilers."

$50,000 FOR UNIT

Councilman John S. Herron remarked that not long ago he had seen new boilers installed. Kennon informed them that the boilers were not new but were taken there from the Ross station to meet an emergency.

It developed that the new unit could be constructed for about $50,000 and moved to a new station, if built, at the loss of about $5,000 or $10,000 for foundations and general work. Kennon said the final plan is for six electrified pumping units to replace old and overworked equipment.

Architects Delay Exhibition of Work

The exhibition of the work of architects, which was to be held in the Chamber of Commerce from March 17 to 22, has been postponed until April 8 to 12, it was announced today. Lack of time to arrange for a jury of building designers is given as the reason for the delay by C. J. Palmgreen, chairman of the subcommittee of the Architect's Council of the Chamber.

Three hundred designers of the Pittsburgh district who are eligible to display their work in the exhibition were notified of the postponement in notices sent out by Donald Howard, secretary of the Council.

City to Pay $1,500 For Kenna Steps

The city will pay $1,500 for the steps on Brosius alley, to be erected by the gasoline station owned by Edward M. Kenna, county road superintendent. The wall of the station blocks part of the alley.

The funds for the steps will be taken from the code fund for boardwalks and steps. Councilman John S. Herron moved that the steps plan, presented by Director of Public Safety Edward G. Lang, be approved. There were no dissenting votes.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Group of Washington Boys Revel in Mischief

CHAPTER I.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School on Massachusetts avenue. Here, the Gang was recruited, and here, each day after school, it went into a huddle, to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of Presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments, and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the Gang, however, either remained unknown, or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt; some there were, securely hidden, even from them.

The arrival of the son of the President of the United States in our dingy, red-brick, public school, occasioned an undeniable flurry among a class of some fifty-odd youngsters who watched with hopeful scrutiny for signs of his being snobbish and stuck-up. But soon we learned that Quentin was like his father, and had the same qualities of enthusiasm, swift anger, quick forgiveness, explosive speech, frankness, aggressive leadership, imagination. His little body fairly quivered with impetuosity. His tow head was always mussed, his tie coming untied, his clothes being torn, his stockings refusing to stay up. His head seemed too large for his body. He was as irrepressible mentally, as he was physically, and, either way, there was no holding him down or back. He was active, alert, eager, bubbling over with ideas, strange words, humour, and deeply-seated sentiment.

The Gang

Recognized When Passed Upon by White House

For a long time the Gang was unofficial and did not become a recognized fact until its individual membership had been passed upon by the White House. The finally accredited members were as follows: first, in order of size, was Charles Taft, "Taffy," later, to occupy Quentin's position as White House host. Charlie was remarkable for his calmness, slowness to anger, good humour, and steadfast determination when roused. Bromley Seeley, tow-headed, with fervid enthusiasm and force, had an honest infectious laugh which, quite often, was the best announcement for blocks away of the presence of the Gang. He was rather startling to us at first, because of his apparent lack of eyebrows—a few paces away, they could hardly be seen, against the tan of his forehead. Later, Brom was to show us the highest example, of which a manly boy is capable, fortitude and courage, in illness.

Dick Chew was called "Sailor," because his name suggested to us that he should be chewing tobacco—which he did, once, out of bravado, and then repented of, bitterly and with tears. I remember, distinctly, the size and uncountable number of his freckles. Edward Stead—called both "Bedstead" and "Slats"—was wiry, and active enough to be used as the entering wedge, into many almost inaccessible places. Walker White, grandson of General Horatio G. Gibson, was the smallest of our number. Usually appearing with his round head closely clipped, he compensated for his lack of size, by an unusually quick pick-up, and sustained speed and stamina. There were others—on and off. Boys forget, names mean nothing, action everything.

The President

Roosevelt's Presence Has Strange Effect on Boys

TR, the most active member of the Gang, was too well known to require describing—except as we boys saw him. In the beginning of things, the appearance of the President among them, gave the gang queer sensations, in the pits of their stomachs. He would bear down upon us, with his great barrel-chest advancing ahead of him, ready, as we thought to burst right through the front of his shirt. The famous face, teeth, eyeglasses and black cords made but little impression upon us, compared to that created by that tremendous chest. When he left us, we would stare at the amazing thickness of his girth, and the two buttons of his frock-coat set directly in the middle of his back. He was thick right through, and we knew it to be muscle.

In the days of our early encounters, it would take some minutes for us to really feel at ease with him. There can be no question, I think, but that we stood a little in awe of him—not of his position, but of the man. Yet it was not long before this restraint wore away and we grew to know him better. Like the multitude that admired him from afar, we called him TR. This was not a gesture of familiarity; it was not a nickname; we felt he had been given a title, but one man in the world could ever hold. His active hustling, his bursts of laughter, made us forget anything else about him, in the fun we were having ourselves. One can imagine the impetus a mind like TR's could have on anybody; its effect upon a small boy was almost electrifying. It is a curious fact that, after being with him for any length of time, we would break out into unreasoning anger, among ourselves, and proceed to sulk, or to fight, or to perpetrate some heinous crime.

Mischief

Boys Stick Spitballs on Jackson's Portrait

The first "crime" I remember was directed towards Andrew Jackson, towards his portrait, rather, which hung in the upper hall. Some very fine shots had been made with spitballs, and very soon Old Hickory was so covered with them that we dragged a chair under the portrait to arrange the wet lumps in designs—three on his forehead, "like an Arabian dancer," Quentin said, and one on the lobe of either ear. A poultice of masticated newspaper was set upon the end of his nose, "to scare the flies away," and a gob over each of the buttons on his coat. When he was finished Andrew presented a startling appearance, and we were very proud of our handiwork. But we soon forgot it, in quest of some more boisterous and active adventure.

That night, however, in the coolness of White House sheets—we had been invited to spend the night—our first exhausted drowsiness was broken by the apparition of TR pulling Q from the bed and; without the slightest explanation, disappearing with him into the ominous stillness of an otherwise sleeping mansion.

When Q returned, he wore a courageous grin but otherwise, was much subdued. He reported briefly, that he, personally, had taken down every spitball from the painted effigy of President Jackson, but refrained from mentioning the obvious—that he had done so at TR's command, and under his watchful eye.

Justice

Members of Gang Found Guilty and Sentenced

In the morning Q led us before TR, who stood sternly before the portrait, rubbing his glasses vigorously with a handkerchief.

"Who stuck on the first spitball?" he asked fiercely.

Quentin, Charlie and Dick all voiced confession together. "Impossible!" TR said, his voice ringing harshly down the hall. "It's all very sporting to try to take the blame from one another but I—want—the—truth!"

"I think I did," Quentin said.

"You think!"

"Yessir——"

"I—I—(he pronounced it "Aiee") don't like this!" TR said. "There is some uncertainty, some reluctance. Here is a case for trial. Oyez! Oyez! This Honorable Court——"

An usher came down the hall with a message for the President. He grinned at all of us, especially at Andrew Jackson.

"Later, later——" said TR impatiently. "Tell him that I'm dispensing justice——"

The President sat in the armchair directly under the portrait. "Now, the truth of this," he demanded. "Just imagine how I would feel, if you rowdies, gangsters, villains, threw spitballs at my portrait!"

This amused Quentin vastly. "You wouldn't mind a bit," he

G. A. R. Veterans Object To Memorial Changes

Proposed changes that are to be made to the Civil War memorial when it is moved from Monument Hill to West Park, North Side, will be protested by members of the Allegheny County G. A. R., it was said today. The few surviving veterans want the memorial unchanged, according to R. N. Spohn, president of the organization.

Mr. Spohn declared the plans as proposed would spoil the artistic effect and would not represent the original intention of the memorial. Last spring the veterans passed favorably on several changes when the matter was brought before the city art commission, George M. Baird, executive secretary of the commission, said.

Mr. Baird stated the plans are only to adapt the monument to its new cite. All essential features would be retained and it would be composed of the same material. However, the veterans say they want the statue just as it was in 1870. The matter will be discussed at a meeting of the veterans in Memorial Hall March 22.

MEETING SET IN CHAMBER MARCH 12

Iron and Steel Producers And Consumers to Study Raise Proposed by I. C. C.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's proposed increase in freight rates and their effect on iron and steel shipments in this district will be studied by producers and consumers of manufactured iron and steel articles in this district at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, March 12.

Donald O. Moore, manager of the Chamber's Traffic Division, has called the meeting to study the effect on local shipments under the proposed rate increase which will go into effect May 20. The question of filing a protest against the new rates will be brought up by business men at the meeting. The new rates will mean increases from six and a half mills to nearly five cents per hundred pounds on carload shipments.

CLAIM DISADVANTAGE

The new rate structure is part of the readjustment ordered by the Commission in the iron and steel rate investigation in Eastern territory, and was prescribed so that discrimination now existing between the several steel-producing districts and common markets would be removed.

"At the hearing before Commissioner Johnston B. Campbell held in Pittsburgh several years ago," said Moore, "testimony was presented by a large Pittsburgh shipper concerning the rates within the Pittsburgh industrial district in which the commission was urged to leave the rates therein, as well as in other short haul districts, to negotiations between the shippers and carriers in the respective districts. In the Chicago district, with a large area subject to switching rates which are not involved in the iron and steel mileage scale, no increases are contemplated, and it is contended that Pittsburgh district manufacturers will be placed at a disadvantage with competitors located in the Chicago switching zone."

BIG INCREASES SHOWN

Under the proposed scale, shipments of iron and steel articles from Pittsburgh to Aliquippa, a distance of 19 miles, will be 8 cents per hundred pounds instead of the present 3.5 cents, or an increase of 128 per cent, according to a statement showing comparisons in the rate structure, issued by Moore. On a shipment from Homestead into Pittsburgh, a distance of seven rail miles, the tariff will be 6.5 cents per 100 pounds instead of the present 2.9 cents.

ENFORCEMENT HERE STUDIED

Attorney Harold D. Jones, of Washington, an assistant to the Attorney General, and Lester A. Twig, field officer of the prohibition bureau, are making a survey of the ramifications of "dry" enforcement work in this district, in anticipation of the transfer of the prohibition work to the Department of Justice.

They are one of six teams sent from Washington to make surveys. The two visitors spent considerable time yesterday at the office of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham. They also went to the prohibition headquarters where they conferred with Administrator John D. Pennington and other officials. A visit was made to the warehouse on Allen avenue where confiscated liquor is stored pending trials of persons from whom it was seized.

PRIZE WINNERS IN LOVEJOY CONTEST

Entire Sun-Telegraph Reading Area Covered; Many Awards Doubled

One of the most difficult tasks that ever confronted a set of judges in a newspaper contest was that of selecting the best letters on "How to Hold Your Wife" and "How to Hold Your Husband" in the "Lovejoy" letter-writing contest recently conducted by the Sun-Telegraph.

In the thousands of letters submitted, there were no two that expressed an identically like opinion from either the feminine or masculine readers of this newspaper, and the suggestions throughout these letters were as diversified as the complex of the human race.

The great majority of writers treated the subject involved with intense seriousness. Many of the letters were narrative of the actual experiences in either happy or unhappy marriages. Some opposed divorce as the outlet for unhappy marriages—others claimed divorce as the only solution of the problem.

ENTIRE AREA COVERED

The prize winners represented the entire reading area that the Sun-Telegraph reaches—some of the prizes were awarded to readers who are subscribers by mail. Two hundred and fifty dollars in cash prizes were divided into two divisions. One hundred and twenty-five dollars has been awarded to the winning letters on "How to Hold Your Husband" and the same amount for the masculine readers who discussed "How to Hold Your Wife." These two sums were divided in each class as follows: First prize, $50.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $10.00; eight prizes of $5.00 each.

A provision was made by which any contestant winning a prize is entitled to double the amount if he or she is a regular home delivery subscriber to the Sun-Telegraph. There are several instances where double prizes have been awarded by the judges, as noted in the following list of prize winners:

HELEN MOSELY DREWERY

HEIRESS POSES AS MODEL

To pose in life classes at art schools or to live a life of ease and social security in Richmond, Va., stronghold of the old South?

That is the question Helen Mosely Drewery answered six years ago when she became an artist's model. Today she abides by her decision.

Miss Drewery is in Pittsburgh on a short contract to pose for life classes at Carnegie Tech. Since she broke away from the aristocratic traditions of her home life in Richmond, she has risen, it is said, to the top of her field.

Many, many years ago, her great-grandfather made a fortune in Richmond. His son and his son's child were to have the interest during their lifetime.

Miss Drewery broke away from the old conventions six years ago. She says that her uncle, Edward Valentine, sculptor of Richmond and Washington, suggested that she become a model.

When her mother dies, Miss Drewery says, she will come into the fortune. Meanwhile, she appears in theaters, store windows, cabarets in many towns, as a sideline. She will be at Carnegie Tech for about a month, she says.

ASH WEDNESDAY OPENS PERIOD OF FASTING

Catholics Celebrate Mass, Seasonable Worship Held By Protestant Churches

Churches of Pittsburgh were to begin their observance of the Lenten season today, Ash Wednesday. With the advent of Lent thousands of Pittsburghers began the 40-day period of fasting and sacrifice.

Observation of the period of self-denial and worship will continue until Saturday noon, April 19. Easter Sunday, April 20, will find the churches celebrating the Resurrection, the cleansing of the Christian world.

Masses will be celebrated in all the Catholic churches of the Pittsburgh diocese today, following which the traditional application of the ashes will be observed. The first of a series of Wednesday night Lenten sermons, will be given tonight in nearly every church.

Also a day of abstinence, today begins the period of penitence which concludes at noon Easter Saturday.

Pittsburgh Episcopalians will observe the seasonal fast by frequent Holy Communions, daily services, and religious talks on Christian philosophy and history. Trinity Cathedral will have regular noon services, with visiting preachers speaking. Many other churches of the sect will observe the season in like manner.

Lutheran congregations will likewise engage in a period of more frequent worship and abstention. Holy communion will be given more frequently during the Lenten period, with special fasts on Maundy Thursday and Good Friday.

LIBERTY RAMP PACT VOIDED

The agreement between the city and county for the construction of a ramp along Horace street connecting the Boulevard of the Allies and the Liberty Bridge approach, whereby the county assumed the cost of construction and property damage, was declared void in Common Pleas Court. An opinion by Judges Joseph M. Swearingen and Thomas J. Ford held that the city and county are without power to make such a contract.

The opinion was given in a suit by the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse and Transfer Company, owner of property in the area between the Liberty Bridge approach and Pennsylvania Railroad, condemned for the approach. The county and city, county commissioners, Mayor Charles H. Kline, Council and city officials, and the John F. Casey Company, awarded the ramp contract, were named as defendants. The court granted the warehouse company an injunction restraining the Casey company from entry upon the property to do the work and restraining the commissioners and county controller for paying county funds under the contract.

AVIATRIX ACE HAS CLASS

Future fliers, managers of flying fields and the affiliated air businesses will not be in sole control of men, at least.

Not if Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, ace woman flier, can help it.

Besides her own flying, her writing, her variuos home-keeping and social activities, the woman who won the national cross-country air race last summer is spending two evenings a week at the University of Pittsburgh.

There she teaches the business and layout of airports, and assists in solving the motor or other difficulties that young womn students are curious about.

She has a class of six, all of whom she hopes to train fully in the newest transportation business of the world. She's taking them to meet a lot of real aviators at the Aero Ball, slated for Friday night.

"Every one of them will have an active flier as an escort. We mean business," Mrs. Thaden said.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Sued for $100,000 by the wife of the man with whom she has been friendly, Frances Williams, actress, replies that love cannot be stolen. What is your opinion of her contention?

MOLLIE FEINSTEIN, East End, secretary: "Love cannot be stolen if it is really there. Neither can it fade if it is true, no matter how many obstacles interfere. I, therefore, support Miss Williams in her contention. Of course, there are many men and women who believe they are in love but just can't resist doing a little 'cheating.' Those people do not know true love."

Miss Feinstein

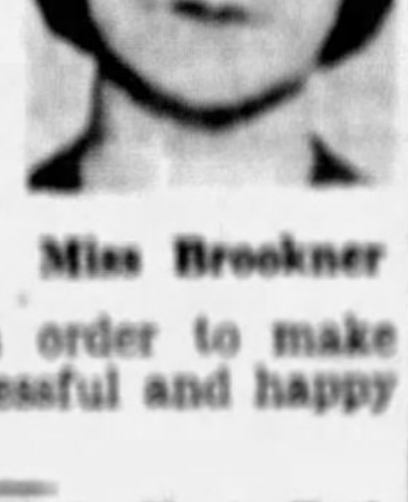
SALLY SCHEINBERG, East End, secretary: "Miss Williams is quite right. If a married man 'falls' for another woman he does not love his wife, even though he thinks he does. I am no authority on the subject of love, but I do know that state of mind and feelings of any description can't just simply be made to disappear. Love is like that. Real love is a steadfast and unchangeable thing."

Miss Scheinberg

SELMA SILVER, East End, stenographer: "I'm of the opinion that variety is the spice of life, but also believe that a love that can be stolen is not worth having. Before a man or woman marries he or she should be certain that love is present. Too many people dance into marriage at the first opportunity. These same people later appear in a divorce case, victims of 'stolen love.'"

Miss Silver

ESTHER BROOKNER, Herron Hill, sales lady: "Love, the most wonderful thing in the world, can not be stolen, cooled or killed. We often hear of couples saying they love each other but can't get along together. That's so much bunk. If a marriage is founded on love each of the parties will sacrifice for the other in order to make the union a successful and happy one."



Miss Brookner

LIBBYE ABOVITZ, East End, sales lady: "A clean, true love is one of a few precious things that remains where it is bred—in the heart. Reason tells us that a straight line is a straight line and cannot be made any straighter. The same holds with the right kind of love. Yes, I believe Miss Williams' contention to be true if she means a decent love."

Miss Abovitz

CECELIA BORDY, Midway, auditor: "In every divorce made public reading we hear of 'stolen love.' To me it is a big laugh. It should be 'change of whim.' If it could be proven that love is a changing or passing fancy what would become of of our grand old institution of marriage? They say everything that is fine in the world is based on love. I believe it, too, so Miss Williams' contention has my favor."

Mrs. Welsh sustained a fracture of the right arm, body bruises and suffered from shock. Authorities believed she was struck by a train.

Playing with the gun he pressed the trigger and the bullet went through Earlyne's right shoulder, according to police. The girl was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital and after receiving treatment was taken to her home.

SCOUT DISPLAY DRAWS THRONG

A steady parade of boys in khaki—the khaki of peace time—moved through Syria Mosque last night as the annual handicraft exposition of the Boy Scouts of Allegheny County had its opening.

Thousands of parents and guardians and sisters and brothers, visiting the 52 booths where the varied educational and physical activities of the Scout were on display, saw as well the symbol of the ethical nature of the organization. A pageant, "The Court of Honor," was presented in the auditorium, dramatizing chivalry, patriotism, reverence and strength. The pageant was directed by H. Vernon Porter.

The principal industrial concerns of the Pittsburgh district sponsored the educational exhibits, which ranged from safety to aero and electrical and mine displays. Scout troops did much of the work and assisted in illustrating the objectives.

Photography, agriculture, dairy, bee raising, humane activities and the varied crafts were included in the show. It opened at 7 and closed at 10 p. m. The show will continue until Saturday with night sessions, and a matinee Saturday at 1 o'clock.

State Federation Head Talks at Wilkinsburg Reciprocity Night

EVEN so important a thing as the presence of the State Federation president, Mrs. John A. Frick, of Allentown, was somewhat overshadowed for a few minutes last night at the reciprocity meeting held in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel by the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club. And what did the overshadowing was the music furnished by the Madrigal Club of the Wilkinsburg Senior High School.

These girls, a few more than a score of them, sang under the direction of Elizabeth Lawrence with a will and a unison and artistic harmony that lifts them far above the average high school chorus. But the solos of Miss Alice Long brought enthusiastic encomiums from every side. The good fairies must certainly have stood around this young woman's cradle, for she has looks, personality, charm and a voice of exceptional sweetness and beauty which she uses intelligently.

Mrs. Frick, introduced by Mrs. W. C. Graham, who presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. O. G. Leichliter, traced the club movement from its beginning back in 1833, when the Jacksonville (Ill.) Literary and Educational Society was formed, through the founding of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the Sorosis anniversary 30 years ago, up to the present time. She told a little of what the Federation is doing in its 125 activities among its 2,500,000 members today, of the theme of the present administration—enrichment and extension of community life—and urged international relation meetings in every club. She summed it all up with, "If the club women of the country are awake to their responsibilities and privileges and will take the program prepared for them by those at their head, will study the program and convert that study into intelligent action, the United States will take its rightful place as leader among the nations of the world."

Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, first vice president of the state and motion picture chairman of the General Federation; Mrs. John M. Phillips, state chairman of the home, and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, state chairman of education, were also introduced and spoke briefly.

Mrs. Frick was honor guest at a reception following the meeting and at a dinner given by the executive board of the hostess club preceding the meeting.

Members of all the women's organizations of the borough were present at the meeting and their presidents were in attendance at the dinner.

Today Mrs. Frick is the principal speaker at the southwestern district meeting of the State Federation in the Hotel Schenley and this evening she will be honored with a reception at the Duquesne Women's Civic Club.

ONE of the most interesting meetings the Woman's Literary Club of Bellevue has had this season was that held yesterday in the home of Mrs. A. H. Bowman and addressed by the Rev. James M. Ferguson, of the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church. Having traveled through Palestine, Mr. Ferguson's impressions on his subject, "The Holy Land," were his own. Both Jews and Christians have so idealized this favored land that the hurrying and uninformed tourist is apt to leave its hallowed hills and holy shrines very much disappointed and disillusioned, he said.

League Will Hear Talk On Blind

NOW that roaring March is giving a hint of its hidden lamb-like nature, one can begin to hope for spring again, and to take interest in the few, but interesting events of the month.

Today there'll be practically no social events since this is Ash Wednesday, the opening day of Lent. Of course there's the exhibit of paintings by Chris Walter at the Junior League Club rooms in the Clark Building. This exhibit, I might add, will be open to the public on Friday and Saturday.

League Guest

TOMORROW afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a number of the Leaguers interested in social work will meet in the club rooms to hear Mrs. Dorothy Harrison Eustis, of Tennessee, talk on the training of dogs as guides for the blind.

Tomorrow there'll be another event of great interest, the wedding of Louise Graff, daughter of Mrs. Henry Graff, of Sewickley, and Gifford King Wright. Last night the William McBrides entertained with a dinner for Louise and her fiance and tonight the Prescott L. Lyons will give a similar entertainment.

Friday night, may I remind you again, will be marked by the Aero Club's Birth of Aviation ball in the William Penn Hotel ballroom.

Bermuda Popular

HAMILTON, Bermuda, is another tropical city luring Pittsburgh wanderers. Mrs. William N. Frew, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins and her daughter, Elisabeth, are at the Princess Hamilton. And stopping at the same hotel are Miss Irene S. McKinney and Mrs. J. G. Roney, who usually spend a month in the late winter at the popular resort.

In between visits to the various resorts and in between sojourns at home many Pittsburgh folks stop over a few days in New York. Recent Gotham visitors were Mrs. Samuel Adams and her daughter, Miss Isabel Adams.

Spring Wedding

UNLESS it's news of a wedding I do not know of any bit of news that's more interesting than an engagement.

The very latest betrothal is that of Frances Jean Bakewell, daughter of the D. List Warners, of Stone House, Woodbrook, Baltimore, to Cyril Vernon Connolly, son of Maj. M. W. K. Connolly and Mrs. Connolly, of Lock Haven, Deepcut, Surrey, England. Mrs. Connolly is the daughter of Col. Edward Vernon, of Clontarf Castle, Dublin, Ireland, you might be interested in knowing.

Of course, Pittsburgh society folks know that Mrs. Warner was formerly Mrs. William M. Bakewell of Pittsburgh. Frances is the granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas H. Bakewell, of Pittsburgh and Daytona, Fla., and the niece of Donald C. Bakewell, of Sewickley.

Her fiance is a graduate of Eton and of Balliol College, Oxford University, and is the author of many English and French literary reviews.

Their marriage will take place in the spring and April 5 is the date.

Mask and Wig Club

PRINCETON TRIANGLE and Mask and Wig plays always are social events when they come to town. Christmas time always brings the Triangle players, and the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania will be here April 8. The Mask and Wiggers will present "John Faust, Ph. D.," at the Syria Mosque on that day. H. Stewart Dunn is the Pittsburgh chairman for the event.

MISS MARGARET SMITH, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith, has named her bridal party. She is to marry Malcolm R. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Taylor, of Baltimore, Md., on Saturday, in the Beechwood boulevard home of the Smiths. The Rev. Dr. Ralph McKenzie, pastor of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, will solemnize the marriage at 8 o'clock that evening.

The bride-elect has chosen her sister, Miss Lillian Smith, as her only attendant. John Seethers, of Detroit, will be the best man and the ushers are brothers of the bridegroom, R. Corbin Taylor and H. Leary Taylor, of Baltimore. Elizabeth Taylor, small niece of the bridegroom, will be train bearer.

The rehearsal dinner is to be given on Friday night in the Pittsburgh Golf Club by Miss Lillian Smith.

MRS. PATRICK HUGHES, of Bedford, Pa., announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Madeline Louise Hughes, to Dr. Martin James Hannigan, of Donora, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin James Hannigan, of Monessen, which took place on Thursday morning in St. Thomas' Catholic Church, with the Rev. C. L. McMinney, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. William E. Downes.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James P. Hughes, of Richmond, Va. Miss Beatrice Gill, of Pittsburgh, was maid of honor. Torrence P. Hannigan, of Cleveland, was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Dr. Paul Hutchinson, of Donora; Dr. James Hutchinson and Edward Nixon, of Monessen, and Edward Hughes, of Bedford.

Dr. Hannigan is a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

GREEK LINE INFLUENCES THE LATEST EVENING MODE

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syn., Inc.)

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 5—The Greek key opens the door to smartness. More than one famous house this season is showing gowns of pronounced Greek influence, and somehow the soft gracious lines of antique inspiration and modern design blend in beautifully with modernistic surroundings. The Greek influence is but a logical sequel to the tight high-waisted bodice and long, clinging skirt. The bandings about the bust are distinctly of Greek origin. It is something that should be eschewed by the very thin and of course the stouter type. But for a well moulded figure, it is ideal. So now those women who like to feel and look statuesque have their great chance to go classical.

IN ORDER to demonstrate that although Greek may be dead language it still has a good line, we show a model, which was sketched in the atelier of Capt. Molyneux, its designer. The lovely evening gown which is of heavy white georgette is quite obviously of antique Greek inspiration. The lines are very clinging, but are relieved on the bodice by the cape-like bolero and on the skirt by a trailing and circular flounce opening in front over the shorter foundation skirt. Embroidered bands of white silk in the effectively simple Greek key design further accent the classical note.

WE HAVE previously mentioned the popularity of crepe de chine as a medium for the more formal or afternoon frock. Especially is this so in the new collection shown by the house of Drecoll-Beer. The little frock is one of the admired frocks of this house. It is of heavy bright red crepe de chine. Both bodice and skirt are laid in horizontal folds and the scalloped flounce on the skirt is laid in box pleats, both are important "dressmaker" touches. The bertha, which is detachable and is scalloped in the same manner as the skirt, is worn as a cape.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

TO the Tec-Art Studio t'other eve to glimpse Lupe Velez in Henry King's outloud "Hell's Harbor." This the flick the company locationed in Florida to shoot in dreamy, all natural high tone for as-you-like-it scenery.

Lupe Velez

The photography is beautiful. The story, however, is reminiscent of days gone by, particularly the extravaganza finale. Lupe gives a fine performance of a role that flashes spitfire action but little subtlety. Which, of course, is not her fault. John Holland, the lead, plays a number of his scenes with his back to the camera but he gets a full shot or two. Jean Hersholt is splendid.

The majority of those packed into the preview room figured "Hell's Harbor" to be swell entertainment, so mebbe as a reviewer I'll stick to tatting.

LADIES' NIGHT

A FEW Sundays ago the Masquers Club chucked the doors wide and for the first time in the club's stag existence invited the ladies.

Among the sundry ladies to come was Mrs. Alan Hale. She arrived with her husband. She insisted upon seeing only one person before she departed.

TALKS DOCTOR DOWN

SEEMS when El Brendel was personal appearancing in St. Louis, he suffered a back injury. He traipsed to a physician. The medico placed him in a fluroscope, took a squint and announced nothing ailed him.

El Brendel

"Merely a little sprain," he said. "Everything will be all right."

"How much?" asked Brendel.

"Fifty dollars."

"Eh, isn't that a bit high?"

"Why, man," expostulated the doctor, "that machine cost me $10,000. This finder was $1,750, that apparatus over there $15,000, and the rest of the equipment $20,000."

"But listen," Brendel edged in, feebly, "I didn't tell you to buy it."

THAT BRIDGE GAME

EVELYN BRENT, Rita (Mickey) Flynn, Margaret Ettinger, Marquis Busby and ye scribe were partaking of nourishment at the Embassy. Mickey, for no apparent reason, ups with:

"Last night I played bridge and I held one hand that had a hundred honors in clubs and eighty in spades."

"And what," inquired Miss Ettinger, polite, "did you bid? Hearts?"

LINCOLN DREAMS

IN supervising the writing of the scenario for his film version of "Abraham Lincoln," D. W. Griffith prowled deep into the human interest archives of Lincoln's life. He found among other intriguing incidents that Lincoln was given to prophetic dreaming. Before each major victory of the Union army he would dream of a sailing ship, all canvas spread, flying picturesque across the sea. This fantasie recurred until Lee's surrender to Grant. Death likewise was signalized by a dream. Lincoln saw a soldier guarding a casket. Upon inquiring who was in it he learned that he had been assassinated. Scarcely a day later the President was shot by John Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theater, Washington, D. C.

Well, I'll be seeing you.

MUSIC SHOWS, STOCK PLAY ON STAGES NEXT WEEK

Alfred Goodman, who was for years the general musical director of all the Shubert attractions and who is recognized as one of the most brilliant musical conductors in American musical comedy, has organized a special band and orchestra of syncopated soloists, under his own direction, which will be seen as a feature of "Follow Thru," the newest musical show which Schwab and Mandel will present at the Alvin next week. Goodman is a composer as well as conductor. Many of his musical scores which made the reputation of the early Winter Garden shows were orchestrated by him.

"Vanity Fair," heralded as the latest of New York revues, will be seen at the Nixon next week. Heading the company of comedians, singers and dancers are Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield. Others in the company are Norma Gallo, last seen here with Clarke and McCullough; Dave Burns, Elaine Pring, Carl Byal, the Bower Twins and the English Tiller girls.

"The Cat and the Canary," announced for production by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater next week, and which enjoyed a two-year run in the National Theater, New York, was produced originally by 10 box-office boys, advance agents and theatrical managers who raised $6,200 to finance the play.

MUSIC
Cavalleria Rusticana
DAVIS THEATER

The revived Pittsburgh Civic Opera Company sang a performance of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" in the Davis Theater last night. A very patient and shivering, but good-natured audience remained throughout the music and was obviously satisfied when the flowers were passed to their favorites.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Guellemo Somma conducted a very lopsided orchestra. The soloists turned the tables and once or twice drowned out the accompaniment. The soloists were not only up to mark but sang their unperishable airs with fine spirit. Gemma Ottera Sac was a powerful "Santuzza" with voice of seeming unlimited range. Margherita Lange, a local contralto, did a most surprising "Lola"; she played the coquette with finesse and sang like a long experienced opera star. Elena Wilcox, another Pittsburgher, sang the few lines of "Mama Lucia" with warmth, but did not seem so much at home in costume.

Mario Valle, always a dependable star, helped the performance to pivot about his personality and good singing. Antonio Rossitto, whose work in former performances will be well remembered, sang a youthful "Turiddu." As heretofore with this company, it is pleasant to remember the work of the chorus, which is always dressed in taste. The scenery was simple but accurate.

Hindu Back In U. S.; To Teach Theosophy

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—Jeddu Krishnamurti, Hindu exponent of the Theosophist cult, came back to America yesterday on the liner Ile de France. He is bound for California, where he has a camp for those who wish to learn his philosophy.

Krishnamurti, commenting on his recent dissolution of the Theosophist "Order of the Star," said he feared the order would lead to organization of thought, sects, creeds and dogma, all of which he deplores.

BY WAY OF REPORT

THE controversy between Peggy Joyce and the colored singer at the Club Abbey who calls herself "Peggy Joyce" naturally irritates the internationally famous charmer, but her suit to restrain the other from using her name only gives her antagonist the publicity she seeks. It is an amazing bit of gall, of course, on the part of the night club entertainer, who is going to greater extremes to be as much like the original Peggy as possible. Not only has she bleached her hair blonde, but every night one of her shoulders is decorated by a flock of orchids.

"None for me," he retorted, "whisky gives me too much courage."

IN THIS DAY AND AGE!

AMONG other strange experiences is encountering a beautiful show girl who refuses to take advantage of a rich young marriageable fellow. The gal has been charming playgoers in "The International Revue" and the chap comes from one of the smarter Park Ave. tribes. Since the show opened out of town he has stage-doored her, and has showered her with costly posies and goodies. And almost every moment begs her to become his wife.

But she refuses, on the ground that he is too young to realize what he is doing (he is usually plastered, anyway) and because she doesn't believe she would fit in his set. The other night in a Broadway restaurant he again urged her to elope to Greenwich with him while a cab meter ticked away outside for hours. But she refused again. The other girls in the group told us she was crazy, considering how rich he is, and besides she lost her job that night and doesn't for the life of her know where next week's room rent is coming from.

SQUELCH

The author of a best-seller watched the rehearsals of the dramatization of his book, but he wore his high-hat at a saucy angle and refused to be civil to the cast, all of whom were crushed by his iced attitude. The snooty fellow even snubbed the director of the play and the backers and the producer. The night of the out-of-town opening, however, things were evened.

A dinner was being held for the troupe at a hotel after the show and the author was persuaded to attend. Then when the leading man got up to talk he sarcastically chirped: "Let's all drink to the author—the greatest actor of them all!"

Actor, Cheered by Job, Dies From Exposure

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—(AP)—Leo J. Christal, 42, once popular and wealthy actor, died yesterday of pneumonia after an illness of a few hours. Out of work since November, hence out of funds, he trudged through the rain Sunday to a hospital to tell Andrew Sears, fellow actor, that he at last had work again.

The exposure was too much for him.

Christal in 1918 inherited a Monterey County ranch and a fortune in cash. He made a settlement of $20,000 on first wife, Rose Marston, comedienne, at their divorce in 1914. His second wife, Mrs. Cora Christal, is living in Bridgeport, Conn. They separated a year ago. He also leaves two daughters by his first marriage.

Don't Judge a 'Siren' by Appearance, Is Fay King's Warning

NOT SO HARMLESS AS SHE LOOKS NOT SO DANGEROUS AS SHE LOOKS FAY KING

By FAY KING

IF SOME gossip tells a doting mother that her son is seen with a sleek haired siren who wears long glittery earrings and smokes cigarets in a jade holder, the poor soul would be in a great state of mind.

In her opinion her dear son would be as good as lost and headed for Hades.

Yet many of these dangerous looking sirens are not only perfectly harmless, but exceedingly good hearted, level headed and real when it comes to analysis.

Most of the "sirens" I have known, married good plain men, and are faithful wives, and good mothers.

Chickie Feels Twinge of Jealousy at Party

CHAPTER XXV.

SHE glanced uneasily down the long, white road. Just then a big open car, alive and blooming with color, with laughing faces, dashed toward them, coming to an abrupt halt across their path. The girl at the wheel thrust out a radiant brown head, bobbed, curled and now tossing in the breeze:

"Beg pardon. Do you happen to be Miss Bryce and Mr. Dunne? Well—then we're looking for you. Bess sent us down to put you on the right road. Follow us and wear diamonds!"

She switched the car recklessly. The five other girls, none of them past seventeen, laughed uproariously. The sound rippled like a gay banner flung open.

"They must be twins!" Chickie whispered in excitement.

"What! The whole wagon load of them!"

"Idiot! The two in front. They dash all over the country in that big car. It's their very own!"

"Ah—the curse of money descends upon us. Looks as though we're to have a merry time!"

The big car swerved down a road planted with poplars. The road continued for a quarter of a mile, winding upward over a great rolling slope, cool and dark with eucalyptus and oaks. It opened suddenly into a vast green bowl—an immense garden, with a magnificent stone house rising from a huge bulwark.

"You've arrived!" The bright, pert girl climbed down from the car. She was followed by another who was her image except that the other girl had a peeved, sophisticated attitude and smoked a cigaret with a look of incredible disgust.

"I'm Nance, good people! Allow me to present my dear twin, Marge. She's melancholy today—but 'twill pass!"

Marge, each eyelash standing forth and separate, her small, pretty mouth a dark crimson, flung a flaming orange scarf. She greeted Chickie and Barry with an indifferent nod.

Janina Present

Nance gave her a little shove, put her arm in Chickie's, saying with great chumminess: "Well—Bess told us about you both. Bess was so sorry she couldn't meet you, but a whole raft of people she didn't expect blew in on her. We're crowded to the room. Janka's here. She just got in. Don't you love Janka? She's so wicked! Marge is imitating her today. Doesn't she do it well?"

Marge cast her a look of vast, scornful pity: "Janka is as foolish as the rest of the world. I'm bored to extinction."

Barry Dunne pinched Chickie's arm. He said soberly: "Oh, I say, Marge, how long have you been a dweller on this tiresome little dot we call the earth?"

"Miss Abbot, if you please, Mr. Dunne!"

Nance uttered in delight: "Isn't she immense! But I'll tell you, Red—that's your name, isn't it?—she's been here two minutes longer than I—to be exact, sixteen years, one month and three days."

Marge reared her chin, walked off, too moody for anger. Nance called after her: "Honey, dear—now, don't take the car." She turned her back to her guests: "Well, what do you think of our harem site?"

"Is that what it is?"

"You wait and see! Janka christened it. She says we have it all over the Turks. Look—down there by the trees is the pool. Margie and I go swimming every morning." She added in Chickie's ear: "We swim a la naturelle! Oh wonderful! Want to come with us tomorrow?"

They passed up the terrace into a cool, broad hall with rugs and tall, high-back chairs. It opened on a court of flowers.

Meets Ila Moore

"Now, you go that way, Mr. Dunne. We put the fellows over there. Your door is second to the right. We fair ones are here. We'll see you anon."

He wasn't out of earshot when she said exuberantly to Chickie: "I like your sweetie! Isn't he gay! Marge is furious! Now, here."

A big room with French doors opened on a porch covered with vines. Red and white roses, the second bloom of the year, climbed in fragrant ladders to the roof. Nance, the irrepressible, squeezed Chickie's arm: "This is the Romeo and Juliet balcony." She glanced downward with a wink of impudent delight: "Easy enough crawling up or down. Isn't it!"

Chickie felt herself in a dream of soft beauty—all her senses quivered to the exquisite excitement. She almost said aloud: "Well—how in heaven's name did you land here, Helena Bryce!"

As they returned to the room a girl was standing at the bureau, carefully placing a net over her bright hair, beautifully smooth and close to her head. She was tall—a quiet sweetness in her manner—a girl several years older than Chickie.

When Nance saw her she dashed over and threw her arms about her neck: "Ila—honey angel! I didn't even know you were here!"

The girl laughed: "Nancy! Now, don't tell me you're in on the party."

"I like that!" She tossed the bobbed head with a brazen shrug. "Ila, old sweetie, what this baby doesn't know! Well, I'll leave you two honeys a moment, if you don't mind."

Ila turned with a quiet little twist of a smile. "Am I in my second childhood, I wonder?"

Chickie, thrilled to her finger tips, answered: "Isn't she the cutest thing?"

"Well, I can't get over it. I've been away three years and to see the twins on the verge of old age and Marge ready to get married. Swift lives we lead these days!"

Chickie combed out her hair. She stood at the bureau next to this Ila Moore; found the girl's deep, quiet eyes fixed on her with quizzical interest. "Turn your head that way again, Miss Bryce. Now look."

Friend of Barry's

Chickie was instantly struck by a resemblance between her face and Ila's. The older girl's was serene; Chickie's vivid and now all dashed with excited color. Chickie's hair was a purer gold and her eyes more heavily shadowed.

Ila said: "We look rather alike—only you're far prettier."

"No—you have a deeper look of beauty. That's not in me."

"I'm older. I'm very old. At least I feel so with all these infants of 15 and 16 smoking and flirting and marrying. I feel more like 50 than 25." She gave Chickie a sweet, candid look. "I like you, Miss Bryce."

They both started as some one knocked at the door. It was Barry calling: "Open it, Chickie! We'll have time for a walk."

He paused abruptly, giving Ila Moore a long, surprised glance of recognition. He came over and leaned on the bureau: "Ila! Of all things! I didn't expect to see you here!"

She put out her hand quietly, but her calm face was suddenly crimson. "Barry — how very strange!"

Chickie saw that bright flush on Ila Moore's quiet face. She felt all through her a vague quiver of alarm that sharpened like a little dagger going through her heart. She hadn't the courage to raise her eyes to Barry Dunne's face. She heard him say: "See you later, Ila"; heard herself adding: "I'm so glad we're to have the room together," but she was aware only of that hot, pointed thing which made even her breath giddy.

She said in a little strained voice as they walked through the garden: "Isn't she sweet? Do you think we look very much alike?"

Chickie Excited

They were in a narrow, secluded path beyond the pool where a weeping willow trailed its long, delicate vines in a green shower across their way. The fading yellow light moved through the lacy branches like a pale spirit reluctant to part.

"Look alike? Who do you mean?"

"Why, that Ila Moore and I."

"She looks like you!" He turned her around, looking down at her face and laughing. "Well—let me see. Open your pretty eyes."

His hands on her shoulders trembled, crossed down about her. A flush crept to his forehead. She moved toward him. She said with a little gulp, "Oh, Barry—don't—" but a thing within her shook out a thousand glad, demanding notes. When his lips touched hers she clasped her hands against him, motionless in the sweet tide of joy. They stared affrighted into each other's eyes.

He took her arm and ran her down the path: "Now — we've got to hurry."

The terrace about the house was now a bright, moving field of color. Girls in vivid sport clothes, men and boys in white flannels, sauntered about laughing. Snatches of song rose through the soft twilight and dropped like silver chimes.

Every now and then an automobile dashed up the driveway. Youths rollicked out, shouting gayly: "Here we are!" "Dinner ready?" "On with the dance!"

Chickie sped through the hall, stood quiet outside her door, hearing within Janina's clear, incisive voice and the graceful languor of Bess answering. She paused. She clenched her hand on the knob, shaking, afraid lest they should see the mad fluttering of her pulse, the blood leaping with such pain, such tumult to her face. She thought, trembling, "What shall I do? Oh, what am I to do now?"

Informal Dinner

Bess, very fragile and dark of eye, in a simple dress of white crepe, enlivened by a vivid string of ruby amber beads that reached half way to her knees, was just crossing the room.

"Don't think me an awful barbarian, Miss Bryce. Tell her I'm a sweet soul, Janka, love. But every one from far and near took a notion to swoop down on us this week. I hope there's food enough for all the wolves. Let's go to the table!"

"Don't worry about the garbage, Bess, my dear. But pity us if the well runs dry." There were two small glasses filled with a bright red cordial. Janina brought one to Chickie, and slipping her arm in hers, whispered with an admiring sigh: "Enjoying every little thing? You look excited. You look rapturous. You'll drive the poor boy mad. Ah—such is life!"

Chickie ran over to the bureau, dashed powder on her nose, on the bright stain of her cheeks. She pretended to wash her hands, letting the cold water run through her fingers. She wished that something chill-like would run through her veins.

Dinner was a most informal affair—quick, hilarious—half of the guests standing — half of them sitting—shouts across the table; laughter. Bess and Nance divided the honors as hostess.

Mrs. Abbot, Janina whispered, was in the city. In the company of her third husband she divided her time between her town house and his magnificent country domain. But she made it a point never to attend the week-end expressions of her children. She filled her life within her own demands. The three girls did likewise.

Youth Predominates

They had the run of the place. They crowded it each week-end with hectic throngs of girls and very young men. They dashed about the country in automobiles. They danced until the musicians rebelled.

Strains of an orchestra came now in a golden vibrance through the open doors. Couples rose automatically from the table, drifted like figures in a slow dream into the immense room adjoining.

Chickie sat next to Barry Dunne. But she didn't look at him. She was afraid and tremulous because of the disturbing sweetness vibrant like a living thing between them.

At her right was Janina's escort—the yellow-haired boy Chickie had met coming down the steps of the studio. He was drinking in with rapt ardor the murmurs of Janina's voice. They were oblivious of others.

Each couple was a unit. No one bothered to make the conversation general, no one bothered with any introductions. At the very end of the table Ila Moore, serene, beautiful in a dress of pale green, smiled at Chickie. Barry saw it and waved his hand.

"Let's dance," he said to Chickie.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

WE HAVE become sun-worshippers. Our great-grandmothers considered old Mister Sol their arch enemy. They wore veils and poke bonnets to ward off his kisses, and carried sunshades from early spring until late autumn. Freckles were curses, and now they are considered piquant blessings. Two good results of the change should be recorded; the benefits of the sun rays to depleted nerve forces and under-standard constitutions and the banishment of those flaying bleaches which deprived a woman of her complexin for weeks at a time, during which period she went into retirement.

After all these months of worry about the return of the wasp waist, there are no signs of tight lacing. Women are too well informed concerning the laws of health and hygiene to fall into that old folly. The lifted waistline has inspired many a femme to trim down her equator by regular exercise and that has been of benefit. During the day's activities arms and legs have sufficient exercise; it is the torso that needs tightened muscles and toned fibers.

A beautiful back is a rare beauty point. It must not be fat, neither should it reveal the hinges of the back bone. More than anything else it is necessary that it should be straight with a lovely inward curve at the waistline. Throwing the soulders or hips forward will ruin the most perfect back; a back isn't perfect unless the carriage is regal, the head held splendidly.

Lillian and Madge Agree on The Larches

OUR concerted exclamation of "The Larches!" broke the tension with which Lillian, reading, and I, listening, had considered Helena Brixton's letter, with its surprising news, with a grin Lillian held up her thumb.

"I'm too lazy to go through the old formula," she said, "and the only wish I have in mind I'd be ashamed to make."

"That Sam Brixton's temporary absence over Christmas becomes a permanent one," I suggested.

She nodded reluctantly.

"I know that's wicked and heathenish ——"

"And most natural," I finished. "I haven't any personal reason to distrust the man as you have, and yet I heartily echo your wish."

"I notice you do not say 'dislike' as well as 'distrust,'" she observed thoughtfully. "I wonder if that means you have the same feeling about him as I have."

"If you mean that you consider him a most engaging rogue and that you cannot help but admire his treatment of his wife and stepchildren, then I share your feelings," I returned. "But I do not think that we should ever relax our caution concerning him."

"That, of course," she said. "But I am surprised at my own reaction toward him since his visit to us. His half-brother affects me as might a cobra lifting its hood toward me. But Sam—since I have seen how happy he has made Helena and her children—I can't hold the same rancor against him that I used to have, although I distrust him as much as ever, and am far more comfortable when he isn't around."

"Do you think that there's any chance of his changing his mind and coming back for the holidays? It would make it rather awkward, wouldn't it—for Harry—and you?"

"I think Helena's letter sounds as if she were pretty certain of his movements," she replied. "But even if he does come back, I can't help it, and Harry will be reasonable, I know that. But don't you see, Madge, I can't refuse a request like that from so old a friend as Helena. It isn't as if she were alone with her children and was hinting for an invitation to the farmhouse ——"

"You know she would get it if you wished," I interrupted indignantly.

"No one knows that better than I, old dear," Lillian replied serenely, "but you wouldn't be permitted to give it. Christmas is sacred to the family when it can be managed. No, I'm not going to haul in anything about the Underwood interlopers, because we regard ourselves as part of the Graham family."

"You just saved yourself a switching," I told her, laughing, "and of course we must try to find her a place. I wonder if The Larches would be comfortable in the winter time. It only has been rented summers, you know."

"There's a heating plant, isn't there?"

"Yes, and it works, for Mrs. Ticer told me of their having to start it in the early fall because of the illness of that old nurse of Princess Olina's. But whether it would be sufficient for winter."

"You've forgotten your Christmases," Lillian retorted promptly. "You know how rarely it turns really cold on Long Island, and almost never until after the Christmas holidays. There are plenty of fireplaces in that house, too, and Helena will be the only person over 20 in it unless she gets old and rheumatic servants. And Helena is used to the Middle Western climate—much colder at Christmas time than that of Long Island. I think you'll find The Larches the best bet if you can get it for her."

"I agree with you," I said, "and I think I would better run down to the farm tomorrow and find out whether we can get hold of it, and all details concerning terms."

"Bravo! Efficiency Eddie!" she gibed, but there was appreciation and warm affection in the smile which accompanied the words. "I'd protest your putting yourself out, but I don't think a journey to the farm is ever a hardship to you."

"Not when my boy is at the other end of the journey," I said emphatically. "Now, what do you think I ought to offer the agent for the time she'll want it?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fight Diphtheria

MOST of us can remember how, only a few years ago, thousands of tiny tots were attacked by the dread disease diphtheria. It was tragic to see these little children succumb to this terrible malady. Parents and doctors had to stand by helpless, unable to cope with the situation.

DR COPELAND

Within 25 years there has come a great change. After much study and experiment, diphtheria antitoxin was found to be a success in the control of this disease. In New York City, during this period of time, the deaths have been reduced by 80 per cent and the number of cases has been decreased 30 per cent by the preventive methods which have been developed.

Within the last two years 48 special preventive clinics have been provided in the city by the Health Department. Competent child specialists are in attendance and treatments are given without charge.

It now has been found that toxin-antitoxin is a real preventive of this disease. Dr. William H. Park, director of the Bureau of Laboratories of the New York City Health Department, worked for many years on this problem. He should have the gratitude of every man, woman and child for the great work he has done in his research with the development of a real protection against diphtheria. Diphtheria is not now necessary.

To those parents of young children who have not received this simple protective treatment I would say that just as you prize the lives of your children you should not neglect seeing your local health authorities, or your own doctor, and have this treatment given your child.

We must go forward in our winning fight against this disease.

It is the little helpless tots from six to seven months old to children of 10 years of age who are most susceptible to this very contagious disease. It is said that about one-third of the children of New York City have not had this treatment and, of course, tens of thousands elsewhere.

The co-operation of every parent is needed to help wipe out this dread disease. We must carry on a crusade against ignorance and fear in handling this situation.

There is nothing to fear in this simple treatment. There is everything to fear in the disease itself. In this treatment there are no apparent after effects. If there is a temporary reaction it is slight and lasts only for a day or two. In young children there is no after effect or a very slight one in some cases.

For several years what is known as the "Schick Test" has been used and doctors have been able to locate the children, and grown-ups too, who are susceptible to diphtheria and who are likely to take the disease.

So we see what wonderful strides have been made for the protection of these little ones and of adults, too, who may be exposed to this dread disease. No parent should hesitate a moment to make the children immune from it. You should see your local health authorities, or your doctor, about this matter if you have a child who has not been made immune from diphtheria through the toxin-antitoxin treatment. Do it before it is too late.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

This Married Life

THE one long struggle of a man's life is getting his shoes off at night and on again in the morning; the one long struggle of a woman's is getting her complexion off at night and on again in the morning.

It is always possible to hold a husband by sex-appeal alone until he happens to meet another woman with a little more sex-appeal.

One reason for the success of Big Business in America is because the average man keeps his wife for a pet and turns to his business for a soul-companion. He is wedded to his work—and his wife is just a luxury.

In love a man is never content. Even when four out of every five women he meets falls in love with him it is always the fifth, who is indifferent, on whom he sets his heart.

When marriage was final a wife stood for a period in a man's life, but now she is more likely to be just a dash, a comma or a question mark.

A modern wife's way of keeping her husband safe from the gold-diggers is to spend all his money just a little faster than he makes it.

The only way that an average man can enjoy a formal party appears to be to drink enough of his host's liquor to make him forget that it IS a party.

Somehow the woman that a man marries is always as different from the kind he always INTENDED to marry as a pink and gold valentine from the book of psalms.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Attend by 'Proxy'

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A girl relative of my husband's is about to be married and we are invited to a miscellaneous bridal shower for her, a very formal affair to be held in a reception hall. It is some miles away and we are unable to go.

1. Is it necessary to send a gift and should I send it to her home?

2. Should a note accompany it?

READER.

IT is not necessary to send a gift to the shower, but you may do so with propriety if you wish. So much of the "giving" of a shower consists in presenting the gifts at the party itself that usually friends do not send gifts to showers when they cannot attend. However, if you wish to be represented by a gift, it is delightful, of course for you to send one. And if you do send one it is charming to accompany it with a little friendly note of good wishes.

In Bad Taste

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be one of my sister's bridesmaids, and I want to know if it is proper for me (being her sister) to give a shower for her? I was told that a sister or mother should never give a shower. Is that right?

IRENE.

CONSIDERING the nature of showers, it is usually not considered particularly good taste for a close relative to give a shower for the bride-to-be.

The White House Gang

said. "Besides, Andrew Jackson doesn't know—he's dead—"

"What? No. I suppose I really wouldn't mind. And you're right, of course, about Jackson's being dead; but how do you come by the information he doesn't know? You can't be sure of that, can you? Moreover, boys, this isn't your portrait—it belongs to the Government. You're very small shareholders in it—very small, indeed. In selecting a portrait as a target, however, he's better than a live president to sling things at, although the act is far more cowardly. And in the future, remember, you must not ——" And he read us a vigorous lecture on respect due to property, such as I shall never forget. The finding of the court was, "Guilty! Altogether guilty!" The sentence: "Quentin may not see any of his friends for one week. You are his friends, so you can't come to the White House for seven whole days." He left us abruptly, his teeth flashing under his moustache, and saying over his shoulder, as he went: "The truth! The truth! Next time, remember, be quicker with the truth!

A Casualty

For a moment, we stood in silence before Jackson's portrait. We felt the justice of the reproof and the weight of the punishment. Portraits, henceforth, were taboo. The affair of Old Hickory's picture is mentioned in a letter written by TR to Archie, April 11, 1908: "I explained to them (the Gang) that they had acted like boors; that it would have been a disgrace to have behaved so in any gentleman's house . . . They were four very sheepish small boys when I got through with them . . ."

Despite the President's rebuke, it was less a matter of behavior, than one of truth, and of our having partially evaded it, which really disturbed us. Although it was usually our habit and inclination, to tell the truth, we often found it necessary, at that time, to be sparing with its use. There was, for instance, the case of a running fight between the Americans and the Spanish, through the great hall of the living quarters on the second floor. Charlie, in the role of a Spaniard, stumbed over a chair, and was caught by Q, who stood over him brandishing a drawn sabre. This sabre, as Q had said a moment before, was a relic. He had been yelling, "Step up and see the i-d-e-n-t-i-c-a-l sword carried by Colonel Thee-a-dore Roos-e-velt in the capture of San Juan Hill! See it! Don't shove! Admission one nickel—five cents—only one twentieth of a dollah! Step up! Step up!" The sabre had a sharp cutting edge, and when Quentin flicked Charlie with it, blood immediately started from his cheek.

An Alibi

Taffy had been doubly killed, because I had just placed the cold, blue muzzle of a revolver—presented, as the engraved inscription read, by the Emperor of Japan to the President of the United States—to the back of his head, and had repeatedly pulled the trigger.

We stood transfixed by the blood from Charlie's face, which dripped over his collar on to his blouse, and down on to the rug. Our first guilty thought was with regard to the sabre, fearing lest we should be discovered with it; for all of us knew it to be taboo when we took it from the top of the mantel. Our handkerchiefs failed to staunch the blood, but we soon discovered that the wound was not deep.

"Golly!" Q said suddenly. "Somebody's coming—down the end of the hall!"

"Remember, everybody—I fell on a chair," said Charlie, with presence of mind and complete composure.

That was it. Immediately we smeared some of Charlie's blood on one of the brass feet of the chair, while Quentin dashed off to return the sabre and revolver. We were hardly arranged and clustered around Charlie when an usher discovered us, and rushed the wounded Spaniard into Mrs. Roosevelt's rooms for first aid. "They knocked over a chair, Mrs. Roosevelt," the usher said. "Evidently the boy fell against it ——" Evidently! The evidence had it; we were reproved, but no questions were asked. For half an hour afterwards, we sat around, doing nothing whatever, except to look at the plaster laid across Charlie's cheek.

Of Mrs. Roosevelt it is more than difficult to speak—just as it is for most men to speak of their mothers — with moderation. I remember TR calling her "Edith." And the name, as he used it, sounded particularly beautiful. Some boys are sensitive to feeling in voice, or a word, and all of us caught the tenderness of the President's inflection. We grew to love the gracious lady, to whom it was addressed, with an affection the years cannot disturb. She was benign, affable, motherly and, above all, interested in us all.

Imitate President

Theodore, Jr., Alice, Kermit, Ethel and Archie, the Gang rarely saw, because they were older. I do not remember that we spoke to them, or they to us, except to make mutually disparaging remarks. Theodore, Jr.—an ancient in our eyes — we once mimicked from the safety of a roof balustrade, because of the bulldog pipe which he had brought from Harvard. We were frightfully short on reverence. There was none we were afraid to ape and mimic—not even TR.

The ushers may recall how four members of the Gang once squatted on the carpet of the lower corridor, waiting for TR to come from his office. Finally he strode down the hall, full steam ahead, oblivious to doors, which always seemed to open miraculously before him, and close behind him with precision. As he passed, we jumped up and followed behind him in single file, mimicking his strenuous pace, arms pumping up and down, our short legs striding as fast as they would go. He grinned back over his shoulder and Q, who was directly following, did likewise. The grin passed from boy to boy until it reached me, at the end of the procession. I turned and bared my teeth to an usher. We went through two doors in this fashion, which remained open until I had passed grandly through, with my chest swelled out and head held high. Finally, TR mounted the stairway with a red-plush rope, and some sudden idea took us elsewhere.

"Wasn't that simply breathless?" Quentin said. "Like a king, with a lot of ushers in frock-coats opening doors before he reaches 'em, and slamming 'em too so that he won't get a draft on the back of the royal head!" There was no question but that Q could see, and think.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, March 6

A DAY of much agitation, uncertainty and setback is the augury based on adverse planetary operations. There are many forms of menace to be met with sagacity, composure and discretion. Avoid quarrels, litigation and perfidy. Personal affairs hold compensations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of enmity, strife, litigation and duplicity, unless they keep themselves alert and composed and manage hostilities with sagacity. Self-control and personal influence may conquer adverse situations and diverse dangers.

A child born on this day should be given early training in discipline, in self-control and self-reliance.

Household Hints

Remove ink stains from a deal table by dabbing with cold water and adding a little common salt.

Grated cheese, spread over half of the cooked omelet before it is folded, melts and gives delicious flavor for a breakfast or supper dish.

For pressing seams in sleeves when sewing, place a towel over a broom handle or round stick and place the garment on it. It stays in place and eliminates any danger of accidental wrinkles.

TRICK PITCHES FAR FROM BEING NEW

ONE never failing feature of spring baseball training is the annual tale of the development of trick deliveries by old or new major league pitchers. It's a rare camp that doesn't send in a story to the effect that this or that hurler is experimenting with a screw ball, a knuckle ball, a fork ball or some other kind of freak pitch. The thing is greatly overdone, as a rule. Wilbert Robinson, veteran manager of the Dodgers, probably has the right slant when he says that few pitchers can employ such deliveries with real success, except perhaps occasionally, and that most of the chatter about them is the bunk, due largely to the fact that many batters use the freaks as alibis for strikeouts. Robbie himself has a couple of screw ball specialists this spring in Hollis Thurston and Babe Phelps.

Wilbert Robinson

And after all, there is nothing new about most of the trick pitches. The screw ball is only a new name for Christy Mathewson's old fadeaway, and as for the knuckle ball the real inventor of that was Lew Moren, of the South Hills, who started with the Pirates back in 1903 and perfected the pitch while with the Phillies later.

THE use of the screw ball has played havoc with the arms of a number of chuckers, though judging from the success of Jess Haines, Fred Fitzsimmons, Eddie Rommel and others the knuckle ball is not so harmful. At that it was a sore arm that put Moren out of baseball in 1912. The screw ball caused injuries that sent Herb Pruett and Thurston back to the minors, and whether they can succeed in the big show again this year is a question.

But as Robinson says, the freaks are more talked about than actually pitched. "The hitters are responsible for most of this stuff," he complains. "Why, every time one of our players comes back to the bench after striking out, he'll say that the pitcher struck him out with a screw ball, a knuckle ball, a fork ball, or some such thing. He seems to think it a great disgrace to be fooled by such an old-fashioned thing as a good old hard one or a really good curve."

WITH Frank O'Doul and Arthur Whitney finally enrolled, Chuck Klein, the National League's home-run champion, remains the only Philly holdout. Klein is said to be demanding one of the largest salary increases asked in the majors in a long time.

Klein received only about $5,000 last year. The first 1930 contract sent to him called for $8,000. He turned it down. The second is said to have contained a clause that would have made his pay $12,000 if he hit a certain number of homers. He rejected that, too.

Chuck Klein

ACCORDING to some of Klein's close friends in Indianapolis, the player is asking $17,500 for a one-year contract. He will sign eventually, of course, but if he gets anything like that figure he will surprise a lot of baseball followers, who find it difficult to picture the boss of the Phillies paying that sum to anybody. Klein's record presents an unusual instance of suddenly acquired hitting ability. Only three years ago he was dropped from an industrial league in Indianapolis because he failed to make a hit in 19 games. Breaking into the National, he at once became a slugging terror, rising to his greatest heights last year, when he hit .356 in 149 games and set a new league record for home runs in a season with a total of 43.

EVERY fight follower noted during 1929 that fouls were being committed in professional bouts with unusual frequency, but the actual extent to which the evil has been allowed to run is not realized until you are brought face to face with a summing up of the offenses for the year.

Wading through the records, an Eastern boxing authority has discovered that during 1929 no fewer than 60 bouts in this country and Europe ended in disqualification, the majority of the violations being low blows. And that covers only the more prominent events in the pro division. Nothing like it has ever been known in the history of the ring.

AND now 1930 has been sent off to a swell start in the same direction by the foul claims of Phil Scott during and following the recent fiasco with Jack Sharkey in Miami. It is clear that Scott was making matters worse than they really were, but at the same time Sharkey was guilty of some careless fighting, to say the least, and the affair as a whole did much harm to the game.

The foul problem is one that calls for even more attention from the various boxing commissions this year than it was given in 1929. Until some offending star is dealt with severely the "little fellows" may be expected to think that they can get away with it, too.

Dr. James Naismith

BY REASON of the fact that the height of basketball goals above the floor has never been changed since the birth of the sport, you'd naturally conclude that the distance had been fixed only after careful computation of everything entering into the playing of the game. But as a matter of fact, it was due to just a chance happening. Dr. James Naismith, who gave basketball to the list of competitive sports, bears out a statement recently made by Coach Harold G. Olsen, of Ohio State, to that effect. Dr. Naismith nailed the first baskets to the edge of a balcony in the gymnasium where the first game was played. The balcony happened to be just 10 feet above the floor of the gym, and that measurement passed into the rules as the regulation distance that still stands.

DISAGREEING with Joe McCarthy and Fred Clarke, who estimated the value of pitching at 85 and 65 per cent, respectively, in the winning of baseball games, Lee Llewellyn writes: "My humble sizing up of the winning factors in a ball game puts the values as follows: Pitching, 20 per cent; catching, 15; infield defense, 15; outfield defense, 10; breaks, 20; general playing, 20.

"And there are other factors, not reckoned, such as temperament of the players and manager, weather conditions, condition of the team and the field, etc. Under the heading of general playing come hitting, baserunning, coaching and individual headwork. How any one, especially Joe McCarthy, can overlook the factor of breaks in a game is beyond me. It was breaks that showed up his team in the world series. He had almost 100 per cent pitching in most of the games. Even Ehmke's pitching in the opener was only a 48 per cent factor, wonderful as it was.

"HOW many times have we seen a line drive just escape the clutch of an infielder, clear the bases and win a game? No batter knows just where the ball is going when he swings, and no pitcher can tell where the batter is going to knock the ball. A play of this kind is merely a break, though a good batter will, of course, get more of them safe than a poor one.

"Also, how many times have we seen Traynor, Critz and others make impossible stops, throw out the runners and save the game? [illegible]

FIRST ROUND SCHEDULE

Thursday—Monessen vs. Dunbar, Stadium.

SECOND ROUND SCHEDULE

Saturday—New Castle vs. Waynesburg, Stadium.

The City League series is out of the way, two more teams have been eliminated from the W. P. I. A. L. title tourney and Duquesne and Swissvale are ready and rarin' to resume activity in the upper bracket with a game in the Stadium tonight.

Yesterday was a busy day in scholastic circles. In the afternoon Fifth Avenue High retained its City League title by taking the second and deciding game of the championship series from South Hills 13 to 12. At the Stadium in the morning New Kensington took McKees Rocks by a 27-24 score in a lower bracket contest of the W. P. I. A. L. tourney and at Washington in an upper bracket affair Waynesburg eliminated Hickory High by a 37-23 count.

LEVINE'S GOAL WINS

It was the fighting spirit of little Boots Levine (Fifth Avenue freshman forward) that turned the tide in favor of Fifth in the afternoon City League fracas. There was only one point scored in the last quarter of the game, and it was not scored until little Boots very calmly dropped in a foul shot just as the gun boomed to end the struggle. Had Boots missed the game would have gone into an extra period and Fifth might have been forced to play the Tunnelites once again.

As it was the Uptowners had to hold South Hills scoreless for the entire second half to win. As was the case in the first game of the series South Hills hopped off to a fine lead and had Fifth 12 to 9 at the half.

TAKES LEAD

Field goals by Ganter and Regan, each of whom dropped a pair, and one by Rigg accounted for the lion's share of South Hill's points.

Fifth wasn't impressive as it marked up three points during the third period and the team lacked zip and snap as it went into the fourth. But South Hills was no better, in fact, not as good, and the boys couldn't even count from the foul line.

They were scrimmaging for the ball close to the side of the court with the timer's gun in the air ready to end the game when the referee called Rigg for holding and Levine dumped in his free toss for game, series and title.

The same two teams met a year ago for the title with Fifth taking two straight to win the gonfalon. The lineup:

Fifth—13		South Hills—12

ROX FIVE LOSES

A 10-2 lead rung up in the first period stood New Kensington in fine stead last night against McKees Rocks, the Allegheny Valley five outscoring the Rox passers in every period from then on in to win, 27-14, at the Stadium.

McKees Rocks was blanked in the third quarter, after having rallied somewhat in the second to finish the half trailing by 19 to 11. Wilson, with five field goals, led in the scoring. The lineup:

N. Kensington—27		McK. Rocks—14

SWISSVALE-DUKES CLASH

Representing Section VI, Ed Paulie's Swissvale Hi-Y tossers face the strong Duquesne quintet tonight in a W. P. I. A. L. battle at the Stadium. It was this Duquesne team that eliminated the league champions, Homestead, from the running in Section VII, and the Dukes are accounted a good ball club.

Swissvale is in the title chase for the first time and went through the campaign in its section in fine style.

ENS DIVIDES BUC SQUAD

By Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 5.—Instead of showing discouragement over the inclement weather in evidence at the Pirate camp, Manager Jewel Ens this morning announced that he would go through with his plan of staging a camp game on Friday, provided his squad is able to work out in the two intervening days.

The Buccos were thrown for a loss yesterday by Jupiter Pluvius, yet Ens did not count the day a total loss. Late in the afternoon, when the skipper became convinced that he could not take his players to the ball field, he ordered all hands to dress for an inside workout, which was held in a big hall directly over the meeting room of the team.

REGULARS NAMED

Manager Ens today gave out his official lineup of regulars for the first game. In the first place Jewel announced Lloyd Waner would not be permitted to take part in any games at this time. Lloyd is 12 pounds under weight and the skipper wants to nurse him along carefully.

In the absence of the little gem of center field, Fred Brickell will fill in, although it is probable that Ens will switch Comorosky to center field. Brickell will lead off, with Commy batting in the second notch. Brother Paul will be in his familiar third notch, with Capt. Traynor in the cleanup position. Grantham will bat fifth and George, as has been stated, will be stationed at second base.

Ens will throw Gus Suhr into sixth place for the present. In seventh will be either Ben Sankey or Charley Engle, and, in this connection, Ens stated that he would alternate with the two recruits in the short field. Sankey will get the favor in the first game, but Ens plans to use both in rotation. He likes both. Jewel has not decided as to the identity of his first-string catchers, nor had he arranged a Yanigan lineup, but he can make these decisions in short order when he gets down

Grimes Fails To Arrive For Confab

Burleigh Grimes, veteran Pirate right-hander, who was expected to arrive here this morning from his home in Minerva, O., failed to put in an appearance at Pirate headquarters in the Flannery Building, Oakland.

Burleigh's brother was registered at Webster Hall this morning, awaiting the arrival of the star hurler.

Burleigh is due to be in Canton, O., for resumption of his divorce suit early next month, and, unless something is done almost immediately about signing him, it is unlikely that he will join the Pirates in their workouts at Paso Robles.

Grimes is holding out for a two-year contract. The Pirates have offered him a one-year agreement.

PITT CRUSHES TEMPLE FIVE

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—In downing Temple University's crack basketball quintet, 40 to 28, here last night.

Controlling the play with swift, accurate passes that brought round after round of cheers from the capacity crowd of 6,000 amazed fans that jammed the arena, Pitt clearly outclassed the Temple team.

Charley Hyatt scored a total of 14 points, bagging six field goals and two free throws. Eddie Baker, who played his best game of the season, and Paul Zehfuss pressed the sensational Panther leader for honors.

It was Pitt's twentieth victory in 21 starts, and it snapped Temple's 13-game winning streak. The lineup:

Pitt—40		Temple—28
Hyatt	F	O'Brien
Zehfuss	F	Godfrey
L. Cohen	C	Bonner
Baker	G	Wearshing
Arture	G	Fitsch

Substitutes—M. Cohen, Wroblesk, Brown, S. Kowallis, Lawry, Wasta. Field goals—Hyatt 6, Zehfuss 4, L. Cohen 2, Baker [illegible], O'Brien 2, Godfrey, Bonner 3, Wearshing, Fitch 2. Fouls—Pitt 8 out of 12; [illegible] out of 16. Referee—Rumsey. [illegible]

RODGERS' SOCK LURES FANS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Jackie Rodgers' fight with Howard Mayberry at the Moose Temple Friday night has the fans talking and—what is more important to the promoter—buying tickets.

Promoter Francis Flynn announced this morning that the advance sale for this battle is one of the best he has known in his two years at the Penn avenue stand.

The general sentiment appears to be that it will be another easy knockout victory for Rodgers, and the fans are anxious to sit in on Jackie's eighth straight knockout conquest. However, there is no doubt that many of the spectators will be there in the hope of seeing Mayberry outgeneral his Negro foe, as he recently did Johnny Dunn to win the right to box Rodgers at this time.

It will be the third meeting between Rodgers and Mayberry, and Mayberry has two victories to his credit, scored when Jackie was not the aggressive puncher he is today.

Between Rounds

Matchmaker Ray Eberle, of the Junction Park Boxing Club at New Brighton, is looking for a sellout when he presents Battling Gizzy against Young Corey in his main bout tomorrow night. Gizzy defeated Joey Powell, of Philadelphia, at Johnstown last Friday night and followed this up with a four-round knockout victory over Eddie O'Dowd at Wheeling Monday night.

Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, and Cug Phillips, of Erie, box the 10-round windup at Erie Friday night. Johnny Sacco and Ray Collins are in the six-round semi-final.

Cooney Martin, Johnstown matchmaker, has closed a "natural" between Mickey Duris and Young Chiodo, rival lightweights, of Johnstown, for Friday night of next week. Frankie Nanci, of Swissvale, will be one of the principals in the semi-final.

Babe Ruth and Stanley Williams box the main bout at Wheeling, March 17. Frits Anderson, of McKeesport, will meet an opponent to be selected in the semi-final.

Kid Chocolate and Benny Hall meet in a 10-round bout at Tampa, Fla., tonight. The battle was held over from Monday night because of cool weather. Frisco McGale boxes Willard Dix in a six-rounder at Seattle and Nick Palmer meets Dennie Golden in Brooklyn. Vincent Hambright tangles with Bobby LaSalle in Cincinnati.

Frits Anderson, formerly of Detroit, and now of McKeesport, subbed on short notice for Ted Yarosz and [illegible]

Swissvale Girls Gain League Tie

The Swissvale High School girls' basketball team entered a tie with Braddock High for the lead in the County independent championship competition by defeating Braddock, 18 to 16, on the latter's floor yesterday afternoon.

The Coraopolis girls defeated Aliquippa, 22 to 20.

In boys' high school games yesterday, Clairton defeated Monongahela, 39 to 12; Burgettstown defeated Wilkinsburg, 22 to 13, and Charleroi won, 34 to 18, over Avalon.

COAST LEAGUER, ROY FRAZIER, NEW BUC

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 5.—A Pacific Coast League prodigy of the left-hand species was in the fold of the Pirates today, and, take it from Joe Devine, the young man is destined to make his mark. Joe, as you may have guessed, is his sponsor. Devine early in his Pirate career developed the economical habit of getting youthful phenoms into camp for nothing more expensive than carfare, but, in the case of the latest recruit, the Pirates had to put out a pretty penny.

Joe Devine

The new member of the Pirate family is Outfielder Roy Frazier, who has been cutting capers for the Oakland Club, of the Pacific Coast League, but who, for some cause, was not sitting so well with the Oaks. However, Devine thinks the Pirates have landed a marvel and he says we may broadcast the news from the housetops for all the Pittsburghers who care to tune in.

BIGGER THAN P. WANER

To begin with, the new outfielder is just a wee bit larger and stronger than Paul Waner and is just as left-handed as Paul. But this writer will not take the responsibility of declaring that he will hit like Paul, or like Lloyd, either, for the chances are that the worthy young man will not. Nevertheless, Scout Joe, who rarely picks a bloomer in the garden of sport, announces that Frazier is a ball hawk, which translated means that he "can go and get that onion," if you know what that means.

Frazier, we should hasten to add, had to purchase his release from the Oakland club, and, of course, the young man did not furnish the money. You may have one guess as to who supplied the cash. And the Oakland owners would not listen to the boy's plea for a passport unless he promised not to sell his services to another Coast League club. All of those obstacles have been cleared, the youngster has signed a Pirate contract and he will be a part of today's workouts, as he has not far to travel. Frazier lives at Fresno. He came to camp earlier in the week to confer with Manager Ens and Vice President Sam Dreyfuss. Ens intends to throw him into action with the Yanigans as soon as the camp games begin. The rookie has been owned by Oakland for several season, although he is only 21.

LLOYD TO LEAD OFF

Skipper Ens appears to be set to do a very smart thing in the interest of his ball team. Jewel announces that he will start L. Waner in the lead-off position of the Pittsburgh batting order just as soon as the little fellow gains his normal strength.

Brother Lloyd, to many folks, is the ideal lead-off batter. Last year the Pirates seemed to be handicapped in this respect. Sparky Adams was a good lead-off man, but Sparky could not do his stuff in his customary way, so Dick Bartell was placed on top. It is generally agreed that Bartell is not so hot at the top of an attack.

Ens intends to make other drastic changes. Take Comorosky, for instance. Jewel expects to use the Polish flyer in the second

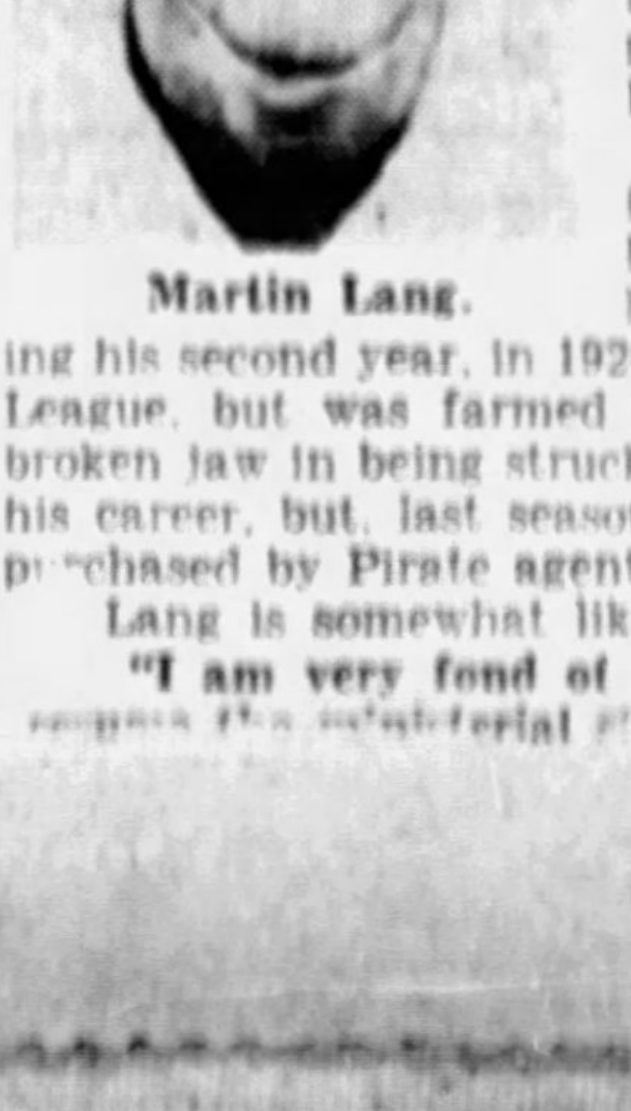
Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

NO. 4—MARTIN LANG, PITCHER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 5.—The newest member of the southpaw pitching tribe of the Pirates is the sort of a young man who compels unusual attention at first blush. When you meet Martin Lang, of Omaha, you perhaps do not know that the youth studied for the ministry, but, after you get this information, you will quite easily make the facts of his life reconcile.



Martin Lang.

His lithe, well-proportioned body, adorned with a dark, neat-fitting suit, does not give Martin a clerical or somber bearing, neither does the boy have anything to remind you of the present-day sheik. With a head of hair that is dark and plentiful, Lang has a good face—one that bespeaks good rearing at the home hearth, and when he talks the good breeding is emphasized.

Martin makes you think of Max Carey, for he went to the same college and seminary that saw Carey a minister-in-the-making before the same spell that now holds Lang came upon Scoops.

Lang was a student at Concordia College, St. Louis, a Lutheran institution. There he was a brilliant pitcher, so much so that he received professional offers. After finishing his second year, in 1926, he joined the Omaha club, of the Western League, but was farmed out. He returned, but in 1927 suffered a broken jaw in being struck with a ball. This accident interfered with his career, but, last season, he was in rare form and eventually was purchased by Pirate agents.

Lang is somewhat like Wilbur Cooper in physique.

"I am very fond of baseball, but some day I may go back to resume the ministerial studies," he said the other day.—CHARLES

THE OLD LIFE AT SHORTSTOP

"THROW THAT BALL!"

All of that raving from the Pirates' training camp at Paso Robles, Cal., the last few days has been over Ben Sankey, the young shortstop sensation, who is performing in the shoes of the absent Dick Bartell, who is a holdout. Above you see the young feller as he appears in action. His full name is Benjamin T. Sankey. He is 22 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 155 pounds, bats and throws right-handed and came up to the Pirates from Selma in the Southeastern League, where he played two seasons. His home is in Nauvoo, Ala. He is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, with a B. A. degree. He reported to the Pirates last fall and broke into a few games then.

DUKES DEFEAT TITANS; NEAR LOOP TITLE

By JESS CARVER

It seldom is good policy to call an athletic team great. But last night Coach Chick Davies put a great basketball team on the floor for Duquesne University against Westminster College, a team great enough to overcome the seemingly prohibitive physical odds that the Titans' height presented and battle out a 31-27 triumph, thereby taking a gilt-edged mortgage on the Tri-State Conference championship for the 1929-30 campaign.

Ganzy Benedict

All the Dukes need to do now is to take Geneva and Thiel in the remaining games on the schedule, both to be played here this week, and they will reassume the toga of champions, which they have worn with such grace in years past.

BENEDICT STARS

Duquesne's great team was led by a great captain in last night's classic, played on the Bluff. Ganzy Benedict thrilled the record crowd that jammed and fought its way into the all too small Duke gym, scoring six field goals and making good in three out of four times at the foul line to lead in the scoring for the evening. Ganzy ran his team as he never before had run it, and for the greater portion of the contest the locals completely outplayed their giant opponents.

Twice did the Red and Blue marksmen come from behind, which, after all is the test of a truly great team. Westminster hopped off to a lead right off the bat, but the Dukes refused to curl up, and, led by Ganzy, banged away from outside on perfect set shots. At the half-time the Dukes were out in front by 14-12. Benedict threw four baskets during the first 20 minutes and Ben Lubic helped his captain by banging one in himself. Delahunty, O'Donovan, Crowell and Brownlee scored for Westminster.

DUKE LEAD FADES

Duquesne's first-half lead was quickly dissipated as the second period opened when Crowell broke down a pass, dribbled down the court, and, as he was fouled, hooked in a basket. He made both of his free throws good and then, almost on the next tip, counted again, putting the Titans ahead by 18-14.

This advantage was not destined to stand, for Benedict, Lubic and Brud Stephens counted from the floor and foul line to once again overtake the hopeful United Presbyterians.

O'DONOVAN INJURED

It was at this point that Westminster received a double blow. Captain Babe O'Donovan, sterling forward, was carried from the floor when his trick knee slipped out, and, hardly had he disappeared into the crowd than Delahunty was ejected from the game on personal fouls. The loss of this pair of crack performers weakened the Titans so greatly that from then on it was practically a cinch for the Dukes. Considine and Brownlee scored baskets that put the visitors within a point of the locals, but Joe Vernon took up the hero role with a basket and a foul that put the ball game in the bag.

TEAMS KEYED HIGH

Both teams were keyed to a high pitch for the battle, and, at times, it seemed as if blows were certain to be struck. It was a difficult spot for Referee Wallace and Umpire Beggs Snyder to be in, but they handled the game well, preventing any serious difficulty.

The triumph was the second great tribute to the coaching ability of Chick Davies. He brought his team up for Loyola and he brought it up for Westminster, which is quite some bringing up.

The lineup:

Duquesne—31		Westminster—27
Abele	F	Delahunty
Benedict	F	C. O'Donovan
[illegible]	C	Brownlee
Stephens	G	Crowell
Lubic	G	Rice

Score by periods:

Duquesne	14	17—31
Westminster	12	15—27

Substitutes—Westminster, Considine, Fisher, [illegible]; Duquesne, Vernon. Field goals—Benedict 6, Abele, Lubic 2, Stephens, Vernon, Delahunty, O'Donovan, Brownlee 2, Crowell 3, Rice, Considine. Fouls: Delahunty, 1 out of 2; Brownlee, 3 out of 6; Crowell, 3 out of 5; Considine, 0 out of 1; Lubic, 2 out of 2; Stephens, 3 out of 3; Vernon, 1 out of 1. Team fouls: Westminster, 9 out of 15; Duquesne, 9 out of 12. Time of periods—20 minutes. Referee—Yans Wallace. Umpire—Beggs Snyder.

DUKE TOURNEY SET

The second annual state Catholic High School basketball tournament, sponsored by Duquesne University, will get under way tomorrow morning at 9:30 a. m., with 14 teams entered in the competition.

The winner of the local tourney will be sent to Chicago for the national Catholic tourney and will be awarded the Bishop Boyle trophy, emblematic of the state title.

The Tip-Off

A single game will be run off tonight, West Virginia and Wash-Jeff meeting at Washington in a Big Four clash. The Mountaineers are hot-tip favorites.

It was a shame that Babe O'Donovan, clever captain of Westminster, had to end his college career as he did last night. It was tough enough to have his team bow to as keen a rival as the Dukes, but tougher to be rendered hors du combat right in the hottest part of the battle.

O'Donovan is a fine basketball player, and his place will be difficult to fill. He and Benedict, Hyatt, Gibson and Ryan are as sweet a quintet of court stars as you will find anywhere.

The Dukes never put such a crowd in their gym as was in attendance last night. The only difference between the Bluff quarters last night and a can of sardines is that the fish have room to lie down.

Ben Lubic was presented a gift by his fraternity brethren prior to the start of the game, and, between halves, Athletic Director Elmer Layden awarded nine blue sweaters to his footballers.

Here's a neat one.

South Hills lost to Fifth Avenue yesterday in the second and final game of the City League title series and the Uptowners won the title for the second year in a row. The team is coached by Chester Briggs.

Chester Briggs lives in Brookline and his children, Grace and Bernard, attend South Hills. Puzzle: Find the weeps and the smiles.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SANDLOT LOOPS ORGANIZE FOR SEASON

By TOM BIRKS

A large crowd of managers, players and fans attended the meeting of the West Penn and Pittsburgh Central baseball leagues held last evening at Honus Wagner's and when the final work of the managers was finished each loop had granted franchises to seven clubs, one berth being left open in each in case to take care of teams that had asked to be admitted.

The West Penn, classed as the best out-of-town loop last year, will find Verona Community, last season's champion, Universal, North Bessemer and Wilmerding coming along, together with the Homestead Aces, who have made baseball history in the district; Whittaker, a club that has been knocking at the door of local sandlot fame, and the Duquesne Builders, headed by the veteran manager, Tommy Martin, who has been piloting clubs for many years. The Dan Heeps, of Wilkinsburg, dropped in on the gathering. The eighth club will be selected in the next few days.

FRANCHISE GRANTED

The Pittsburgh Central League granted franchises to seven clubs, Fintex, the Roosevelt Club, Etna, the Jimmy Cosletts, Union Pressmen, Y. M. H. A. and Soho Board of Trade. One other club of importance asked for a franchise and this probably will be granted by the managers on Saturday, although three other teams also want the remaining berth.

President Coons, of North Bessemer; Marshall McKeag, Fennell, Jack Fertig, George Vogt, of Whittaker; Tommy Martin, Lutton, Bill Sherman, Jock Collette, Abe Goldstein, Poster, Cohen, Guffey and Johnny Hornyak, all got into the real spirit of sandlot baseball and harmony prevailed at the gathering.

With the West Penn, Central and Commercial and Industrial Leagues having practically closed their rosters for the season, it is evident that followers of the sandlots are going to see some fine battles staged.

STEEL CITY TO MEET

Friday evening, the Steel City League will get together at Wagner's, and, from the present outlook, there will be two sections to this loop, with a titular playoff at the end of the season. With East Liberty Crimsons, East End Cardinals, Wesley Hale Club, Collier Club, Lincoln Civics, Demors, Dispatch, Observatory Civics, McKinley Club, St. Joachim's, Whittaker Reserves, Jack Potts and the Lincoln Place Club all looking for berths, the Steel City circuit is destined to go over big.

Sport Vignettes

Yesterday was spring housecleaning day in the sports department. . . . . . All scrubbed up 'n' everything . . . . . . We're ready now for the first robin . . . . . . Cuckoos needn't apply . . . . . . Greatest fun was climbing over desks to answer the telephones . . . . . . Would have been a great spot for Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp . . . . . . IC 4A will hold its 1932 outdoor track and field championships in California for the first time in its history . . . . . . That will save the Coast teams the trouble of coming East to cop . . . . . . Starting blocks for sprinters are favored by the college officials . . . . . . What they really need is stopping or stumbling blocks if they keep on breaking records . . . . . . There's really little or no sense in having races run in less than nothing flat . . . . . . Los Angeles recently had a near-repetition of the Ad Wolgast-Joe Rivers double knockout when Billy Townsend, of Vancouver finished the sixth round of a bout out on his feet, staggering into the ropes, while his opponent, Armando Santiago, of Cuba, walked to his corner and then collapsed on his stool from a solar plexus blow and was unable to respond to the bell for the seventh round . . . . . . They pushed Townsend off his chair and he was automatically the victor by a technical knockout . . . . . . Add Things to Worry About: Will they let Lou Magnolia referee the Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling bout for the heavyweight championship in New York in June following the great hullabaloo over his officiating in the Sharkey-Scott thing a few nights back? . . . . . . Can't you just imagine the squawk Joe Jacobs, manager of the German, will put up against Lou, for ballyhoo purposes if none other? . . . . . . LeRoy Mahaffey, former Pirate pitching recruit, now is getting his picture in the papers as one of the hopefuls in the Athletics' camp. . . . . . . Oh, well, any old camp in the spring . . . . . . It takes more than talk to build a mammoth sports arena, which reminds us that when Benny Leonard first came here last season to take over the hockey Pirates he said he would build such a plant but for the fact that we were supposed to have a Town Hall soon . . . . . . Now the yarn is taken down off the shelf and dusted off and put in circulation again. . . . . . . What we need more than a big hockey arena is a team that can win . . . . . . A big rink won't be any good with a losing team . . . . . . And, after all, there are just so many hockey fans in this man's town . . . . . . The International League, which is a grade lower than the National circuit, has had representatives here from Buffalo during the last few days to look over the local situation . . . . . . They've heard Pittsburgh is about to give up the ghost in the big ice league and are interested in coming in . . . . . . Talk of the hockey Pirates losing more than $50,000 this season sounds like a lot of bologna. . . . . . . There isn't that much money in the world.—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL GOLFERS DEFAULT AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., March 4.—Pittsburghers failed to cover themselves with glory in the first round matches of the twenty-sixth annual Spring tournament on the No. 2 course here today. Leonard, of Boston, 1 up, and Joseph Forsyth lost to L. B. Hodgeman, of Painted Post, N. H., on the nineteenth hole. In the fifth, J. H. Bialas won his match from H. R. Speyer yesterday defeated W. H. Miller, of Chicago, 7 and 6, while K. E. Bahe, of Pittsburgh, lost to W. J. Myers, of Far Rochaway, N. Y., 6 and 5.

Tony Herrera's Purse Held After Bout

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 5.—(AP.)—Tony Herrera, Chicago Mexican lightweight, outpointed Jimmy Reed, of Erie, Pa., in a 10-round boxing contest here last night which officials ruled was so unsatisfactory that they held up the purses of the boxers.

After Reed had been knocked down once in the fourth round and twice in the sixth and Herrera also had been on the floor, the referee consulted with officials about the advisability of permitting the contest to continue. It was resumed, and, in the ninth, Reed was knocked down for the count of nine twice and Herrera went down for no count. Herrera won the tenth round handily.

HOCKEY RACES CLOSER

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Races for second place in the American group of the National Hockey League and for the first three in the Canadian section are close.

The Chicago Blackhawks and New York Rangers, rivals for second place in the American group, battled last night to their second successful tie at 2-2, at Chicago.

The Ottawa Senators rose in the final period to hang a 6-to-2 defeat on the Montreal Maroons at Ottawa.

Defeat did no serious damage to the Maroons, leaders of the International group, for the second-place Montreal Canadiens dropped a 5-to-2 decision to the Boston Bruins at Boston, but it moved the third-place Senators up to one point behind the Canadiens. Likewise, it reduced Toronto's chances of getting into the playoffs to a minimum. Tied at 1-1 by the New York Americans at Toronto, Toronto now must win all of its five remaining games, while Ottawa loses its four contests to get a tie for third place.

UP FEDERAL ST. HILL
AT 54 MILES PER HOUR

On February 27th a new Oakland Eight, carrying a driver and four official observers, climbed Federal Street Hill in High Gear—clearing the top at 54 miles per hour. In this way the new Oakland Eight continues to build proof of its right to be called "The car with superior performance and tremendous power."

The car with the GOLDEN ROCKET is demonstrating SUPERIOR PERFORMANCE – arrange to take a ride

Many people in this city have already driven the Golden Rocket demonstrator—a New Oakland Eight. Even before they had taken the wheel, most of them knew from observation that few cars, regardless of price, could match its speed or pick-up in traffic. But not until they had a demonstration did they fully appreciate the meaning of "superior performance."

Then they learned that its ratio of one horsepower to 37 pounds of car weight accounts for this car's superior performance. That because of its 85-horsepower engine the New Oakland Eight is the most powerful car ever produced for its size and weight, only racing cars excepted.

Other qualities which will impress you when you drive the Golden Rocket demonstrator are its exceptional smoothness, its ease of handling and control, and the tailored beauty of its smart new Fisher body. In addition, its price is very moderate and its economy of operation is exceptional—with gasoline mileage equal to that of many sixes of the same size.

Ask the driver for a ride—or come to the showroom where a special demonstration will be arranged. Nothing short of a demonstration will enable you to appreciate the New Oakland Eight's superior performance.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The crucial game of the Allegheny County League basketball race takes place tonight at Columbus Temple when the J. J. Veronas clash with the Duquesne Lafayettes, three times winners of the championship and favorites to repeat this season.

Dom Demaria

Fresh from their victory over the Pintex passers whom they defeated by a single point on Monday night to remain in the fight for the title the Veronas are confident they can take the measure of the Scarlet Hurricane tonight and thereby prevent Ramsay and his supporting cast from sweeping both rounds of the County League schedule.

Nothing less than a victory will enable the Veronas to stay at the heels of the Lafayettes and Goldensons. The Veronas are one of the very few remaining opponents on the Lafayettes' schedule who have a chance to defeat the champions. If they are successful in their attempt tonight a playoff series will be necessary to determine the championship at the close of the season. One man the champs must watch tonight is Dom Demaria who has been showing real class.

Both the Lafayettes and Veronas have been showing championship form of late and they should present to their respective followers a thrilling battle tonight.

While the Lafayettes and Veronas are tangling in their important game at Columbus Temple, another contender for the title will be striving to remain in the running, the Goldensons entertaining the Allentown club at the South Side Market House. The Goldensons are favorites to win this contest, but if Allentown upsets the dope by trimming the Market House quintet the South Siders will be out of the titular fight.

The Duquesne Lafayettes moved into the van in the County League by defeating Elizabeth, 50 to 25, on the Duquesne floor last night. Joe Drotar played for the victors.

The Knickerbockers defeated the Falcons, 34 to 27 in the West Penn League. The County League lineup:

Lafayettes—50.		Elizabeth—25.
P. Minnock	F	Ward
Whitehead	F	Reid
Wunderlich	C	Lauder
Ciesielski	G	[illegible]
Benedict	G	Monheim

Substitutions—J. Minnock, Gubby, [illegible]. Field goals—J. Minnock 4, P. Minnock [illegible], Gubby 4, Drotar 3, Wunderlich 4, Ciesielski [illegible], Benedict 4, Ward 1, Reid 2, Lauder 1, Monheim. Fouls—Lafayettes 4 out of [illegible], Elizabeth, 5 out of 10. Referee—Markey.

Dribbles

Tommy O'Hara, promising young forward with the J. J. Veronas, lived up to his reputation of being one of the best shots in the County League by throwing one the length of the floor to score a much-needed field goal against Pintex Monday. The basket was registered with less than three seconds of the first half remaining, the ball being in the air as the whistle blew. The importance of that shot was brought out clearly by the final score of 30-29.

The Rubenstein family will engage the Barnes family at the Y. M. H. A. next Saturday night in the preliminary to the Y. M. H. A.-Akron Y. M. H. A. contest. There is considerable rivalry between the two basketball families and their game should attract a large crowd. Monday night the Y. M. H. A. engages Penn Five of Sharpsburg in a third round A. A. U. contest.

Sponsors of the Allegheny County League are making arrangements for a better and stronger circuit for 1931 according to well-founded reports. Plans are under way to add the Knickerbockers and Penn Five in the circuit, eliminating Charleroi, Elizabeth and Allentown. This would make the circuit a more compact one and one that would involve only teams in the Greater Pittsburgh District.

Long's Sport Comment

"ON THE other hand, how often have we seen infielders and outfielders muss up easy chances and lose the game? The breaks enter into these plays because ordinarily the fielders will handle the chances cleanly. Had a liner to the outfield, which clears the bases and wins the game, been five feet nearer to the fielder it would have been caught and the game would have been saved. A hit like this is nothing more than a break, because neither the batsman nor the pitcher had any control over it. I agree with Bill McKechnie that catching is a big factor. In fact, it may be just as important as pitching, though I have estimated pitching at 20 per cent and catching at 15. No factors can be overlooked. Surely the breaks cannot be underestimated, and therefore an 85 per cent value cannot be apportioned to pitching when there are so many other things to consider."

Gene Tunney

THOUGH he lost only once to Harry Greb in his five meetings with the late Pittsburgh fighter in 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925, Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, repeatedly admits that in every one of those battles he had to go through some of the toughest milling of his entire career. Tunney has continued to pay tribute to Greb in his discussions of the Sharkey-Scott affair of last week.

Repeating his assertion that Scott quit, he turned to the subject of game fighters. "Two of the gamest men I ever knew stand out in my memory," Tunney said. "They were Harry Greb and Bartley Madden. You could hit them again and again and know that they would keep coming back, trying to land blow for blow with you until they could land no more."

notch of the order, thus getting all kinds of speed in the lead-off spots. Brother Paul will be there to whack the speeders around and his heavy artillery will be augmented by Traynor's, Grantham's and Suhr's, not a bad offensive.

SHEELY STILL UNSIGNED

Earl Sheely, star first sacker, who left Pittsburgh for the San Francisco Seals in the Suhr deal, had another conference with his new employers yesterday, but he did not come to terms. Earl and the Seal directors are getting down to a working basis, and when the Paso Robles citizen is signed he will be just about the highest-paid player in the league.

Another Seal holdout, by the way, is none other than our own Pitcher John Miljus, who cannot savvy the figures quoted by the San Francisco owners.

Knockouts Feature K. of C. Battles

TONY CANZONERI WINS

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri of New York, former holder of the world featherweight championship, stopped Billy Pitts, youthful Brooklyn lightweight, in 58 seconds of the first round of their bout here last night. The bout had hardly started when Canzoneri knocked Pitts off his feet. The youngster rose without a count and promptly went down again for no count and the referee intervened.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 5.—(AP.)—A meeting of the managers of the New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League will be held in this city next Monday, when the schedule for the 1930 season will be drawn up. President Perry Farrell will preside.

Jackie Harmon at Wheeling Monday night, according to newspaper clippings from Wheeling, which contradict the report sent to Pittsburgh that Harmon had won. Anderson is managed by Bernard Kelly, Jr., of McKeesport.

Mickey Bowman, New Castle welterweight, wants to redeem himself for losing to Gene Moretti at McKeesport a couple of weeks ago by beating Young Buron of Charleroi, who since has beaten Moretti and now is matched to tangle with Tom Mayo again at the Moose Temple Friday night of next week.

Joe Dundee in his present form defeating Joe Trippe in the latter's home town, Rochester, N. Y., as he did on Monday night, is a tough one to explain. The two hard fights with Sergt. Sammy Baker have probably taken a lot out of Trippe.

Earl Mastro has been signed to box Spark Plug Dennis of Trenton, N. J., at Peoria, Ill., March 13.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati amateur boxers will be opposed in a show which is to feature "Athletic Night" at the Keystone Club on Monday, March 17. A supper dance also is planned.

New Branch Ticket Agency for Pirates

The Pittsburgh Baseball Club has arranged for a new branch ticket agency at the Grand Billiard Parlor, 328 Diamond street. This agency takes the place of the former Grand Arcade office, which was closed near the end of last season on account of alteration to the building. With this new stand the club will have three downtown agencies:

These agencies will not be open until April 14, but accommodations for the early home games may be procured by mail addressed to the club offices, 412 Flannery Building.

PITT DECLINES TOURNEY BID

The University of Pittsburgh today declined with thanks an invitation extended by Julian S. Myrick, of New York, to participate in an intercollegiate basketball tournament, tentatively set for April 2 in Madison Square Garden, the proceeds of which are to go toward the completion of a sport bay in the new Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City.

Besides Pitt, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, Temple, St. John's of New York and New York University have been invited to participate.

Director of Athletics W. Don Harrison, in answering Myrick's invitation, which was tendered by wire, explained that the Panthers, going through a 24-game schedule, were already bordering on the worn out and that it was considered impracticable and unfair to the players to ask them to remain in training for another month and to take part in a gruelling play as such a tournament would demand.

The red-haired right-hander has not signed a contract yet, but the fact that he is on his way to San Antonio was taken as indication that he is ready to come to terms.

KLEIN STILL FIRM

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 5.—(AP.)—Only one Phillie regular remains unsigned. The absentee is Chuck Klein, man of all work, who led the National League in home runs last season, but Manager Shotton is confident his long-distance clouter will be here by Sunday.

Shotton was elated to receive a telegram yesterday from Lefty O'Doul saying he had come to terms and was on his way. Shotton said O'Doul "is one of the highest paid men in the National League."

STOCK PRICES BID TO FRESH 1930 HIGHS

Fifty Issues Reach Peaks For Year With Gains Ranging From 6 to 15

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—The recovery in stock prices assumed rather impressive proportions in today's stock market despite the collapse in a recent pool specialty. Fifty or more issues were marked up to new high levels for the year, with gains of 1 to 5 points quite common, and a few high-priced issues up 6 to 15 points. Trading was moderately heavy in volume.

The day's trade news was rather spotty. Iron Age reported that U. S. Steel operations were being maintained at 85 per cent of capacity, but that the rate of output for the industry generally had fallen from 80 to 78 per cent, with certain producers of sheets and strip down to 50 per cent. "Irregularities in demand, wide variations in the operating rates of different mills and a further moderate recession in total ingot production are features of a steel market that lacks a definite trend," says the review.

SALES SHOW GAIN

Woolworth reported February sales slightly in excess of the same month last year, and the new J. C. Penney stock was put on a $3 annual basis, which is equivalent to $9 on the old stock, which paid $7 a share. Glen Alden Coal reduced the annual dividend from $10 to $8, and an initial quarterly payment of $1.50 was made on Tri-Continental Corporation cumulative preferred.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent, but the supply of funds was so plentiful that the rate in the outside market was dropped to 3½. The time money market displayed an easier undertone, the cut in bankers' acceptances yesterday was construed in some quarters as foreshadowing a further decrease in Federal Reserve rediscount rates.

J. I. Case was again a spectacular feature, soaring 14¾ points to 279¾, after having hold down to 260 in the early trading. New York and Harlem, which sold as low as 180 this year, was marked up 12 points to 307. National Biscuit (old stock) jumped 8½ points to 220, and Worthington Pump 7½ to 92½, both new highs.

MANY HIT '30 HIGHS

American Solvents and Chemical common and preferred, Foster-Wheeler, Simmons Company, National Lead, Peoples Gas, Westinghouse Electric Company, Vic Chemical Drug, Inc., Vanadium Steel, Atchison and Stone and Webster were marked up 3 to 5 points, many of them to record 1930 prices.

Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were Radio Corporation, Borden, United Corporation, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light, Associated Dry Goods, Goodyear and Loose Wiles Biscuit.

Indian Motorcycle common broke 6½ points to 9 and the preferred 23 points to 52, on what appeared to be the collapse of a pool operation in that issue. Nash Motors fell 2½ to a new low at 46. Crex Carpet dropped 4 points and Crosley Radio 2½.

Ease in Money Contrasts With Stringency of Last February.

CURRENT ease in money contrasts with the pronounced stringency which held sway in February a year ago. Yesterday's 4 per cent renewal rate compared with the 8 per cent rate which ruled on carryover accommodation for the first six days of March 1929. For a spell thereafter somewhat easier conditions prevailed but the final half of the month brought progressive tightening of rates with funds commanding a renewal rate of 15 per cent from the twenty-seventh straight through to the thirty-first, with the rate for new loans, it will be recalled, having run up to 20 per cent on the thirtieth, when a large bank came into the market with new money to lend at the rate of $5,000,000 for every 1 per cent above 15 per cent. The average renewal rate for March last year was 9.516 per cent, the peak for the 1929 period of trying money conditions.

Wall Street is beginning to ask the question of just how the matter of income tax payments, due the end of next week, will be reflected in the stock market. True, the crash in stock values last fall may have tended to eliminate a good deal of concern on that score, but still it is safe to assume that tax payments will be substantial on 1929 incomes of individuals as well as on corporation profits. Chances are that the market will find it necessary to absorb some amount of selling against such requirements between now and the time payments are due, but whether such selling will have far-reaching effect is something that remains to be seen.

STRENGTH in Public Service of New Jersey and Columbia Gas and Electric yesterday was chiefly interesting for the reason that the buying movement coincided with reports that a survey of the first-mentioned company's territory is being made or contemplated to determine its potential natural gas consumption requirements. The Columbia Gas and Electric, which, beyond question, would be the source of supply for such natural gas requirements, has long since definitely established itself in the Jersey company's territory through the purchase of oil pipe lines reaching to Garfield, N. J., and furthermore is similarly situated as regards the territory of the United Gas Improvement Company in Pennsylvania.

The report of the Studebaker Corporation showing dividend requirements just about covered for 1929, hardly afforded any great measure of comfort for the followers of the motor stocks. Net was equal to $5.52 a share on the 1,961,358 shares of common outstanding at the end of the year against $7.16 a share, on 1,875,000 common shares in 1928, exclusive of Pierce-Arrow results. At the last meeting directors decided to discontinue the payment of stock dividends which had been inaugurated early in 1928. The company's financial position remains entirely satisfactory, though the balance sheet shows cash on hand of $5,112,307 at the end of last year, or more than $8,000,000 under the figure shown at the end of 1928.

IN keeping with expectations the Kennecott Copper board ordered the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share. The announcement of this action came toward the start of the fourth hour yesterday and acted as a stimulant for the copper shares as a group. Kennecott pushed ahead to the best levels for the move and Anaconda was in brisk demand again ruling around the recent high levels. The Kennecott dividend, which maintains the annual $5 rate, was not accompanied by anything in the way of comment dealing with the situation. The street is perhaps more interested now in the monthly statistics which should be available about the middle of next week.

Up to the end of February the stock market had recovered almost 40 per cent of the losses sustained between August 30 and November 13, according to market value of 100 common stock issues at the end of February was $31,909,110,000, compared with $41,447,945,000 on August 30 and 24,274,384,000 on November 13. The 100 issues experienced a maximum drop of $19,173,561,000 and the recovery to date has been $7,634,726,000. In February the recovery was considerably smaller than that recorded in January, being 2.4 per cent, against 6.3 per cent. Eight of the 13 groups which constitute the index advanced, while five declined.

Woolworth Sales Increase Slightly

NEW YORK, March 5.—February sales of the F. W. Woolworth Company amounted to $20,029,799, compared with $19,375,281 in February, 1929, a gain of 3.3 per cent. Sales for the first two months of the year totaled $38,436,942, as contrasted with $37,035,386 for the same period last year, an increase of 3.7 per cent. On January 1, 1929, the company operated 1,725 stores in the United States, Canada and Cuba, while on February 1, 1930, there were 1,835 stores in operation in those countries. For the first two months of this year, the report showed that old stores' sales increased $55,050, or 0.15 per cent over the like 1929 period. February sales of the old stores, however, were $14,423, or 0.07 per cent below those of February, 1929.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—An impressive rally by United States government securities gave a decidedly firm touch to the trading in today's bond market. Four of the listed treasury issues and the Liberty 3½s made new 1930 highs in the early trading on the widest buying movement that had appeared in the governments this year.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Pittsburgh Securities

The widespread publicity that follows activity in nationally known securities tends to detract from local issues, many of which are equally sound and yield profitable returns.

In addition to the higher net return resulting from tax exemption of most local securities, the investor has the advantage of being able to keep in close touch with the companies in which he invests.

We will be pleased to recommend Pittsburgh securities of merit or to mail a pamphlet describing selected bond and stock issues.

Barge Service Files Rail Charge

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Inland Waterways Corporation, operating the government-owned barge service on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers, today complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission that practically all railroads operating in Southeastern and southwestern territory had failed to establish a joint route and rate system for combining rail and water facilities in the transport of cotton and cotton linters.

The commission gave notice to the railroads named and asked for response.

Both the general policy of the federal government toward transportation and the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission in reference to traffic matters, the waterway complaint said, require railroads to co-operate with the barge line facilities.

Kaufmann's Retiring Preferred Shares

ARKANSAS GAS, SHAMROCK HIGHER

Fuel Issues Continue Advances; Industrial Securities Unchanged

Active demand for Arkansas Natural Gas and Shamrock Oil lifted quotations on both issues in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

Buying of the Arkansas and Shamrock stocks followed an active market in these issues yesterday when both were pushed up to new highs for current trading.

Demand for Arkansas was attributed to rumors that the company may benefit as a result of the huge gas mergers said to be under way in the southwest. The parent company, Cities Service, shares reached a new high on the New York Curb.

Lone Star Gas did not participate in the early rise today, nor was there any noticeable change in the market for Western Public Service.

Industrial issues were narrow but steady. Pittsburgh Plate Glass slipped back a fraction to 53½, extending the fractional loss noted yesterday. Pruett-Schaffer Chemical came into the market at 22, off a point from yesterday's close. Mesta Machine changed hands at 27, the first sale for several days, and United Engineering was also unchanged.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 5.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 7 to 15 points today in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and a renewal of the recent selling movement. Active months sold 13 to 17 points net lower right after the opening, making new low records for the season.

Stop-orders were uncovered on the decline but the lower prices seemed to attract a good deal of covering and the trade was reported a more active buyer. This demand proved sufficient to absorb the early offerings and the market was steadier at the end of the first half hour, with prices showing rallies of 6 or 8 points from the lowest.

Liverpool cables said there had been continental and Bombay liquidation in that market and that the goods trade in Manchester was pessimistic with lack of confidence in current prices and buyers cautious.

Spectacular Turning-Point In Willys' Life

—By B. C. FORBES—

IT was a panic that enabled John N. Willys to make his first million. Now, having made many millions, he is switching from dollar-making to diplomacy.

By accepting the ambassadorship to Poland Mr. Willys follows the example of an increasing number of successful business men who have entered public life.

Dwight W. Morrow, an Ex-Morgan partner, is our ambassador to Mexico. Charles G. Dawes, banker, represents us at London. Harry F. Guggenheim, business man and aviation enthusiast, is our envoy at Cuba. Alexander P. Moore gave up newspaper publishing to become a shiningly successful ambassador. Walter E. Edge, another publisher, has gone as our ambassador to France.

More of our men of large affairs and our men of wealth are now disposed to accept public office. In time public service in this country, as in Britain, may become the highest goal of our ablest business and financial leaders.

JOHN WILLYS is a wonderful mixer. My guess is, however, that Mrs. Willys, who is quite a social star, has had something to do with his ambassadorial step. Mr. Willys, although he has gone in for the customary paraphernalia of the multi-millionaire—gorgeously furnished palaces, old masters, costly art objects, yachts, etc.—is usually democratic. He should prove an ideal ambassador to a country whose problems are mainly economic.

When a schoolboy at Canandaigua, N. Y., Johnny Willys was a noted "trader." He took up several business ventures and made them pay. Later he entered into partnership with another lad and acquired a laundry. This they sold at a profit. The death of his father spoiled his aspirations for a college education.

Bicycles, then coming into vogue, appealed to him. With his laundry money he bought a sample and became a bicycle agent. His sales reached dizzy figures, but he soon discovered that everybody wasn't honest; collections flopped and so did the business.

His next significant adventure was in the automobile field. Then came the spectacular turning-point in his career.

Having booked order for 500 Overland cars in the panic days of December, 1907, Agent Willys, then located in Elmira, N. Y., became anxious over the non-delivery of the cars. Hopping on a train for Indianapolis, the Overland manager told him on Sunday morning:

"We are going into the hands of a receiver tomorrow morning. Why, we paid some of the workmen by checks last night and we haven't enough money in the bank to meet them tomorrow morning."

"About $350."

Indianapolis banks were paying out no real money—the town, like most of the United States—was on a scrip basis. But Willys meant to raise $350 by hook or crook before the bank opened.

The interview occurred in the Old Grand Hotel. Willys walked boldly up to the hotel clerk.

"I want $350 cash before morning," he announced.

"I wish you luck!" came the laughing reply.

"But you have to get it for me."

"Swell chance!"

Willys wrote out a check on a little bank in Wellsboro, Pa., for $350 and sternly told the clerk:

"I must have cash for that before the bank here opens tomorrow morning."

He ordered the clerk to freeze on to every dollar that came into the office, to gather up every cent collected in the restaurant and to empty the bar-room till.

"And don't cash another check until we get this money," Willys cautioned.

The proprietor, having been informed of the purpose, entered into the spirit of the thing and by midnight Willys was handed a mountain of silver dollars, half-dollars, quarters, dimes and nickels, topped off with a thick layer of one-dollar bills and a sprinkling of twos, fives and tens.

Early next morning he planked the pile on the bank counter, to the credit of the Overland Company. The pay checks were duly met.

HIS eloquence, his sincerity and his faith in the future of the automobile industry won over all the important creditors and so convinced them of the company's prospects that a majority elected to accept preferred stock for their entire claims. He summoned the four largest suppliers of parts and materials, explained to them that they might as well let the Overland have the material they had manufactured for it, painted a glowing picture of the company's prospects and convinced them it would pay them to co-operate by accepting three months' notes for additional supplies.

Within eight years John N. Willys, the saver of Overland, was offered $80,000,000 for his share of the company!

The PACKARD EIGHT

Built expressly for a growing clientele of means, taste and discernment

FOR those who appreciate and have the means to enjoy the finest things the world affords, and their number is steadily increasing, Packard provides two models—the Packard Custom Eight and the Packard Eight De Luxe.

The Custom Eight—with its new and enriched fittings and upholstery, its greater refinement of detail and its liberal range of color combinations—today offers a luxury far beyond that of any famous Packard of the past.

Save for the Packard Eight De Luxe, which is slightly larger and permits unlimited choice of colors, appointments and upholstery, it is truly the world's finest motor car—in brilliance of performance, in beauty and distinction of appearance.

Both models are powered by the famous Packard Straight Eight motor—newly refined and improved—with which is combined a new four-speed transmission. Flashing acceleration is provided—unique ease of control. Shatter-proof glass and an advanced braking system assure increased safety.

Prices at the factory range as follows: For the Custom Eight from $3190 for the Roadster to $3885 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan-Limousine. For the De Luxe Eight from $4585 for the Roadster to $5350 for the Sedan-Limousine. Individual custom models on the De Luxe chassis are available to order at prices up to $10,000.

For those who desire the luxury and distinction of Packard transportation in cars of modified wheelbase and at more moderate price, Packard offers the popular Packard Standard Eight. In reality a smaller counterpart of the larger, costlier models it is priced at the factory from $2425 for the Roadster or Phaeton to $2885 for the Sedan-Limousine.

If you are considering a new motor car this spring, let us discuss the various Packard models with you. A call at our show rooms will repay you with a new conception of what motoring luxury can really be.

Spectacular Turning-Point In Willys' Life

By B. C. FORBES

IT was a panic that enabled John N. Willys to make his first million. Now, having made many millions, he is switching from dollar-making to diplomacy.

By accepting the ambassadorship to Poland Mr. Willys follows the example of an increasing number of successful business men who have entered public life.

Dwight W. Morrow, an Ex-Morgan partner, is our ambassador to Mexico. Charles G. Dawes, banker, represents us at London. Harry F. Guggenheim, business man and aviation enthusiast, is our envoy at Cuba. Alexander P. Moore gave up newspaper publishing to become a shiningly successful ambassador. Walter E. Edge, another publisher, has gone as our ambassador to France.

More of our men of large affairs and our men of wealth are now disposed to accept public office. In time public service in this country, as in Britain, may become the highest goal of our ablest business and financial leaders.

JOHN WILLYS is a wonderful mixer. My guess is, however, that Mrs. Willys, who is quite a social star, has had something to do with his ambassadorial step. Mr. Willys, although he has gone in for the customary paraphernalia of the multi-millionaire—gorgeously furnished palaces, old masters, costly art objects, yachts, etc.—is usually democratic. He should prove an ideal ambassador to a country whose problems are mainly economic.

When a schoolboy at Canandaigua, N. Y., Johnny Willys was a noted "trader." He took up several business ventures and made them pay. Later he entered into partnership with another lad and acquired a laundry. This they sold at a profit. The death of his father spoiled his aspirations for a college education.

Bicycles then coming into vogue appealed to him. With his laundry money he bought a sample and became a bicycle agent. His sales reached dizzy figures, but he soon discovered that everybody wasn't honest; collections flopped, and so did the business.

His next significant adventure was in the automobile field. Then came the spectacular turning-point in his career.

Having booked order for 500 Overland cars in the panic days of December, 1907, Agent Willys, then located in Elmira, N. Y., became anxious over the non-delivery of the cars. Hopping on a train for Indianapolis the Overland manager told him on Sunday morning:

"We are going into the hands of a receiver tomorrow morning. Why, we paid some of the workmen by checks last night and we haven't enough money in the bank to meet them tomorrow morning."

"How much are you short?" asked Willys.

"About $350."

Indianapolis banks were paying out no real money—the town, like most of the United States—was on a scrip basis. But Willys meant to raise $350 by hook or crook before the bank opened.

The interview occurred in the Old Grand Hotel. Willys walked boldly up to the hotel clerk.

"I want $350 cash before morning," he announced.

"I wish you luck!" came the laughing reply.

"But you have to get it for me."

"Swell chance!"

Willys wrote out a check on a little bank in Wellsboro, Pa., for $350, and sternly told the clerk:

"I must have cash for that before the bank here opens tomorrow morning."

He ordered the clerk to freeze on to every dollar that came into the office, to gather up every cent collected in the restaurant, and to empty the bar-room till!

The proprietor, having been informed of the purpose, entered into the spirit of the thing, and by midnight Willys was handed a mountain of silver dollars, half-dollars, quarters, dimes and nickels, topped off with a thick layer of one-dollar bills and a sprinkling of twos, fives and tens.

Early next morning he planked the pile on the bank counter, to the credit of the Overland Company. The pay checks were duly met.

HIS eloquence, his sincerity and his faith in the future of the automobile industry won over all the important creditors and so convinced them of the company's prospects that a majority elected to accept preferred stock for their entire claims. He summoned the four largest suppliers of parts and materials, explained to them that they might as well let the Overland have the material they had manufactured for it, painted a glowing picture of the company's prospects and convinced them it would pay them to co-operate by accepting three months' notes for additional supplies.

Within eight years John N. Willys, the saver of Overland, was offered $80,000,000 for his share of the company!

The PACKARD EIGHT

"I rather prefer the material now in the car, though the lighter shade is beautiful"

Built expressly for a growing clientele of means, taste and discernment

FOR those who appreciate and have the means to enjoy the finest things the world affords, and their number is steadily increasing, Packard provides two models—the Packard Custom Eight and the Packard Eight De Luxe.

The Custom Eight—with its new and enriched fittings and upholstery, its greater refinement of detail and its liberal range of color combinations—today offers a luxury far beyond that of any famous Packard of the past.

Save for the Packard Eight De Luxe, which is slightly larger and permits unlimited choice of colors, appointments and upholstery, it is truly the world's finest motor car—in brilliance of performance, in beauty and distinction of appearance.

Both models are powered by the famous Packard Straight Eight motor—newly refined and improved—with which is combined a new four-speed transmission. Flashing acceleration is provided—unique ease of control. Shatter-proof glass and an advanced braking system assure increased safety.

Prices at the factory range as follows: For the Custom Eight from $3190 for the Roadster to $3885 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan-Limousine. For the De Luxe Eight from $4585 for the Roadster to $5350 for the Sedan-Limousine. Individual custom models on the De Luxe chassis are available to order at prices up to $10,000.

For those who desire the luxury and distinction of Packard transportation in cars of modified wheelbase and at more moderate price, Packard offers the popular Packard Standard Eight. In reality a smaller counterpart of the larger, costlier models it is priced at the factory from $2425 for the Roadster or Phaeton to $2885 for the Sedan-Limousine.

If you are considering a new motor car this spring, let us discuss the various Packard models with you. A call at our show rooms will repay you with a new conception of what motoring luxury can really be.

STEEL TREND INDEFINITE

NEW YORK, March 5.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say: "Irregularities in demand, wide variations in the operating rates of different mills and a further moderate recession in total ingot production are features of a steel market that lacks a definite trend.

Business from the automobile industry remains at a reduced level and in most centers specifications from other buyers have also diminished, possibly more because of greater caution than any distinct change in the rate of consumption. South Penn Increases Investments

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE South Penn Oil Company has substantially increased its equities in the organizations which it controls. This was indicated in the annual report which showed total investments in securities of other companies of $14,829,494, a gain of $2,271,319 over the amount at the close of 1928.

Most of this increased investment was in the stock of the Pennzoil Company and the Bradford Transit Company. South Penn bought a 51 per cent interest in the former organization in 1926. Pennzoil later acquired the Dubois Products Company and the Columbia Refining Company.

Pennzoil is the refining and marketing end of South Penn's business. The parent organization is engaged in crude oil production in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It also purchases the crude oil run by the New York, South West Pennsylvania and Eureka Pipe Lines. This is then sold to refiners.

Develops Oil Market

THE market for products made from Pennsylvania crude has been greatly expanded during recent years by the development of the distribution of lubricants made from Pennsylvania crude on a nation-wide scale. The refining organization also markets gasoline and other products in Western Pennsylvania and the surrounding territory.

Recent years have been marked by exceptional development in South Penn's earning power. In 1929 net profit was $5,139,295, which was equivalent to $4.28 a share on the 1,200,000 shares of $25 par value stock. This compared with $3,911,165 or $4.89 a share on 800,000 shares outstanding in 1928. In 1927 net profit was $1,727,774 or $2.16 a share.

Extra Dividends Paid

THE expansion in earnings has made it possible for directors to substantially increase the dividend return to stockholders. Two extra dividends of 25 cents a share each were paid in 1928. In January 1929, a stock dividend of 50 per cent was paid. The regular annual rate of $2 a share was continued on the increased capitalization. Last December an extra of 12½ cents was paid and another has been declared payable on March 31.

Prospects for 1930 earnings are not as good as at the beginning of 1929. Since last summer Pennsylvania crude prices have been declining. The present price of $2.75 a barrel is $1.35 lower than the peak level in 1929. On a daily output of about 8,800 barrels this amounts to a substantial figure.

Pennzoil Costs Reduced

ON the other hand Pennzoil has to pay less for its crude oil while the price of the principal refined products has remained firm. This organization now has an improved margin of profit which will indirectly help South Penn although the gain will not be shown in South Penn's earnings until it takes the form of actual dividends paid by the subsidiary.

South Penn also owns 55 per cent of the stock of the Penn Mex Fuel Corporation. This organization, which operates in Mexico, paid dividends of $2 a share on its 400,000 shares in both 1928 and 1929.

South Penn with properties valued at $22,406,394, current assets of $14,990,964 and total assets of $52,373,513 has no bonds or preferred stock. Its only debts consist of $1,750,530 in accounts payable. Surplus at the close of 1929 amounted to $20,622,982.

California Durant Postpones Dividend

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—Directors of Durant Motors of California adjourned their meeting without taking any action on dividend. The second dividend of the company was originally payable January 22, but action has been postponed awaiting more conclusive indications of the course of motor sales for the early months of 1930.

vision the Boy Scout movement as a great smelter, whose product is American manhood.

Into it goes the raw material of youth—a conglomerate of contradictions—enthusiasm and inertia—kindliness and selfishness—obedience and disobedience—self reliance and timidity—carefulness and carelessness—thrift and prodigality—in short, all of the human inherencies in basic elemental state.

The business of the Boy Scout movement is to refine out the good, and eliminate the dross in young men's character, while it is in flux, and plastic.

The movement concerns strong manhood—upon which depends, in major degree, the future of our nation.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Honesty

OLLIE MORTON was a pretty good kid.

Ollie was 19 and had been working since she was 15 first in an artificial flower place and later in a restaurant.

It was hard work. Ollie said that it was honest work.

Ollie was a great stickler for honesty.

And for decency, too. Anyone who knows anything about how hard a girl has to work at making paper flowers and again at slinging hash in a busy East Side beanery, knows that Ollie was a good kid.

There was "Slip" Morton. He was up the river doing his second term, a pretty long stretch this time for trying to hold up the wrong man, a man who kicked the gun out of "Slip's" mitt, socked him down for the count and called a cop.

When Ollie was 17 she was going to marry Sam Baldwin.

Ollie took it for granted that Sam was doing just what he told her, "political work" for the local ward boss.

And then after Sam had given Ollie a ring and they were figuring on jumping down to the marriage bureau and jumping back to their three rooms again, something happened.

It happened to Sam and to Ollie's brother "Slip" at the same time. They were pinched in the middle of a loft robbery.

Ollie Visits Sam

Sam was at the wheel of the car.

Their lookout fell down or something, perhaps he was a stool pigeon. At any rate Sam found himself staring at a cop's automatic. Other cops brought down "Slip" Morton and two others. Some of the silk was already in the car.

Poor Ollie—it was a great blow to her. Her brother and the man she was going to marry jugged at the same time.

Sam got it easy as it was his first offense, two and a half years.

Ollie went up to see him and had quite a talk with him.

"It'll soon be over, Kid," said Sam, "then we'll get spliced and everything will be jake."

"You gotta be honest, Sam—it ain't right to be crooked and it ain't safe," said Ollie.

"I'll be honest enough—a guy may be dumb once but he won't make the same mistake twice," Sam assured her.

What he meant was that he never expected to be caught again.

"Well, I oughter quit you, Sam, only 'Slip' got you into it and as long as my own brother did that I'll wait—only you gotta be honest," Ollie insisted.

Sam repeated his assertions that he was through all crooked stuff.

Sam did his bit. Ollie went up to see him once in two or three months.

"Now what?" Ollie asked when Sam came back again.

"I'll hang around and try and get me a job," he said.

"You'll not hang around, Sam Baldwin, and live off your old mother, she has all she can do now," Ollie said.

By this time "Slip" Morton was out. He hunted up Sam.

"Got a swell lay—sure thing, come around with your taxi," "Slip said to Sam before he'd been out of stir a month.

"Can't do it, 'Slip'—Ollie won't let me," Sam said.

"Dames? Aw, jees, how's a guy gonna get coin if he lissens to dames—my sister is like all of 'em—blattin' about bein' honest."

Going Straight

"Just the same, I'm sticking straight. Me and Ollie's gonna be hitched just as soon as I've been straight a year."

It looked mighty good, a quick getaway after the job was pulled, would net him several thousand for his share.

He was talking it over with Slip in the Morton home. Ollie was out on her job in the restaurant. Slip's old man was at his job on the docks.

"Well," said Sam, "it does look mighty easy—"

There was a framed picture of Ollie on the sideboard along with the wax apples and old man Morton's pipe and tobacco. Ollie, in the picture, seemed to be staring mournfully at Sam.

"Aw, heck, count me out, Slip—I give Ollie my word, and I'm gonna stick it out."

Slip Morton cursed Sam and said his sister was a timid nitwit and that Sam was a mushhead to let any jane boss him around.

Sam stuck to his word.

He didn't tell Ollie about Slip's attempt to get him into the job. That is, he didn't until after Slip was pinched again and, for a second offense, got seven to 12 years.

"Tell me, was you in on that and managed to sneak out?" Ollie asked Sam.

"Wasn't me and you at th' movies?"

"But later—you tryin' to dodge answerin' me?"

"I wasn't in it at all."

"A cop was here askin' about you, I guess you was under suspicion all right."

"Sure, Ollie—I gotter live that down. Bein' with 'Slip' before I s'pose they thought I was in on this."

A month later Ollie gushed all over Sam when he called for her.

"I was up to see poor 'Slip' yesterday—he told me he begged you to get in on that job and you wouldn't, gee! I'm strong for you now, Sam," Ollie declared.

Lost in Crap Game

"Then let's get married now."

"We wait a whole year—that's not much more than six more months then if you've gone straight and you gotter save some coin to furnish up a place," Ollie insisted.

Sam sighed.

He tried to make money rapidly in a crap game the next night and sunk the ninety dollars he had been two months saving—he sunk it in less than eleven minutes.

This wouldn't do.

Sam figured and figured.

And then he started to prosper.

Almost every day a deposit. Some days twice. Some were for five dollars, a few for a dollar and most of them for ten and twenty!

Ollie slipped back the book. She wanted to cry.

Sam came in from the kitchen where he had been to have a little drink with Ollie's old man—some pretty good stuff he had brought over—and Ollie managed to keep quiet about what she knew.

But Sam wanted to talk about getting married. In about three more months the year would be up.

"I've been savin', kid," he said. "We can get us three good rooms and bath and I can furnish it up swell."

"Furnishing costs money," Ollie said suspiciously.

"I been saving."

"Sometimes as low as four bucks, sometimes as much as ten, and I been saving."

"Yes, you have—three new suits, and candy and silk stockings and things you give me—and some shows—and now and then a pint of hooch for dad—yes you've been savin'—you've broke your word, Sam Baldwin—you haven't been honest—you couldn't do that on what you make——"

Ollie began to cry. Sam tried to assure her.

"Your bank book fell out," she accusingly.

"Which one? I got money in two banks," said Sam.

"You're stealin'—you been crooked all along——"

Hugs and Kisses

"I believe in honesty, Kid. You come riding with me tomorrow. I'll show you something."

Ollie didn't want to.

But she was off the next afternoon and Sam called for her—in a brand new taxi—and all his own!

That is, he had paid three hundred down on it.

"Come on over and see Ma," he said, and drove her over.

He brought out a little plush case. He opened it. It contained a string of pearls. The name printed in gold inside the case was of a famous jewelry concern.

Ollie began to cry. Sam began to laugh.

"It's all right, dearie. Sam ain't a crook no more," Sam's mother said.

"You'd think so, but Sam promised—"

Sam brought out a bureau drawer. It was half full of plush cases and strings of pearls.

"Listen, Honey—I don't do nothing dishonest—if other people want to be dishonest and pay me, that ain't my fault is it?"

"These plush cases and the phoney name of the jeweler cost me 40 cents each. The pearls are from the five and ten."

"But—but what—"

"Soon as a customer gets out I slip one of these cases in the duster pocket—I keep a dozen in a box under my feet. When a new customer get out I run after 'em—especially wimmen—an' I say, 'Hey, lady, did you leave your poils?' Honest, Ollie, nineteen times out of twenty the dame will open the box, look at the name, at the poils and smile at me. Then they'll say, 'So I did, my good man—and I want to reward you for your honesty.' Get me?"

Ollie was grinning.

"They never slips me less than a buck—that's givin' me fifty cents profit. Most of 'em make it a five spot and a lot of 'em make it ten or more. Get me? I'm honest. I just ask 'em did they leave their poils, they think some other rider before 'em did, and they make a grab for 'em and reward me. Ollie, you said a mouthful when you said honesty pays!"

Ollie kissed him.

"I'm so happy, Sam, that you turned honest," she cried.

They drove down in Sam's new car and were married.

Churchill Warns Against 'Parity of Weakness'

Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty during the World War, spoke in Los Angeles last fall and said the finest and truest thing ever said about this naval tangle:

"Let the United States and Great Britain by all means have naval parity. But let it be a parity of strength and not a parity of weakness."

The fallacy underlying the present London naval conference is that the American delegation was sent over to negotiate and if possible force a parity of weakness.

A naval parity of weakness for the English-speaking nations is a counsel of folly in the war-minded world of today.

Churchill voiced the sentiments of the sane and sober English people when he spoke before the Navy League in London Wednesday and protested against any such policy.

Incidentally, his words should recall to their senses some of the sentimentalized members of the American conference delegation. He said:

"We ought not to hand over the decisions in this matter (of naval armament) to foreign nations, even though they are animated by the most friendly sentiment toward us. British naval requirements ought to be fixed by ourselves alone, and no group of nations can be such good judges of these matters as ourselves. The strength of the royal navy cannot be remitted to the responsibility and discretion of our live foreign allies and present good friends.

"We have never made plans for war against the United States because we are determined no such war shall come between us. It surely follows that the size of the American navy is no concern of ours or at most a matter of friendly and detached interest.

"We have no reason to add a single vessel to our normal program of fleet requirements (because of what America builds) and there are many who do not see why our agreement is required to the affirmation of the intention of the United States to build."

Every word of Churchill's is worth pondering. Let Britain build and maintain a navy sufficient for her protection. She builds against an imperialistic France which refuses to limit the swarms of submarines it is constructing to threaten the British food supply. She builds against a France which by its aggressive military alliances has regimented continental Europe into a huge war machine to maintain and extend France's aggrandizements from the World War.

Why is the size of the British navy a concern of ours any more than, as Churchill says, our navy is a concern of theirs? Our one concern, as the President has said and the American delegation has repeated, is parity with Britain in all categories.

In such naval parity, "A parity of strength and not of weakness," as between the United States and the English-speaking members of the British Empire, lies the hope of world peace. It does not lie in silly and dangerous plans for the United States to agree to give France more security by signing a "consultation pact" to come into effect when France gets into its next war of conquest with some foreign nation.

If France doesn't feel secure with control of the bulk of the world's 30,000,000 men under arms—why, our agreeing to go into "consultation" with her, when her next war breaks out, won't make her feel secure. The truth is that France doesn't feel secure because she doesn't deserve to feel secure. Her record and her plans are heading her for trouble which we should not pledge ourselves to share.

The disarmament conference has turned into a silly farce with the United States again being slowly but surely cast in the role of the international family goat.

Let Congress make good its errors of omission in the lean pacifistic years since 1922 and build up to a parity of strength with Britain—a strong parity that will remove any faint vestige of affront or war between the two nations themselves, a parity that will enable them to play their destined role of peacemakers in the world of the future.

"Patriotism"

Still in Our Dictionaries,

Tune in tomorrow and succeeding Thursdays on the "patriotism" broadcasts sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. No local station will broadcast the program, but, among others, stations WSAI, Cincinnati, and WEAF, New York, will put it on the air at 7:30 o'clock.

If you are a plain citizen and voter you will be interested.

If you happen to be a Congressman, a Senator or President you will be still more interested—perhaps, even, may learn "something to your advantage."

A few of our head servants might well look up the word "patriotism" in their dictionaries before they listen in.

It would give them an idea of what it's all about,

The "patriotism" program of the D. A. R. includes many speakers worth listening to. Among them are:

Richard Washburn Child, former Ambassador to Italy; Senator David J. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, and others,

Speeches will be carried over a coast-to-coast hookup. This is the first venture of the D. A. R. on the air. Its sole purpose, according to officers, is "to disseminate American ideals and the fundamental principles on which the Republic was founded."

The Administration, defying the century-old advice of George Washington to mind our own business, is seeking to entangle us step by step in the affairs of Europe,

To recall "the fundamental principles on which the Republic was founded" is therefore doubly necessary,

Most Americans remember those principles and hold them the ONLY safe foundation on which to build,

A minority—including some gentlemen in high office—are busily trying to improve on Washington's advice,

We shall see whether the country is prepared to "ditch" Washington and follow them,

Gold in the Clouds

For Some,

News for you who want to fly but can't afford to. The Fokker Aircraft Corporation will sell planes on credit—one-third cash, balance in 12 equal instalments, insurance paid,

Other producers—some of whom don't know it yet—will follow suit,

Flying lessons will also be included in the cost of planes, Builders of Waco aircraft offer them now. Their slogan, "Buy our plane and we will teach you how to fly," soon will be the rule of the industry, as your auto dealer now teaches you how to drive,

Aviation, you might say, is getting down to bedrock,

Instalment buying, appealing to those who want their "personal" planes, will appeal more to those interested in air transport as a business, A Fokker costing $21,800 requires about $7,000 cash to finance, A fraction of the earnings on it should meet the monthly instalments,

Ambitious young men with a little capital will seriously consider aviation for profit, They will do most of their flying at a desk, where the money is made,

Desks are where automobile money is made, and railroad money, and all other money,

Anybody can pilot a flying machine, You should learn, as you learned to drive, It's convenient,

Fewer can pilot a flying business, If you think you can, try, Aviation is very much of a business, with flying merely an incident of it,

"Thar's gold in them clouds, boys"—for those that keep their feet on the ground,

Block That Play

Rockne Connected With Automobile Concern,

Confidential reports bring the word that Knute Rockne not only coaches Notre Dame football teams, Between seasons he makes tours for a fighting automobile concern, talking to dealers and salesmen, After Rockne gets through with a squad of auto salesmen they tear out for business like a Notre Dame team in the second half of a game against Methodists,

If this thing continues, the public should insist upon certain rules and regulations, to this effect:

1. Prospective buyers shall not be tackled from behind,
2. Deception plays, in regard to appraisal of old cars, shall be barred,
3. When the buyer is thrown for a loss he is entitled to a free kick, Provided, of course, that he can catch the salesman,

WHAT PRICE NUISANCE VALUE?

By Herbert Kaufman

MONSIEUR TARDIEU has rebuilt his cabinet, He has mended his fences, He has recovered from his STRATEGIC attack of sore throat, And now the five powers will resume their seats and the poker game which his suspiciously timed indisposition suspended,

Monsieur Tardieu is confident that he holds an unbeatable hand, And, from all indications, intends to play "cut-throat" to the limit,

France is determined to have her own way or bust up the party, If Britain, the United States, Italy and Japan insist upon a general reduction of Naval ratios, they must either concede to the French the number and size of submarines and cruisers which they consider necessary to Mediterranean security or consent to consolidate influence and forces against any nation which may affront French sovereignty or invade French territory,

FRANCE has set up a nuisance value on her services as a controlling factor in naval limitations, and, encouraged by the outcome of similar dog-in-the-manger tactics in the matter of German reparation, feels sure that she can AGAIN wear down confrere patience and COMPEL a one-sided compromise,

The cables suggest that certain members of the American delegation are prepared to pay such BACSHEESH rather than return home without conclusive action,

Which means that they stand ready, as a last resort, to tangle this country in all the potential complications which we have escaped by avoiding the League of Nations, France has no confidence in the League of Nations, She doesn't trust its effectiveness, But she wants us to join for the same reason that all the other hard-ups of the universe wish it,

In which case, they can all drag us into their quarrels, put the lion's share of war costs on our Treasury, and use our citizens as catspaws to fight their battles,

A FORMAL alliance with Britain, Italy and Japan threatens exactly the same consequences as the other association,

But the Stimson group has no AUTHORITY to MAKE that commitment, The Stimson group is merely empowered to negotiate NAVAL LIMITATIONS,

If it assumes unvested prerogatives, any contract tending to involve us in extra-territorial risks is due for the SAME repudiation that President Wilson's unauthorized pledges promptly met,

Secretary Stimson knows that, Mr, Hoover knows it, and Congress, fully aware of public temper on the subject, has a rod in pickle for the first definite recommendation that we swap security and isolation for a partnership in Europe's discordant and bankrupt establishment,

EVERYBODY of importance seems to realize it EXCEPT the devoted band of peace-at-any-pricers, chimera chasers, Legion of Honor aspirants and college professors, 1,200 of whom have just mischievously stiffened Tardieu's resistance by wiring a resolution to London which will encourage France, all the MORE to believe that representative opinion here is as strongly Francophile as decoration hunters persistently paint it,

Mr. Stimson and Monsieur Tardieu must be ESPECIALLY impressed by the fact that such BAKSHEESH rather than return home conscience as Mr. Ivy Lee and the secretary to Ponca City's Chamber of Commerce, are among the signators who, "pledge to the President and the American delegation our active and continued support for the conclusion of such agreements as embody the principles of reduction and conference and at the same time meet the justly aroused expectations of the entire world."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells,

BACTERIA, for example, are very important in agriculture, There are a number of kinds of bacteria living in the earth which lay hold of the nitrogen gas in the air and turn it into substances in the soil which can be absorbed and used by plants,

H. G. Wells

The fertilizing action on the soil of crops of leguminous plants, such as beans and clover, is due to the fact that their roots are always swollen and warty from the presence of swarms of symbiotic bacteria —parasites, if you like, but parasites which benefit their host more than they harm it, for they convert ammonia into nitrates, which are important substances in the economy of plants.

Again, bacteria are both enemies and allies to the dairy-farmer. The taste of butter depends to a large extent on the bacteria that inhabited the milk in the time between milking and churning; there are some bacteria that make pleasant flavors and others that make foul.

For this reason it is customary in scientific butter-making to sterilize the milk as soon as possible after milking and then to add a "starter"—a culture of the right kind of organism. In this way one is certain of getting a pleasant flavor.

Moreover, the "starter" usually includes the bacteria that turn milk sour, because it is found that the acidity of sour milk prevents the growth of undesirable bacteria.

Further, the flavors and distinctive properties of cheeses (even their contained air-bubbles) depend on the organisms (chiefly bacteria and yeasts) that have inhabited them during the ripening process.

The characteristic flavors of cheese from different districts, like the characteristic flavors of wines, are due to the fact that each district has its own races of the appropriate micro-organisms.

Vinegar is made by the action of bacteria which turn alcohol into acetic acid; the slimy mass known as "mere de vinaigre" consists of these organisms embedded in the slime that they produce.

And many of the processes in leather manufacture, such as the "sweating" process, which softens the hairs so that they are readily scraped off the skins, are really carefully-watched bacterial decay.

On a higher plane, bacteria have played a part in strengthening religious faith.

The prodigy of the bleeding Host, in which bread broke out into scarlet spots, was due to a bacterium which grows on bread and manufactures a red pigment; the same organism may infect human skins, if not too frequently washed, and thus cause miraculous "sweatings of blood."

There are other bacterial curiosities, too. The phosphorescence that appears on rotting wood, fish, and the like is due to bacteria; and so is the heat of manure heaps and moist haystacks,

But the outstanding thing about bacteria, perhaps the most important of all, is that they are the chief organisms responsible for putrefaction.

Usually one regards puterfaction as a nuisance—if anything in the larder goes bad or if a rat dies under the boards of the floor one resents this apparent tendency of dead organic matter to deliquesce and stink.

But decay is not a natural property inherent in dead and abandoned things; it is a sign that they are being inhabited and consumed by busy millions of microscopic creatures. And decomposition is a vitally important process.

If anything that died were perfectly preserved and lay forever as a corpse on the surface of the earth we should be hard put to it to find room for our feet. But there is a better reason than that.

A living body, a man for example, is a more or less definite weight of oganic matter set apart for special use; when the creature dies its body is finished with, and in the usual course of Nature its substance is melted down, so to speak, and used again, built up again into other bodies.

For the amount of available carbon, for example, in the world is limited. Equally important, there is energy even in a dead body; it is combustible, a potential fuel.

A preserved dead body is so much matter, so much energy withdrawn from the general interchanges between living things; it leaves life as a whole so much the poorer.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 5.—Nothing balloons the vanity of the successful New Yorker so much as recognition in his home town, Especially is this true of those who came from the whistle stops, A paragraph in the local weekly provides a bigger emotional wallop than a first page spread in a metropolitan daily,

There is a millionaire who sends a confidential employe back to his native village every year or so to pick up, sub rosa, any information, adverse or otherwise, as to what his former townsmen think of his triumphs in the big town.

He has been the recipient of many testimonial dinners, honored by foreign governments and was once called in private audience for consultation by a president of the United States. Yet his proudest moment was to deliver an address before the graduating class of his home high school.

While many such notables never return to the forks of the creek even for a brief visit, it is the adulation back yonder that is the inspiration of day dreams. The only newspaper they read from "kiver to kiver" is the one from their local community.

One commercial Caliph left his native heath early in youth under the cloud of a boyish escapade. Although he made his way over almost unsurmountable obstacles, that adolescent experience rankled. He was of great importance everywhere save in the high grass.

Rumors reached him from time to time of slightly disdainful smiles among his townsmen when his name was mentioned. So he decided to even the score. He journeyed home in his private car with a brace of secretaries and announced the gift of a public park to the town.

He arranged for a public dinner in the leading tavern to which the entire populace was invited. At its conclusion he arose and said: "You have accepted my hospitality tonight after sneering at me for years. Now you can all go to blazes." And he walked out, his head in the air—like a petulant school boy.

Drug stores now sell ear plugs for victims of New York's incoherent din. They are a patented arrangement of soft rubber that fit into the ear and shut out the city's hullabaloo. While many are sold to natives living near the elevated, the big sales are among transients in midtown hotels.

Cupping an ear at an open window, in the midst of this, the following noises drifted up from the street 10 floors below: A medley of auto horns; the shrill of three police whistles; the chirruping shriek of a mail wagon; the cry of a newsboy and the rat-a-tat of a riveting machine a block away.

Unless my old ears deceive me the riveting machine is the same instrument my dentist used a couple of Sundays ago.
